SEES ONE DANGER IN CITY CONTROL.

Lord Provost of Glasgow Points to Possible Domination by Employes.

FINDS NEED OF REMEDY.

Suggests as Protection for Civic Rights That Franchise Be Withheld from Public Servants.

BY RAYMOND

[Copyright, 1905, by The Tribune Company.]

GLASGOW, April 26.—During one of several interviews I was fortunate enough to secure with Sir John Ure Primrose, lord provost of Glasgow, he expressed a note of warning in regard to the future of the municipal ownership idea. This warning, he seemed to think, was especially calculated for the latitude and longitude of Chicago, although in point of fact his observations were entirely confined to his experiences in Glasgow.

The chief magistrate of the second city in the kingdom, who is bright, alert, progressive, and extremely up to date, understands the American political system by his reading and by hearsay only. It is curious, therefore, that he has struck on the thing which is causing apprehension among American people regarding the extension of the municipal ownership idea to water, gas, street car, and other public utilities.

What the lord provost of Glasgow sees ahead even of his own conservative community is that danger which arises from the creation of a great army of city employés, who at the same time are not only receiving pay from the municipality, but are, by the exercise of their franchise rights, in the position of stockholders in the enterprise. It is a sufficiently serious thing to be worth careful consideration.

Sees Danger for Glasgow.

Glasgow is singularly successful in the way of municipal ownership. It has taken over its gas, water, electric light, electric power, and street car systems, and is managing them all with manifest success and economy. Nevertheless, there is even here beginning to loom up a threat of the possible domination of the municipality by its own employés, and the lord provost already has suggested, and in my interview with him reiterated, the possibility of the adoption of radical measures to avoid this one dangerous rock upon which the municipal ownership craft may be wrecked in Glasgow in spite of its conservative surroundings.

"Our experience in municipal ownership," said the lord provost, as we sat before the cheerful open fire in his beautifully appointed private office in the city chambers in George square, "has been generally successful, so far as we have confined ourselves to the proper channels of municipal activity. We have reached a point, however, where we begin to see a danger ahead, and this one, which, from what I know of your peculiar political system, is likely to be even more threatening to you than to us.

"This arises out of the building up of a great army of municipal employés. For instance, in the tramway department, about which you have been making special inquiries, there are today over 4,000 employés of the city. Then there are the men at work in the water department, the gas supply, and in the electrical works, in addition to the ordinary municipal departments. As the city grows the army of employés grows, and there have been indications at times that they may wield a power in the dictation of the city government which is not altogether for the best interests of the municipality."

Political Factor a Problem.

"Is this a present development or one of the future only?"

"Our experience already has brought us face to face with this problem in a limited degree, and the fear I am expressing is lest it should grow. You know that here in the British islands, or at least in Scotland, our municipal governments are not usually managed on political lines at all. Yet now and then if the municipality fails to meet the views of its employés over things which may be trivial in themselves, those employés have it in their power to retaliate upon their superior officers.

"For instance, not long since, one of our town councilors in the course of his official duties and without any particular personal prejudice was impelled to take certain action which was not relished by the members of the police force. There were not more than fifty of the constables, perhaps, who lived in his ward. Yet you can readily see that each one of these was a recruiting sergeant. The councilor was not wholly alive to the danger and he was actually beaten through the efforts of the paid employés of the municipality. What is true of the police department may be true of the tramways department or of any other large branch of the public work.

"Therefore, in the long run, even with us, where the municipality is divorced from politics, we have begun to see the danger which may arise from the existence of many thousands of city employés, who are working for wages paid to them by the city, and yet who, to a certain extent, by the right of franchise, may yet be able to dictate the terms of their employment, and even the rate of wages. With you in America, where the political idea is developed to such an extent in all your municipalities, this danger which we have begun to find here may be much greater, and it is one at least which you should carefully consider before embarking upon any new experiment."

Might Withhold Franchise.

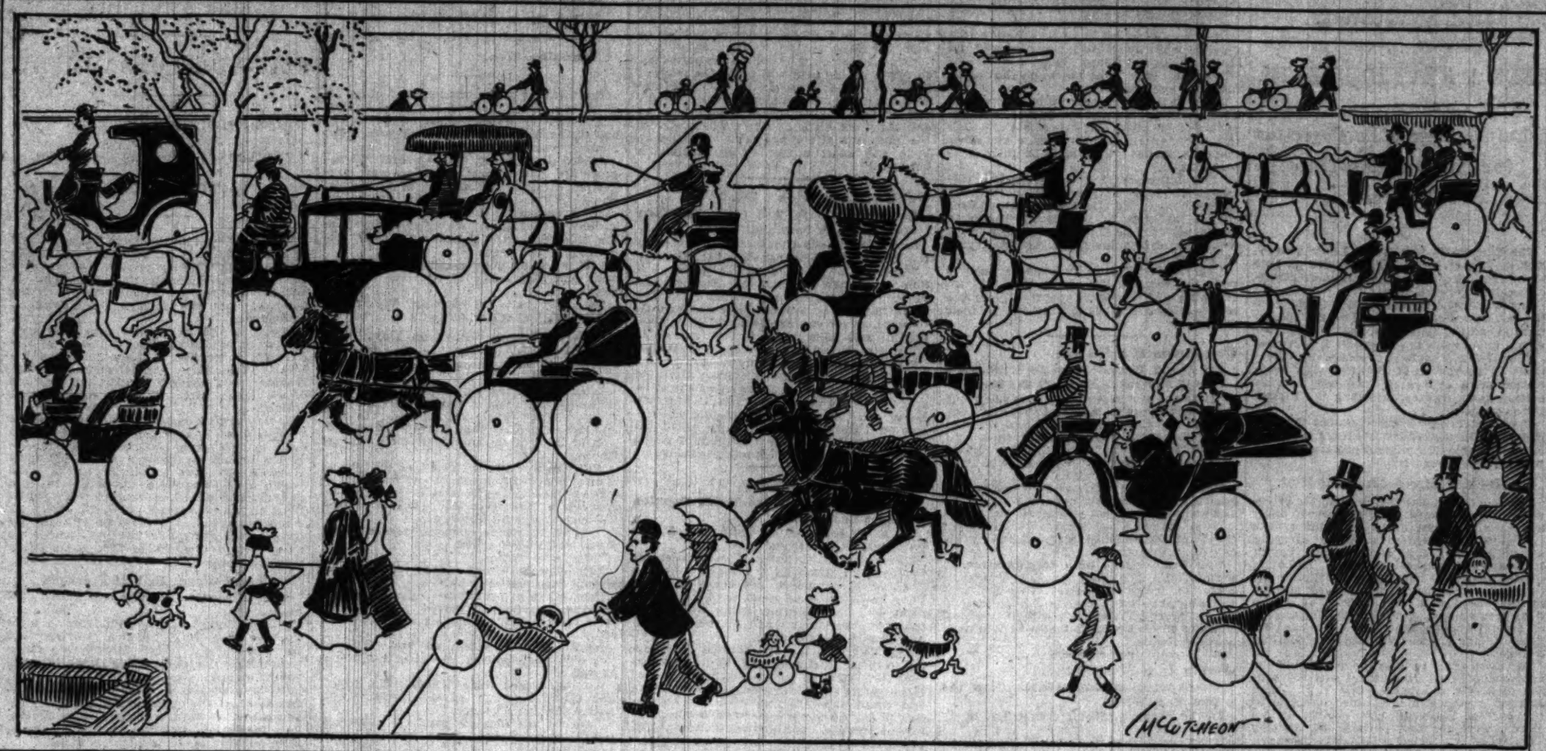

"What is your remedy, if there be one, for this dangerous development of the municipal ownership idea?"

"At a public dinner the other day I made a suggestion which embodies a remedy so radical it has brought down on my head a great deal of criticism, and yet I am not certain but that some such step must be taken to protect our municipalities in the operation of their public works. My suggestion was that it might be necessary to withhold the franchise on all municipal matters from city employés. You can readily see the reason for this. I believe that the public employés of a municipality should receive at least the same treatment as people of the same class in business life. In fact, I believe they should be treated better. The city should pay the best average wages for the work done, the hours should be reasonably short, and all employés should have distinctly humane treatment.

"On the other hand, there is a line beyond

ALARM IN GREAT BRITAIN.

London Times Warns Paris That England Must Respond if Ally Calls for Aid.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, May 8, 3 a. m.—Tokio newspapers are openly talking of war with France because of the persistent violation of neutrality in permitting the Baltic fleet to use French Cochin-China ports as a naval base. France, they declared, is openly aiding Russia to make war on Japan.

The Times this morning declares that the relations between France and Japan are rapidly hurrying to a grave crisis, and says plainly that if Japan calls on Great Britain for aid Great Britain will give it.

Further the Times asserts that it has reason to believe that Foreign Secretary Lansdowne has spoken strongly to the French government on the breaches of neutrality permitted to the Russian Pacific squadron.

Japanese Feeling Runs High.

The Times' Tokio correspondent says that even when the country was on the verge of war with Russia the Japanese press did not show greater excitement and indignation than at present. Even the most sober journals declare that France virtually has taken up arms against Japan. References to the Anglo-Japanese alliance are assuming a tone of marked impatience. It is plainly stated to be England's duty to prevent interference by a third party, equally in the interests of her ally and for the sake of the world's peace. It is declared impossible to longer plead inattention on behalf of France. She is evidently deliberately placing every facility at the disposal of the Russians, thereby constituting herself the latter's active ally. On France alone will rest the responsibility for carrying matters beyond the realm of diplomacy.

The Tokio newspapers challenge France to abandon her double faced dealing, unworthy of a great power, and declare frankly for Russia. They say, whereas that nation recently was revered as the incarnation of liberty and sincerity, it now has incurred deep discredit by its breach of faith. They question whether France has fully counted the cost of earning the enmity of the newly arisen oriental state. They declare that she has created a situation of the gravest nature, since it is proved conclusively that she has connived flagrantly at gross violations of neutrality, to the great injury of Japan's vital interests.

The united chambers of commerce of Japan are concerting measures to cease all commercial transactions with French citizens.

Admits Situation Is Grave.

Commenting first on Hongkong dispatches giving complete details of the occupation of Kamranh bay by the Russian fleet, the Times declares:

"Of the gravity of these facts, if they are accurately stated, there can be no two opinions."

Then, referring to its own dispatch from Tokio, it says:

"We cannot affect to treat these utterances with indifference as signs of little moment. No more deplorable error could be committed across the channel than to suppose that the complaints of our ally on this subject can be treated with light heart. They cannot be evaded, they cannot be ignored."

The Times concludes by saying that were the facts alleged by Japan established and were its government to call on Great Britain to fulfill her obligations under the alliance, France must remember that England would have no choice but to comply.

JAPAN HINTS AT WAR.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

TOKIO, May 7.—There is rapidly increasing resentment at the ineffectual character of French neutrality in Indo-Chinese waters. Even so responsible a paper as the Asahi is joining in the demands for independent action on the part of Japan, saying:

"We hold French promises to be merely falsehoods. Japan is suffering military loss owing to France's violation of neutrality. We advise the government to act in accordance with international law. It cannot be helped if we are compelled to bombard French territory.

"Japan's abstention from claiming compensation for the Kamranh bay affair is proof of her desire for amicable relations with France, but it is declared that Japan cannot endure more breaches of neutrality.

"France keeps her Indo-Chinese ports and harbors unguarded, holding the bulk of her fleet at Saigon, and leaving the coast free to the Russians.

"The conduct of France is obviously not unintentional negligence. England, America, Holland, and China have taken precautions to guard their neutrality, whereas the neutrality of France rests merely on words. The fact that all reports of movements of the Baltic fleet emanate from merchantmen proves that French organs of communication are acting in Russian interests. France has thus joined Russia in opposing Japan."

FRANCE VIOLATED NEUTRALITY.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HONGKONG, May 7.—The following is the cable dispatch which the French authorities at Saigon on April 30 refused to allow to be transmitted. It proves conclusively France persistently violated neutrality by supplying Russian warships, thus enabling them to prepare for battle with the Japanese fleet or to prey upon neutral commerce. The dispatch originally offered for transmission was:

"My visit to Kamranh bay and my personal observations have convinced me that without French assistance in allowing the Baltic fleet to rendezvous at Kamranh bay and receive the fullest supplies of coal and cattle, water, and fresh and other provisions, and to make full use of the French telegraphs, the Russian fleet would have been in sad straits.

"When the Russian ships arrived on April 15 they were dangerously short of supplies. The fact that Kamranh is a magnificent bay, which is held by the Marquis Bartelimy Pontalis, who, as a concessionnaire, is allowed to receive a cargo and transship without its passing through the French customs suggests prearrangement with the knowledge of the French officials.

"Immense quantities of coal and other stores had been stored at Saigon with full knowledge of the French authorities that they were for the use of the Baltic fleet, and for months these supplies were ready for transshipment.

"The reprovisioning of the Russian vessels proceeded under the direction of Prince Lieven, captain of the interned Russian cruiser Diana. He was assisted by M. Ginsberg, a Russian naval contractor who came to Saigon for the purpose. Captains of French and German vessels were paid enormous sums for carrying stores from Saigon to Kamranh bay.

France Takes No Notice.

"During nearly the whole time the fleet was replenishing its supplies no attempt was made by the French government to check this violation of neutrality until I cabled what was actually occurring. Then, on April 23, Admiral de Jonquires, the French naval commander, advised the Russians to cease taking aboard supplies and to hasten their departure from French territorial waters. The admiral then left for Whatrang, after arranging with an agent at Kamranh bay to telegraph him when the Russians left. Instead of leaving, however, the Russians continued their work as usual.

"On an average of three transports arrived daily and the warships entered the harbor, coaled and departed, using the harbor as a base.

"Admiral de Jonquires returned on April 24, after further remonstrances had been made to the French by Japan. The Russians left the following morning, having thus been allowed ten days in which to receive the fullest supplies. They only left, however, when their transports were empty.

"Your correspondent personally boarded the French steamer Quangnam which had a full cargo of contraband which was being discharged under the superintendency of two Russian paymasters. Junks and other boats were carrying these supplies to the Russian cruisers in the presence of the French flagship, the crusier Descartes.

Russian Fleet Fully Supplied.

"This wide stretching of neutrality enabled the Russians to proceed and to intercept neutral vessels. The Russians are now fully stocked, thanks to the French allowing them for ten days to practically convert Kamranh bay into a Russian naval base. The action of the French is in striking contrast to the attitude of the British authorities at Hongkong and Singapore. The latter are stopping steamers on the slightest suspicion that they are carrying contraband."

FLEET NORTHWEST OF BORNEO.

LABUAN, British Borneo, May 7.—The steamer Chiengmai reports that Friday night it passed a fleet of warships and other vessels off the Mantanani islands, northwest of Borneo. The fleet sighted was a large one, in two divisions, showing lights but stationary, and with the appearance of being engaged in coaling.

REFORM A JONAH FOR LEGISLATION.

How Zeal of Know-It-All Enthusiasts Blocked and Ruined Various Bills at Springfield.

DENEEN'S IRE IS AROUSED.

Sends a Tart Message to Union League Club Reformers—His Labors Hampered by Activity of Outsiders.

With the Forty-fourth general assembly adjourned sine die and its work up for review two facts become apparent. One is that Gov. Deneen has redeemed his own personal pledges and those of the republican party in the state in good measure. The other is that "reform activity" is not necessarily an unmixed good.

The pledge that the state should have a primary law has been kept and the law has gone beyond the pledges. It presents something to the state far in advance of anything mentioned either by the party platform or by Gov. Deneen in his campaign speeches.

This is the one important measure presented to the legislature in which the reformers did not attempt to interfere.

The civil service pledge has been kept in part. The law enacted is as far underneath the party pledge as the primary law is beyond it. This is the measure in which the reformers interfered the most.

The Chicago charter acts are not as far reaching and are not as numerous as the friends of charter legislation hoped to get. Behind these measures there were all sorts and conditions of advocates—reformers, city officials, prominent citizens, state officials, attorneys, and, incidentally, members of the legislature.

Comparisons Tell the Story.

Considering that the act which has succeeded the most is the one in connection with which there was no interference on the part of reformers, and that the act which has met with the worst fate was the one in which the interference was the most persistent, there would seem to be a connection between the two facts disclosed by the work of the legislature.

In addition to getting results on legislation which had been promised before the legislature met, the state administration took up the gas fight and carried it through to a successful finish. In this case the reform associations and the city officials started the "popular wave" without which the legislature might not have been so easily handled in the end and without which the administration might not have been so determined to secure the legislation.

After the outcry that was made for the rate regulation bill it became a matter of necessity with the republican state and the Cook county organization to make good on the measure.

With the exception of the gas bill there was no important measure which would not have been better served if the Chicago reformers had remained in Chicago and passed resolutions from the distance. This is the statement of men in the legislature who were working for the bills.

"Reformers" as Irritants.

The lack of success which usually attends the efforts of the reformers in the legislature seems to be due to the fact that they get on the "nerves" of the politicians. Against them during the session just closed it was complained that they were without tact and did not understand the value of diplomacy.

To resort to denunciation every time they met with an obstacle was to set the politicians more firmly against them.

The fact in connection with all the special legislation before the general assembly is that the efforts of the reformers in civil service "agitation" nearly "gummed the cards" for every other important measure.

The primary law would have been disposed of in February if the civil service reformers had not been able to stir up such a rumpus in the republican organization that they nearly disrupted it.

The republican steering committee went to pieces in a civil service row, and Speaker Shurtleff finished the session without one, except for purposes of ornament and display. The steering committee steered itself

LAKE OF LAVA MAY EXPLODE

Island of Hawaii Fears a Terrible Catastrophe at Any Hour.

CITY OF HILO IN DANGER.

Greatest Crater in the World Nearly Full to Overflowing.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HONOLULU, May 7.—The three mile long crater of Kilauea, a constantly agitated lake of liquid lava, is showing great activity, and fears are felt that the enormous mass may be thrown into the air by an explosion and overwhelm a part of the island of Hawaii and its 25,000 inhabitants.

The burning lava in the great crater, the largest in the world, is steadily rising. Should the pressure increase there is great danger of a terrific eruption.

Kilauea is the child of Mauna Loa, but has far outgrown its parent in size, although not in the constancy of flow. It is sixteen miles from Mauna Loa and fifteen miles nearer the town of Hilo, whose inhabitants have several times been thrown into a state of terror by the lava flow from Mauna Loa.

Fishermen on the east coast of Hawaii say Kilauea has never presented as grand a sight as in the last few days.

Whole Island in Danger.

On account of the relative smaller height of Kilauea, an eruption from it might not reach the north coast, but it is feared Mauna Loa, which is 7,000 feet higher and in the center of the island, would be exploded by the eruption of the other and cover the whole island.

Hilo is considered safe from a mere overflow of Kilauea, and it is only an explosive eruption that is feared. The overflows from Kilauea usually go down the south and west slopes and away from Hilo.

May Change Coast Line.

In any event, it is likely that the activity now begun will leave its mark on the topography of the island. In one of its overflows 100 years ago Kilauea gave forth 15,000,000,000 cubic feet of rock and lava, changing the formation of the coast for miles.

In one of its later eruptions, that of 1868, Kilauea sent a stream of burning lava sixty miles to the southwest, where it poured a flaming cataract over the cliffs into the sea. In the sea the mass formed a pyramid of lava, which, by later accessions, gradually became attached to the mainland and is now known as Kalae point.

STEAMER SINKS IN COLLISION, IMPERILING SIXTY-FIVE LIVES.

One Woman Goes Down with the Aransas, Sunk by Barge of Vineyard Haven, Mass.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., May 7.—The steamer Aransas, Capt. Rood, of the Joy line, was sunk in a collision with the barge Glendower, one and a half miles southeast of Pollock Rip lightship, tonight. One woman, Mamie Kelly of Boston, 25 years old, was lost. The collision is believed to have been due to fog.

Sixty-five survivors reached this port in the lifeboats. They say they were hurried into the boats at once, almost before they knew what had happened. When Miss Kelly last was seen she was half way down the ladder. She may have fallen or gone back to the deck.

The Glendower was in tow of a Reading railroad tug, bound east from Philadelphia.

The Aransas sank almost immediately after the collision, but it is said that the tow kept on.

Sloop with Fifty Men Goes Over.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 7.—The sloop Christie, owned and sailed by Capt. Samuel Jack of Stratford, was caught in a squall this afternoon off Bridgeport lighthouse and was capsized. Fifty men aboard were thrown into the water. Many were exhausted when rescued.

VICTIM OF BOYS' JOKE MAY DIE.

Girl, Frightened by Hideous Disguise, Ill for Two Months—Life Is Despaired Of.

Springfield, O., May 7.—[Special.]—Helen Tavvenor, 17 years old, has been unconscious since 8 o'clock last night, and her life is despaired of. She was the victim of a practical joke. Some boys decided to frighten her and one of their number was delegated to do it. He appeared at the Tavvenor home in a hideous disguise. When the girl opened the door she gave an unearthly scream and fell unconscious to the floor. She has been ill with nervous prostration for two months.

STRIKE STRUGGLE IS MORE BITTER.

Both Sides Prepare for an Intense Conflict During Week of Roosevelt's Visit.

"GRAFT" INQUIRY IS READY.

Unionists Demand the Indictment of Employers and Declare a Boycott on the Banks.

PRESS THE CONSPIRACY CHARGE.

Preparations were made yesterday—the thirtieth day of the teamsters' strike—for even more intense struggle during the week to come—the week in which President Roosevelt visits the city.

The Sunday cessation of surface troubles was not an idle day. The commission appointed by Mayor Dunne to investigate charges of graft and blackmail on the part of union leaders, and of efforts to incite trouble on the part of the employers, made detailed plans for beginning the inquiry.

Both Sides Plan War Measures.

The merchants made plans for more strenuous efforts to bring the recalcitrant team owners into line, and the Federation of Labor, on the other hand, resolved to seek the indictment of the officials of the Employers' association for this effort, calling it conspiracy.

It was stated from an authoritative source, although denied in public interview, that the team owners themselves induced the labor federation to ask for a special grand jury, hoping thereby to frighten the Employers' association out of its purpose to force the team owners into harmony with it.

Votes Union Boycott on Banks.

The Federation of Labor adopted a resolution declaring "unfair" those banks which contributed to the $50,000 fund in aid of the employers. It announced it would withdraw union deposits from all such institutions and urge all members of labor unions individually to do likewise.

The city council tonight is expected to provide funds to pay the emergency police and other present expenditures.

Mayor Spends Day "Resting."

Mayor Dunne took no action regarding the strike. He spent the day in Evanston, and on his return in the evening said:

"I have been taking a rest all day and have had no talk with any one on the strike situation. My visit to Evanston was entirely a social one, and had no other significance. I wanted to make Sunday a day of rest if I could."

Asked if he had any communication of any kind with the members of the commission he had appointed to investigate the "graft" charges, the mayor said:

"No. I have not heard from any of them or said anything to any of them."

Commission Begins Work Today.

The strike commission will begin work this afternoon. Chairman Graham Taylor devoted a large part of yesterday to the formation of plans and to consultations with leaders of each side. He announced at night that he expects the investigation to consume not more than one week.

Prof. Taylor had a conversation with Towner K. Webster by telephone. As William C. Boyden, the third member of the commission, is out of town and will not return until this afternoon, it was decided a preliminary meeting before today would be unnecessary. Mr. Webster is president of the City club and Mr. Boyden is Walter L. Fisher's law partner. Mr. Fisher is secretary of the Municipal Voters' league.

From all appearances the commission is going to have no holiday task. It is without power of subpœna, and all the information it gets will of necessity be volunteered. The union leaders declare they will submit volumes of testimony bearing on the charges that the employers have fostered the war by aiming to extend the strike through a score of trades.

Employers Doubt the Utility.

On the other hand the employers are not enthusiastic over the project, seeing no good that is likely to come out of it, though Chairman Taylor was assured the merchants would do nothing to block the inquiry.

One of the leading members of the Employers' executive committee declared he and his associates would decline to present any evidence supporting even their own charges against the union.

"I don't see why we should pay any attention to this committee," said he. "All we want to do is to conduct our lawful business in peace. We have nothing to settle with the teamsters' union, as we do not recognize the existence of the union since it has repudiated its contracts."

Some Testimony Is Volunteered.

Chairman Taylor said several employers had called on him during the day to offer their assistance, but he declined to give their names. It is understood that the men were team owners who know more or less about the alleged methods of the Employers' association in whipping the transfer companies into line against the union. Prof. Taylor also conferred with President Shea of the teamsters and President Dold of the Federation of Labor beside sending a personal representative to the meeting of the latter body.

"The first thing the commission will have to do will be to determine the scope of the inquiry," said Mr. Taylor in the evening. "I had a talk with Mr. Webster today and we decided much time could be saved if some program of action could be definitely adopted at the first meeting. I agreed to go ahead and work out a plan which will be presented to my coworkers tomorrow. In a general way I have been seeking to learn from the employers what their complaints against the union are and from the union the charges against the employers. This material I shall lay before the commission and then we shall decide upon the limits of the investigation. I should say off hand that the garment workers' strike probably will be considered outside of the scope of inquiry.

Expect to "Get at the Facts."

"We shall not have the power to subpœna witnesses but we anticipate little difficulty in getting the facts. Whatever happens we are bound to make a report of some kind and by the end of the week if possible. If we find that either side blocks our attempt to secure the truth we shall report that fact. The public is entitled to a full knowledge of this situation in order to form a correct judgment of the issues at stake. We shall have notaries to take down the testimony, a report of which will be published. All communications bearing on the matter in hand should be addressed to me as chairman of the commission and in care of the mayor's office.

"It doesn't make any difference who the members of the commission are so long as the truth is brought out and laid before the public. Accuracy will be the one aim of this investigation, and the report we make shall stand or fall on that basis."

Stir Expected in Council Tonight.

All kinds of resolutions as to the strike are predicted for the council meeting this evening. It was said yesterday that an alderman would bring in one assuring the governor there is no need of troops in Chicago, and another that there is urgent need of their presence. Neither would verify the rumor. Ald. John Coughlin, however, has not yet been heard from.

Still, it is known that the council will take this action as to the labor troubles:

The finance committee will ask that an emergency appropriation be passed to pay the extra policemen put on the force under the mayor's call of last week. No exact amount will be named in the request, as the time of the employment of the men cannot be fixed, but their pay while serving will be at the rate of $60 a month, they ranking as probationers.

Two Opinions from Tolman.

Corporation Counsel Tolman is due to send in opinions as to two resolutions involving legal questions, referred to him last meeting.

One is that of Ald. Hunt asking as to the legality of importation of negro strike breakers into Chicago, on the theory they add to the floating and improvident population and their habits threaten the health of the city.

The other that of Ald. Kohout, declaring the display of weapons "in a threatening manner" comes within the clause in the criminal code defining disorderly conduct, and hence the drivers of wagons should not be allowed to carry arms whether concealed or not.

FINDS SLUGGERS ARE DEPUTIES.

Sheriff Barrett Makes Discovery and Will Begin Investigation—More Police to Guard Wagons.

Reports that have been circulated for several days that "sluggers" were being sworn in as deputy sheriffs to incite riots and attack strike breakers, were verified by the investigation made by Sheriff Barrett of the riot at the Gainsboro hotel, 985 West Madison street, in which two men were probably fatally injured Saturday night.

It was discovered that one of the union sympathizers arrested is Ole Olesen, a professional prize fighter. The man, according to Sheriff Barrett, was sworn in as a deputy sheriff under the name of Dent.

"It is difficult to learn much about a man who asks to be sworn in as a deputy, considering the haste under these circumstances, and I have no doubt but other sluggers have been sworn in," said Sheriff Barrett. "I will see that the man is not released until I learn who instigated his being made a deputy, and the guilty parties shall be punished no matter how high up they are."

Olesen Tells Queer Story.

Olesen was arrested by policemen who quelled the disturbance which resulted in the shooting of John Noonan and Charles Daly in the entrance of the hotel. He wore a deputy sheriff's star, but declared he had found it. When seen by attachés of the sheriff's office he was recognized as a man who had been sworn in under the name of Dent.

Noonan, who is a deputy sheriff, was visited by Sheriff Barrett at the Monroe street hospital in the afternoon. He declared that he was only an onlooker, and took no part in the fight in the entrance of the hotel. This statement is not credited by the police, who say that he was active in the disturbance. He, with Olesen, they say, had laid an ambush for the express drivers who were attacked, and they are directly responsible for the fight which occurred.

The condition of Daly, a switchman, who was shot in one lung, was improved yesterday, and it is believed he will recover.

Stores Will Make "Test" Today.

There was a lull in the strike violence yesterday, and today the big business houses will attempt to resume their regular business operations. Many houses have applied for police protection for the full number of wagons they operate, and extra men have been detailed for the downtown district to prevent any hostile demonstrations.

"It appears that tomorrow will be a 'test' day with the Employers' association members, who will attempt to make regular deliveries for all business houses affected by the strike," said Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler. "We have been asked for protection for 1,200 wagons, and we have drafted more policemen from the outlying districts to meet the extra demands."

The Employers' association asked that the police be prepared to protect 700 wagons to be sent out by the Employers' Teaming company and business houses who had applied for protection through the association.

Forced to Ask for Protection.

The efforts of the proprietors of the Standard Wash Coal company to do their own teaming, acting as their own drivers and asking no protection from the police, proved a failure, and Assistant Chief Schuettler was asked yesterday for protection for twenty of the concern's wagons. The teams are to go out this morning.

While preparations were being made by the police for the work of today Sheriff Barrett was not idle. He says he expects to swear in many new deputies this morning and place them on the wagons.

"Many of the stores have asked that I swear in their employés today, saying they will make deliveries without other protection," said Sheriff Barrett. "This is not only going to prevent much trouble, but will save the county thousands of dollars."

To Resume Deliveries Today.

Among the business houses which have requested police protection, with the number of wagons to be operated, are:

Peabody Coal company	50	A. M. Rothschild & Co.	20
Sprague, Warner & Co.	30	Walsh, Boyle & Co.	5
Reid, Murdoch & Co.	20	Marshall Field & Co.	75
Franklin MacVeagh	15	Siegel, Cooper & Co.	30
Durand & Kasper	15	Mandel Bros.	30
Steele, Wedeles & Co.	20	Hillman's	12
J. V. Farwell & Co.	30	Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., wholesale and retail	50
N. K. Fairbank & Co.	15	Siegel, Cooper & Co.	30
Diamond Match Co.	5	Crerar, Clinch & Co.	30
Sayer Box company	15	Standard Wash Coal company	25
Daniels Coal company	25	Boston store	20
Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co.	5	The Fair	30
C. H. Starr & Bros.	5	Heath & Milligan	10

The policemen on duty as wagon guards will be commanded by Assistant Chief Schuettler.

Union to Erect Chimney Factories.

Marion, Ind., May 7.—According to a statement given out today by T. W. Rowe of Toledo, O., president of the American Flint Glass Workers' union, the national organization will at once begin the erection of three lamp chimney factories, which will give employment to union men out of work.

LABOR MEN VOTE A BANK BOYCOTT.

Federation Calls for the Withdrawal of Unionists' Money from Fund Givers.

ENDS A HEATED DEBATE.

Asks Indictment of Employers for Conspiracy Against Team Owners.

The Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday in its regular meeting decided on two war measures touching the teamsters' struggle against the employers.

One is to withdraw labor union funds from the banks which subscribed to the $50,000 fund to aid the employers, and to urge individual union members to go and do likewise.

The other is to attempt to secure the indictment of the officials of the Employers' association on a charge of conspiracy against certain team owners, including the Arthur Dixon company.

The team owners themselves deny they are interested in this effort to get a grand jury and the Employers' officials profess not to be worried over the matter.

Delegates Stirred Almost to Riot.

The federation meeting, held in the afternoon in Bricklayers' hall, was stirred early by the appearance of two wagons of the United States Express company carrying armed guards along Monroe and Peoria streets, where the hall is located. Although excited delegates indulged in vindictive utterances, cooler judgment prevailed, and the session ended with the adoption of resolutions protesting against "the driving around of empty wagons protected by federal injunctions for the alleged purpose of inciting trouble."

For more than an hour the question of the adoption of such resolutions was the subject of heated debate. At first T. P. Quinn sent up a protest against such methods on the part of the employers, which, he declared, were for the purpose of inviting trouble, so as to bring members of the union into the federal court.

In the discussion which followed some of the delegates expressed the opinion that no attention should be given to the appearance of the wagons.

Would Protest to Roosevelt.

Steve Sumner of the milk wagon drivers provoked much applause in an "impassioned" talk for the resolution. He wanted the protest to go to Mayor Dunne, Gov. Deneen, and to President Roosevelt.

"They're none of 'em too big for me," shouted Steve.

"That's right, you bet they ain't," answered a voice. "Give it to 'em good."

"Regardless of injunctions or anything else I propose to stand on this floor and say what I think," continued Sumner. "I believe we should protest against such acts as we have just witnessed. Supposing some of us union men were to march by the Union League club building just to aggravate the club members. How long do you think it would be before they would protest?

"It is time, too, that we got down to real earnest protesting and plenty of it. It isn't the little black fellows who are brought into the city to take our places that are our worst enemy; it's men like Marshall Field, and John Shedd, and Robert Thorne. They're the ones we are after, and if they won't listen to our words, I believe we should make them listen by our acts."

An attempt to have the resolution presented to Mayor Dunne alone failed, and President Dold and Secretary Nockels were instructed to draft the protest and send a copy to the mayor, governor, and president.

Shea Says Outlook Is Favorable.

President Shea declared the strike situation was favorable to the strikers. Joseph W. Morton, chairman of the strike committee, said both sides were indulging in preliminary sparring now and it only was a question of a short time before the trouble would be settled and that the teamsters were going to win.

"Everything is progressing all right for our boys," he said. "We are going to win. The employers have found out it costs more to send a wagon out under police protection for one day than it would to run an automobile for three days at $1 an hour."

Says Merchants Are Sick of Fight.

Then Shea cheered the men on strike by telling them that strike affected houses were doing only 10 per cent of their normal business. He said the merchants were sick of the fight.

"Levy Mayer," said Shea, "boasts he has won every struggle he has been in, but I want to tell you he is going to lose this fight. He's going to find out that injunctions and indictments won't drive wagons. I want to tell you, too, that the militia don't cut much figure. The soldiers don't know the city; neither do the strike breakers. The police are directing the drivers now and the employers have come to the conclusion they can't get along without the Chicago teamsters. They have been trying to wear us out, and they have discovered they can't do it. We went out as union men and we are going back as union men.

"Another fact I want to tell is that no member of our union ever will sit on a wagon belonging to the Employers' Teaming company. That organization was created to crush us out, but it will go out of existence just as rapidly as it was born. We know now absolutely that our men can go back.

"Right here, too, I want to touch on another point. There has been a lot of talk about graft in our organization. If they have any proof of graft why don't they go before the grand jury and have the guilty persons indicted? That would be the proper way to settle that."

Asks Indictment of Employers.

John C. Harding, delegate from Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, presented the resolution asking that the president and members of the Employers' Teaming company be indicted by the grand jury "for seeking to intimidate Arthur Dixon and others and threatening to injure the business of old established transfer companies." It was adopted without discussion, and the text follows:

"Whereas, Charles Dold, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Cornelius P. Shea, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; and ten other officers of local teamsters' unions have been indicted by the grand jury of Cook county, charged with conspiracy to do an illegal act, injurious to the public trade, and by threats and suggestions of injury seeking to injure the business of Montgomery Ward & Co.; and

"Whereas, Mark Morton and other officers and members of the Employers' Teaming association are reported, on the authority of the public press, with endeavoring to intimidate the Arthur Dixon Transfer company and other Chicago transfer companies, threatening to use the influence of the employers' association with the railroad companies to have the business of said railroad companies taken away from the Arthur Dixon Transfer company and other Chicago transfer companies engaged in the business of transferring goods and merchandise and working under contracts with said railroad companies, unless the transfer companies took sides with the said Morton and the Employers' Teaming association in the present controversy of that association with the teamsters' union, and

"Whereas, The said act on the part of Morton and the Employers' Teaming association was an attempt to intimidate Arthur Dixon and other reputable Chicago business men and interfere with their business; therefore, be it

Calls on State's Attorney to Act.

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Chicago Federation of Labor that this unlawful act on the part of Mark Morton and the Employers' association be called to the attention of the state's attorney and he be respectfully requested to bring the matter to the attention of the grand jury of Cook county.

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Chicago Federation of Labor that the law is supreme, and should be made to apply to all, and that if the officers and members of labor organizations can be indicted for conspiracy to injure the business of Montgomery Ward & Co., the president and members of the Employers' Teaming company should also be indicted by the grand jury for seeking to intimidate Arthur Dixon and others and threatening to injure the business of old established transfer companies."

Would Boycott the Banks.

The matter of boycotting banks which subscribed to the employers' fund was brought up in a resolution for the appointment of a committee to find out which banks had subscribed to the $50,000 fund. A copy of a letter sent by John V. Clarke, president of the Hibernian Banking association, to W. D. C. Street, secretary of the Chicago clearing house, in which the bank official explains his reasons for refusing to contribute to the fund, was read. This letter was as follows:

"W. D. C. Street, Chicago, etc.: Your favor requesting a contribution from us on behalf of the Employers' association for the purpose of maintaining law and order in the city of Chicago received. Replying will say that this bank, while deeply regretting the conditions as now existing in our city, will not in any way change its position as expressed at the meeting referred to in your circular of the associated banks held on May 3, 1905.

"Our position is that, as a banking corporation, it is not within the sphere of its officers to appropriate the funds of the stockholders for any such purpose; and again, it is our opinion that the Employers' association was not organized wholly for the purpose of law and order, as contained in your circular, and, further, we object to the form of the resolution as implying it was the opinion of all the associated banks that this contribution should be made, while, in fact, it was the opinion of the majority only. This bank reserves the right, if occasion demands it, of placing itself before the public as voting against this resolution of contribution."

Banks Are Declared "Hostile."

The reading of Mr. Clarke's letter was followed by the passage of resolutions condemning the action of the banks as "hostile."

Delegate John C. Harding, from Typographical union No. 16, introduced the resolutions and then asked for the appointment of a committee of three to ascertain the standing of every bank in Chicago towards the present strike.

The committee consists of Mr. Harding, Ed McKeever of the tailors, and Frank Rose of the street car employés.

The resolutions were as follows:

"Whereas, The action of certain Chicago banks in contributing $50,000 to the union wrecking fund of the Employers' association is opening the eyes of officers and members of trades unions to the necessity of depositing their funds where they cannot be used by hostile banking institutions;

"Whereas, The recent defalcation of Banker Bigelow in Milwaukee and the numerous bank failures that are continually resulting from the reckless use of other people's money by dishonest bankers is opening the eyes of the general public to the absolute needs of postal savings banks in this country;

"Resolved, That the president of the Chicago Federation of Labor is hereby directed to appoint a committee of three, with power to add to their number, whose duty it shall be to devise ways and means for agitating throughout the length and breadth of the United States the passage by congress of a law establishing postal savings banks under the direct supervision and control of the United States government."

In the banks of deposit in the city, labor leaders assert, upwards of $500,000 is stored to the credit of the 200 labor unions. Added to this amount deposits of individual union men, aggregating, it is said, in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, are ready to be taken out. The loss of the whole, the union leaders believe, would prove an embarrassment to at least some of the "boycotted" banking institutions. President Dold, however, said he had no idea the action would precipitate a "run" on any bank, as the money is widely distributed.

"Hostile" banks will be visited this morning by the committee from the federation. The institutions which admit having given money to the employers' cause will be branded as "unfair." If the banks adhere to their determination, already expressed, to keep secret the identity of the institutions contributing, the labor leaders declare they will be "boycotted" any way.

The Federation of Labor will begin by withdrawing $3,000 now on deposit at one of the banks of the city and transferring the money to a "fair" institution. A number of teamsters' unions, on the advice of President Shea, will follow suit. The truck teamsters' union, it is said, is ready to remove its wealth, amounting to $60,000, from "hostile" vaults.

Large Amounts Are Involved.

The truck drivers' organization is the wealthiest of the teamsters' unions, but large sums also are declared to be credited in the banks to the coal men, the brewery drivers, and the cab drivers. President Shea is authority for the statement that the teamsters' combined wealth in the bank vaults represents more than $200,000.

"Not only will labor organizations withdraw their money," declared Secretary Nockels of the federation, "but the 200,000 trade unionists of Chicago are prepared also to protest against the hostility of certain institutions to the teamsters' strike. I believe at least half this number of workingmen will respond to the appeal we intend to send out tomorrow."

This appeal will take the form of circular letters addressed to the organized workers. Inclosed will be the communication from President Clarke of the Hibernian Banking association.

Aimed at "Noncitizen" Deputies.

T. P. Quinn presented at the federation meeting the following resolution, which was adopted:

"Whereas, It is commonly reported that noncitizens are being sworn in as peace officers in this county,

"Resolved, That the protest of the Federation of Labor be entered against the violation of the constitution and the laws of the state in appointing officers of the law who are not citizens of this state and who are not qualified to hold such positions as peace officers and request that an inquiry be had as to the reasons why this violation of law in the name of peace and order is permitted."

Other Unions Have Grievances.

The bar fixture and furniture workers announced they would demand an increase of 2 cents an hour when the next scale is signed. Department store employés reported that several union men had been discharged from The Fair because they had refused to load wagons to be driven by nonunion men. A driver for one of the department stores told of the trouble merchants experienced in attempting to deliver merchandise. "In one instance it took eight hours for a wagon to make seven stops delivering small bundles," said he.

"How does that compare with your work?" was asked.

"Between the time I leave the barn and noon I have made as high as 150 stops, and in the afternoon 100 more," he answered.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Cures Nervous Disorders

Headache, Insomnia, Exhaustion, and Restlessness. Rebuilds the nervous system.

"STRIKE" IS SERMON TOPIC.

"Horse Sense" Needed.

Laboring Men Should Use Reason, Says Dr. Dornblaser.

Referring to the strike, Dr. T. F. Dornblaser, in Grace English Lutheran church, said:

"When laboring men get a little more horse sense they will not quit one job before another is in sight. They will see clearly that every dollar lost in a sympathetic strike must be made up by the laborer himself and other innocent persons. The sympathetic striker not only loses his wages but often forfeits a good position.

"The damage to property by rioters and hoodlums must be met by the innocent taxpayers of our city. The loss of life and limb to faithful guardians of the peace and other innocent parties never will be fully compensated.

"Not infrequently a congregation dismisses its pastor and employs another at a higher salary. To stand at the church door with a shotgun to waylay his successor would not only be consummate folly but it would contradict the gospel he was trying to preach.

"There is still another phase connected with the sympathetic strike that is more alarming, and that is the opportunity it gives to anarchists and rioters to get in their work."

Condemns the Mayor.

Dr. David Beaton Says Administration Should Prevent Disgrace of the City.

"It is not our province to pass judgment on the parties to this shameful civil strife, but to look the facts in the face and learn to avoid such evils that hurt our trade and menace our liberty," said the Rev. David Beaton in his sermon in the Lincoln Park Congregational church.

"It matters not who are to blame for the quarrel, the damning indictment remains against our municipal executive, our trades unions, and our Employers' associations that they are individually and collectively incapable or criminal.

"As for the idea of a city government permitting the rioters, thugs, and mercenaries to usurp the streets to the lasting disgrace of the city, that is so preposterous and ludicrous a condition that all who are to blame for it ought to hide their heads in shame."

Strike Is a Mistake.

Continuance Is Unjustifiable, Says the Rev. R. A. White.

In the People's Liberal church Dr. R. A. White said:

"The strike was in its beginning unjustifiable. It began in a sympathetic strike and broken contracts. The continuance is unjustifiable. Every true friend of labor knows the strike was a mistake. Labor discredits itself with its best friends by waging a labor war without just cause.

"On the other hand, the employers have done some unwise things. It was unwise to bring ignorant southern negroes here to break the strike. When the strike is over the city will suffer from them. Proclamations that the unions are to be whipped into submission and destroyed are not wise. Those who make them cannot deliver the goods."

Time to End Strife.

Ministers Should Join in Peace Efforts, Says Bishop Fallows.

Bishop Fallows, preaching in St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church, said:

"There can be no arbitration of acts of intimidation, violence, or murder. But there should be a calm and thorough investigation by a competent commission of the causes which have led up to the offenses against the public peace and welfare.

"The ministers of every faith should be united with employers of labor, with labor unions, with the legal profession, and with the people at large in bringing about compulsory investigation of every industrial difference and a voluntary arbitration of the questions at issue."

Time to Call Halt.

Arbitration Must Be Tried, Says Jenkin Lloyd Jones.

Jenkin Lloyd Jones, in All Souls' church, said:

"It is time for employer and employé in Chicago to cease hostilities, to confess their sins, and to acknowledge the confusion brought about, not by one mistake but by hundreds of mistakes, not on one side but on both sides.

"Let them hasten to make amends by brotherly overtures to any wise tribunal constituted on lines mutually agreed upon and prepare themselves to abide by such decision. 'Let him who is without sin cast the first stone.'"

Coercion the Cause.

Strike Will Help Settle Workers' Status, Says Dr. Milburn.

Referring to the strike, Dr. J. A. Milburn in the Plymouth Congregational church said:

"One of the important moral positions that the settlement of the present strike will help to determine is whether the American citizen is going to be in the future what he has always been in the past, his own man or an economic slave.

"The American workingman, actuated not so much by his own will or by the sense of his own self-interest as by the coercive methods of the labor unions and the cowardly and base opportunism of party politics in city and state and nation, when confronted with the problems of the strike, is moving with huge and swift strides to an ignominous bondage."

Golden Rule Won't Do.

Dr. Bruner Says Not Cure, but Only Regulation, Is Possible.

In the Oakwoods Union church yesterday the Rev. Frank C. Bruner said of the strike:

"There is no solution of this vexed question on a basis of equality. Business can never be transacted by any ideal rule. The finite mind, we care not how accurate its thought, never can create a perfect system. Capital and labor must forever remain in antithisis. It can be regulated. That is all.

"We have had the golden rule medicine set forth by some of the practitioners of the great strike sickness. It is a good panacea if we apply it to the condition. That is the rub. Never can the golden rule antidote be effective until the mass of humanity in this industrial battle see there is nothing by which the conditions can be adequately measured.

Strikers in the Wrong.

Dr. Johonnot Says the Union Position Cannot Be Justified.

Dr. R. F. Johonnot, in Unity church, Oak Park, said of the strike:

"It is difficult to find any justification for the position taken by the striking unions. Their only arguments are those of force. They have forced an issue, not because it is right but because they think they have power to carry their ends. In this they will find themselves mistaken.

"Capitalists often are berated as grasping, soulless, and arbitrary; but in this case they are fighting for the maintenance of those rights which are personal to each man and which must be preserved at whatever cost if any liberty is to survive or any progress be possible. And in their contention the public should give them unflagging support."

Blames Strike Leaders.

Dr. Hopkins Declares Situation of Followers Is Pitiful.

Dr. Frederick E. Hopkins preached in Pilgrim Congregational church on "Some of the Reasons for Frequent Strikes." He said:

"It is pitiful to think how the faith of thousands of honest, faithful workingmen today is tied to leaders who are incompetent and weak.

"If the interview reported from the offices of the managers of the unions and of the Employers' association are correct nothing could be plainer than that men of small capacity have started a trouble they do not know how to stop."

Strong Man Needed.

Hand to Calm Storm Required, Says Dr. Guy Hoover.

In the First Christian church the Rev. Guy Hoover said:

"The conditions of life in Chicago today compel us to think of man's relations to his fellow man. As we look out upon the troubled waters of our city life we instinctively long for one who can calm the storm.

"It is not enough that men shall accept the golden rule, they must accept also the golden ruler. What society needs is regenerate hearts that will apply the golden rule in practice."

Would Drill All Boys.

Military Apprenticeship Has Real Value, Declares Dr. W. A. Bartlett.

In the First Congregational church Dr. W. A. Bartlett said of the strike:

"We boast of our freedom, but sometimes we wonder if there is not after all a mighty good in the military apprenticeship which each young man must learn. He goes to the school of law and order.

"It might be a good thing for every school boy above the age of 12 to have an hour of military drill and discipline every day under the direction of competent authorities directed by the state. There is a need for the man for the hour."

BLACK DRIVERS HAVE FUN

CRAP GAME AND PRIZE FIGHT AMUSE STRIKE BREAKERS.

Pay Received by Imported Negroes Saturday Night Rapidly Changes Hands Over the Tumbling "Bones"—Hearts Gladdened and Stomachs Filled by a Chicken Dinner—Rest from Strenuous Labor Enjoyed by Nonunion Men.

The army of strike breakers had a day off yesterday. They received half pay Saturday night, and by Sunday most of the money had changed hands. There had been a big "crap" game and a prize fight.

At 405 State street, where nearly 200 negroes are quartered, the premises were suggestive of the levee district in St. Louis. Southern "darkies," who had loafed all their lives among the cotton bales of Mississippi docks, were sunning themselves on the sidewalk, with a "nothin' doin'" expression in their eyes.

"What yo' all doin', nigga?" inquired Red Jim, emerging after his Sunday morning shave.

"O, gwan, yo' po' brack trash. We's takin' a sun bath. That's what's we's doin'."

Will Cowan "Puts on Dog."

"Yo' cullah won't fade," replied Red Jim disdainfully, as he walked across the street to the saloon.

After a breakfast of oatmeal and coffee the strike breakers had a chance to "complete their toilets." Their trunks and "balgs" had not arrived, as Supt. Hightow explained, "on account of the trouble with the express companies."

Will Cowan, however, managed to "put on a little dog." From somewhere he procured a red necktie and a checkered vest. Then he drew on a long coat, and stepped around the dormitory with a swagger.

"Whah yo' gwine, pahson? Gwine to see yo' baby?" he was asked.

"Gwine to church."

"No, you don't; not in that. Where'd yo' glomm onto my red sash?"

Pete Johnson, burly roustabout from New Orleans, carefully removed his property from the usurper, putting an end to Cowan's strutting.

As the morning advanced the rattle of "craps" monopolized the attention of the crowd.

"Come, seben; come 'lebben. Big Dick," and the "shooters" gathered around in a half dozen little groups.

"Do yo' all like pig jowl an' black eye peas?" drawled one strike breaker from Louisiana.

"Raickon I'd ought to. I wus bawn in Arkansaw," and the rattle of the dice went on.

All in Line for Chicken.

"Talkin' bout chicken wings and watah million," said the Louisianian, "ain't it 'bout time foh the dinnah bell?"

A suggestive smell came from the messroom. The eyes of the negroes brightened. It was chicken.

After dinner, to beguile the time, Red Jim got out a mandolin. "See ma potato bug?" he said, as he tuned up the twanging strings. Then, accompanied by Cowan with a cracked guitar, he sang in his plantation voice while the others "ragged":

"Yo' jess a little nigga, but yo's mine, mine, mine."

During the afternoon the strike breakers consumed innumerable "gins" at the saloon. In the evening the slum corps of the Salvation army gave them a little entertainment. At the white dormitories, 20 Lake street, the day passed quietly. The congress of all nations that was gathered there managed to get along without internal strife. The policeman on the outside reported "Nothin' doin'."

LITTLE VIOLENCE ON SUNDAY.

Man Is Injured at Employers' Barn and Several Are Assaulted at Other Places.

Strike violence was confined to minor disturbances and personal encounters yesterday.

Albert Wells, colored, a nonunion teamster, was shot in the wrist in the evening as he came from the Employers' Teaming company barn, Eighteenth and Dearborn streets. His assailant, he declared, was a union picket.

After firing into a crowd of disappearing assailants, J. Gillen, a negro, retreated to his house at 4718 Wentworth avenue last night and barricaded the doors. A riot call sent to the stockyards station brought a wagonload of police, who found the house surrounded and being pelted with stones by a dozen men. Gillen denies being a strike breaker.

While Bradley Humphreys, a colored porter, was walking in State street, near Indiana, in the evening, he was assaulted by two white men. Humphreys ran to the Criminal Court building, where he jumped down into the areaway leading to the engine room and hid behind the boilers. Sergeant Pearsall from the Chicago avenue police station rescued him.

Henry Ryan, employed as a cook in the stables of the Adams Express company, was attacked by strikers at Clinton and Adams streets and beaten into unconsciousness. He was taken to the county hospital.

James Williams, accused of assaulting Joseph Gilman, an express company employé, at Madison and Green streets, was arrested by Detectives Bonner and McDonald. Gilman was surrounded and beaten by four men said to be striking teamsters.

An argument concerning the strike ended when Stanley Bilek seized an iron bar in the home of August Powell, 523 South Morgan street, and struck the latter on the leg, breaking it. Bilek was arrested.

Four union "sluggers" invaded La Grange on Saturday—to find out that things were different there. They attacked an Adams Express delivery wogan, cutting the harness and assaulting the driver, Oscar Lindbloom. Lindbloom shouted for aid and a crowd of men and boys came to his assistance, forcing the pickets to flee. They were followed through the village and to Riverside, almost three miles away, where three were arrested. The fourth escaped by swimming the Desplaines river.

George Thomas, colored, 30 years old, 1230 Indiana avenue, was stabbed in the left eye last night by a man known to the police as T. Wells while at 1242 Indiana avenue. Thomas, the police say, is a "strike breaker" and came to Chicago from St. Louis.

WILL TRY FOR PEACE AGAIN.

"Neutral" Team Owners to Make Another Effort to Put an End to the Strike.

The committee of "neutral" team owners, consisting of Jonathan Jackson, J. M. Taft, and T. J. Cavanaugh, will make another attempt today to bring about peace.

"I do not think that the points at issue between the two factions ever have been defined clearly, and we believe that a settlement ought to be arrived at for the general good of the public," said Mr. Jackson last night.

This committee will meet President Shea this morning, after which it will seek a conference with the employers. It probably cannot carry any word to the employers except the reiteration by Shea that all his men must be taken back before any other agreements are entered into. It is not believed that Shea cares for the open shop clause, and it is known that he is ready to arbitrate in almost any fashion.

RECRUITING MEN FROM FARMS.

Experienced Drivers Engaged in Indiana Towns to Take Places of Chicago Strikers.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 7.—[Special.]—Agents of the Employers' Teaming association of Chicago are actively engaged in the small cities and larger towns of Indiana in enlisting men to take the places of striking teamsters. Care is taken to select men who are sober, quiet, and industrious.

So far as can be learned there is no attempt to conceal from the men that they are to take the places of strikers. Most of the men employed are from farms and have been used to driving wagons all their lives.

Steady employment at wages greatly in excess of pay for farm laborers is promised and hundreds are taking advantage of it to quit farms and become teamsters.

EMPLOYERS FACE FACTIONAL FIGHT

Team Owners Line Up Definitely with Labor Against the Association.

CLUB TO BE GRAND JURY.

Union Federation Demands "Conspiracy" Inquiry — Move Arouses Defiance.

Another "fight to the finish" is scheduled to begin today. It comes as a result of the attempt of the Employers' association to drag the transfer companies into the fight. It will be between the Employers' Teaming company and the Chicago Team Owner's association.

The first sign of the struggle was seen yesterday in the resolution passed by the Chicago Federation of Labor calling for a special grand jury to indict certain employers for "conspiring" against the business of the Arthur Dixon Transfer company and others.

On its outward aspect this action appeared to be a move of revenge on the part of the labor leaders under indictment for conspiring to injure the business of Montgomery Ward & Co. But these resolutions were drawn up at a secret conference between a committee of the team owners and President Shea of the teamsters' union. Their object is to frighten the employers into withdrawing the pressure which they had planned to bring today with overwhelming force upon every member of the Team Owners' association.

Team Owner Defines Position.

Said a member of the association last night:

"The attempt of the employers to force the five transfer companies into line thus far has failed utterly. Morton has failed to break the contracts which Dixon has with the railroads.

"The employers had set tomorrow as the day to start the big war upon the entire organization of team owners. These federation resolutions and the grand jury threat may serve to scare them off a little.

"Ever since this strike began the employers have appeared to recognize the fact that they needed us badly to win. J. M. Taft of the association was offered the place of superintendent of the teaming company if he would swing into line. Representatives of one State street store offered that store's contracts to a certain firm provided it would swing. Overtures were made by other firms and finally a test was made of the five firms doing the railroad transportation business. This has failed. We stick with Shea. If we give in our business would be demoralized and some other man would get it in the windup."

Are Asked to Join Employers.

The men who received the ultimatum from Secretary Job of the Employers' association were Arthur Dixon, Joseph Stockton, William P. Rend, Steven Clarke, and Christopher M. Lynch, or their agents. They were told that their attitude in falling in line with the unions and breaking contracts of delivery to "unfair" houses was not "agreeable," and that they must live up to their contracts or suffer the results.

What these "consequences" were was suggested rather than named. It was hinted that Mark Morton of the Employers' association had a voice in the distribution of the contracts for five railroads entering Chicago, and it was considered a significant thing that the men who were pounced upon do a large share of the railroad transportation of the city.

Deny Inspiring Federation Action.

The team owners generally would not admit they had "put the federation of labor up" to its conspiracy charges. Arthur Dixon was not in Chicago. In his absence his son, William Dixon, a member of the firm, denied any connection with the conspiracy charges.

"I am certain," he said, "that nothing of the sort could emanate from the team owners. We have had nothing to do with it and would not supply any evidence to the federation. We are trying to do our business under the conditions as best we can, avoiding any complications like this."

Mr. Lynch appeared to appreciate that the labor leaders were seeking to bring about something to his advantage, although denying any active effort on his part.

"I will not oppose the carrying out of these resolutions," he said, "nor will I aid the federation in getting up any evidence that the employers are trying to ruin my business. I do not believe that Mr. Morton and his associates could break my contracts."

Contracts Explained by Morton.

Mark Morton, president of the Employers' Teaming company, who was named as one of the "conspirators" threatened with indictment, said:

"Many of the team owners of this city have teaming contracts under which they are required to deliver merchandise in the city, anywhere and to anybody to whom it is consigned. To refuse to so deliver violates the words of the contract. If these team owners continue in their refusal to make deliveries, their contracts will be canceled for violation, and they have been so notified.

"If this is a crime, then, speaking as one who is not a lawyer, I should say we would commit a hundred crimes, because the members of the Employers' associations, when they make contracts, perform them, and they exact that the team owners shall do likewise."

Issue Is Plain, Says Mayer.

Levy Mayer, attorney for the Employers' association, declined to discuss in detail the charge of conspiracy made by the unions against officials of the association.

"We will not permit the issue to be clouded," he stated. "We will take good care to thwart the well known tactics of the scuttle fish which muddies the water while it escapes. The Employers' association cannot be put on the defensive. We know the methods of those who are misleading the rank and file of the teamsters.

"There is no danger of the tables being turned. The Employers' association has but one demand and it will not be driven from it. Have the members or have they not the right to a free and uninterrupted use of the streets? Shall they be permitted to select their own teamsters or shall their teamsters be slugged and waylaid because they don't carry the pass of the teamsters' council?

"Are the people of this country prepared to surrender the reins of municipal government into the irresponsible hands of a teamsters' strike committee? It is slapping the truth in the face for any one, whether he be a mayor, or otherwise, to say there is no violence and that everything is peaceable in this city.

AN ARTISTIC INSTRUMENT for DISCRIMINATING BUYERS

D. H. BALDWIN & CO MAKERS 267-269 Wabash Ave.

It's a strange fact that a man who would throw your gold brick at your head if you tried to sell him one will walk into a clothing store and calmly pay the price of all-wool-and-silk and accept the "mercerized cotton" cheat.

The clothier may plainly tell him it contains "mercerized cotton"; "a few threads; they look just like silk"; actually makes him think it's all right and pockets the added profit cheerfully.

Or the buyer may take the "mercerized cotton" adulteration ignorantly; there are some dealers who will let him do so.

In either case the result is the same: the wearer gets left. But he doesn't deserve any sympathy; he can have all-wool if he wants it; nobody feels sorry for a man who gets "flim-flammed."

Our label means all-wool; it's a small thing to look for, a big thing to find.

The Club of Queer Trades

For this unique series of tales by Gilbert K. Chesterton, the reviewers have some novel phases to voice their enthusiasm: "As different," says one, "from the average mass of fiction as Cheddar cheese is from chalk." "A succession of pin-pricks that literally tickle us to laughter," says another. "Cold truths out of place—a most diverting book."

It it a highly ingenious idea—the Club of Queer Trades—and makes a book for all lovers of adventure and mystery tales.

AMERICA AS AID TO WORLD PEACE

Holds Balance of Power in Europe by New Alignment of Nations.

KAISER SEEKS AN ALLY.

Flirting with Uncle Sam in Hope of Making Isolation Less Lonely.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—A new adjustment of the relations existing between the nations of Europe has affected American interests to a degree not appreciated in circles outside the administration and diplomatic corps.

The United States has become the balance of power in the old world, as it has been for five years the balance in the far east. Russia's preoccupation of Manchuria, the Anglo-French entente relating to Morocco, which has shaken the alliance existing between Russia and France; Germany's hostile relations toward Great Britain and vigorous opposition to French designs upon Moorish territory; weakening of the triple alliance as a result of the international troubles in Austria, and the agreement made by Italy with France respecting Mediterranean questions—all these occurrences have brought about a great change in the political situation in Europe.

Germany Seeks Counterpoise.

Great Britain and France have used Morocco as a means to apprise the world, and especially Germany, that their old differences are forgotten, and they propose to act together on other questions besides that of the Moor. Germany must have a counterpoise to England, which explains the assiduous court paid to the United States. England and France cannot afford to have the United States join Germany. Hence their recent efforts to assure this government that France had no intention of acquiring Moorish territory or closing the door of that kingdom.

The United States has been forced into an important though delicate situation as a result of these recent developments in old world politics. Germany sought to obtain our moral assistance by inducing us to align ourselves, morally at least, upon her side in connection with the Morocco question. No answer yet has been returned to the declarations she made in regard to that question, and Baron von Sternburg, the German ambassador, in framing his note to this government, was careful to put it in such a way as to leave the United States free to make a response or not as it saw fit.

It was learned today that all the powers of Europe save Great Britain and France have declared themselves in favor of the open door and the territorial integrity of Morocco; but there seems to be some question as to the real attitude of Italy and of Spain, whose king proposes to visit Paris. Spain always had a dream of extending her sovereignty over Morocco. She was invited by France and England to approve the Anglo-French entente respecting that country, but refused to do so, and to avert its absorption by her neighbor gave adherence to the principles enunciated by the German emperor.

Visit of Spain's King Significant.

In fact the king of Spain intends to make an official visit to Paris in spite of differences which have arisen, and it is considered significant, for the reason that the French government undoubtedly will take advantage of his presence to arrange some sort of a settlement. The effect will be to leave Germany without a single friend in Europe save Russia, which is too engrossed with Japan to concern herself as she otherwise would with the situation in Europe.

"There is no doubt now," said an ambassador of the European court to THE TRIBUNE correspondent today, "that the Anglo-French entente has far greater scope than was believed when it was signed. Russia regarded the agreement as the entering wedge to split the alliance existing between herself and France. Her representatives spoke to Delcasse to this effect, but they always were reassured that the only purpose the Paris government had in view in making the agreement with England was to settle the Mediterranean question and prevent the extension of the war in the far east to other powers. 'Why,' said Delcasse, 'that agreement will enable us to act as the friend of both powers and to remove the differences between them.'

"There has been no such result. What happened is the suspicion which has grown in Russia's mind as to what France and Great Britain really propose to do. France has given the Russian fleet now in the China sea certain advantages in connection with the use of French waters for coaling and refitting purposes. To this extent she lived up to the alliance with Russia.

Kaiser's Action Assures Czar.

"Germany cleverly freed herself from Russian pressure by acting as the good friend of Russia in supplying her with all kinds of war material and giving such assurances that the St. Petersburg government has considered itself free to denude its western frontier of troops and guns. If Germany and France were to have trouble over Morocco, Russia would preserve neutrality and Great Britain could be of little assistance to the French government. Against the allied British and French fleets Germany could do nothing.

"Great Britain does not want war. If war must come she wants to be out of it and let somebody else bear the brunt of the conflict just as she did in the far east. The world will remember that Japan never would have gone to war with Russia if Great Britain had not signed the alliance with her. Great Britain's object, of course, was to prevent Russia from obtaining an outlet to the unfrozen Pacific, and she used Japan as an instrument to that end. Her relations with Germany have been badly strained for some time. In fact, the two nations have been on the verge of war. Great Britain does not want war with Germany; at least, she doesn't wish to fight a duel with her Teutonic neighbor. France presented herself as the readiest means to restrain Germany, or, if not restrain her, wage war against her ostensibly in behalf of her own ambitions but really to aid England."

Has Bearing on China's Fate.

With the relations of the European powers undergoing such an important transformation the authorities here have been endeavoring to gauge the effect when negotiations respecting the termination of the Russo-Japanese war begin. The United States is vitally interested in this aspect of the situation, because the fate of China then will be determined. It is considered fortunate that Secretary Hay should be at this time in the atmosphere of Europe, where he has an opportunity to absorb the feelings and aspirations of the several states. He also is conferring with representatives of various American embassies, one of whom, Spencer Eddy, secretary of the embassy at St. Petersburg, is now at Bad Nauheim, telling the secretary what he has learned regarding Russia's internal situation and chances of peace. It is known positively here that Russia will not consider peace until after the question of the supremacy of the sea has been determined, and this cannot take place before three weeks at the utmost.

Much Depends on Sea Fight.

It is therefore difficult to define Russia's policy in advance of that event. If Rojestvensky gain command of the sea diplomats here are confident the war will result in Russia's acquisition of Manchuria. Germany will not oppose such a consummation, although she has made declarations in favor of the integrity of China, but count von Bülow, premier of the German government, has stated time and time again that Emperor Wilhelm never included Manchuria within the scope of his declaration. France also excepted Manchuria from her declarations in regard to Chinese integrity, but Great Britain now may exercise pressure upon her which will be important in the negotiations. The United States will make it a point to get every nation it can enlisted upon the side of the restoration of Manchuria to China, whichever belligerent shall be the victor, and will also endeavor to minimize the influence which the successful power may wish to wield at Peking. The administration is fishing in troubled waters, but it is hoped the antagonism which developed among the European states may cause them to throw themselves more eagerly into the American net in the hope of securing assistance from us.

Striking Teamsters Resting Near Their Headquarters.

DENIES PLOT AGAINST BRAZIL.

Sarrion de Herrera Claims He Is Duly Accredited Envoy of the Republic of Counani.

MADRID, May 7.—Sarrion de Herrera, former king at arms of the Spanish court, and who is charged with conspiring against the government of Brazil, was interrogated by a magistrate today. De Herrera maintained that Counani has been recognised as an independent state since 1872, and that the recruiting of men in Europe for the service of that state is perfectly legal. He denied the existence of a plot against Brazil. He says he has been residing in Madrid for two years in the capacity of minister for Counani to Spain, Morocco, and the holy see.

The territory of Counani was the subject of a dispute between France and Brazil from 1713 to 1897, when it was decided to submit the question involved to the arbitration of the Swiss government, which on Dec. 1, 1900, rendered a decision awarding Brazil 147,000 square miles of the contested territory and France about 3,000 square miles.

In February of last year Adolphe Brezet, claiming to be president of the "republic of Counani," arrived in Paris seeking recognition of his alleged government by France, alleging that the people of Counani refused to accept the decision of the arbiter.

PAPACY AND ITALY TO AGREE?

Pamphlet Issued at Rome Interpreted as Showing Conciliatory Plan of Vatican.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1905: By the New York Herald.]

ROME, May 7.—A pamphlet has been published by Mgr. Patrizi on the relation of the papacy and the kingdom of Italy, which is taken to be a sign of the desire on the part of the vatican for an agreement with the Italian government. In the article it is laid down that such a sum should be guaranteed to the pope as should assure his independence.

The pamphlet is much discussed in newspaper and political circles, and it is considered, that such official conciliation would be dangerous for both sides.

One of the conditions mentioned is that the Italian government should pay the papacy an amount guaranteed under the law of 1871, offering an annual payment of $3,200,000 lire ($640,000), which would now amount to 110,000,000 lire ($22,000,000), but it is predicted that the government would not now be willing to grant such a sum. Its refusal to pay the accumulated arrears, as the vatican refused the proposal at the time, would be generally sustained by popular objection.

ITALIAN AUTOBOAT WINS RACE.

Fiat Makes 250 Mile Run from Algiers to Port Mahon in Fifteen Hours.

[Copyright: 1905: By the New York Herald.]

PORT MAHON, Island of Minorca, May 7.—The Italian autoboat racer Fiat, one of the seven which left Algiers at 6 o'clock in the morning in a speed contest, arrived here this evening. It covered the 250 miles in 15 hours. The French boat Camille, Mme. du Gast steering, arrived three hours later. Lewis Nixon's Gregory, which was to have represented the United States in the contest, was not present. Every precaution was taken to prevent mishap, two cruisers and seven torpedo boat destroyers accompanying the racers. The weather was fine. A curious fact is that the Fiat was disqualified by the committee because it was thought too small and was only allowed to start at its own risk.

GARIBALDI MUSEUM IS OPENED.

French Delegates to Hugo Monument Unveiling in Rome Assist in Italian Ceremonies.

ROME, May 7.—The French delegation which came here for the unveiling of the monument to Victor Hugo on Saturday assisted today, together with the Italian authorities, the veteran Garibaldian survivors, at the inauguration of a Garibaldian museum next to the altar erected as a memorial of the battle of Mentana, twelve miles from Rome, where, in 1867, Gen. Garibaldi's volunteers were defeated by the French troops defending the papacy.

100 RUSSIANS KILLED IN CLASH

Attempt to Move a Post on the Persian Frontier Results in Bloodshed.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 7.—Persian frontier reports state that the governor of Ardebil has been recalled to Teheran in consequence of an attempt to move the frontier post at Beljasuwara into Russian territory. A conflict with the Russian frontier guard occurred, in which it is reported 100 Russians were killed.

JAPS MOVING ON KIRIN.

OYAMA WITH 390,000 MEN BEGINS HIS ADVANCE.

Russian Outposts Driven In by Mikado's Troops, Who Have Marched Nearly Seventy-five Miles Since May 1—Linevitch's Lines Forced Back to the Northward — Thirty Thousan. Chinese Bandits Said to Be Aiding in Movement.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, May 7.—The Japanese armies apparently have begun the advance on Kirin. The forward movement began on April 29, and as a result the Russian lines, which formerly held to the form of a crescent, with the left resting upon Erdagou, 125 miles southeast of Kirin, and the right west of Shahedzi, on the railroad sixty miles northwest of Tie Pass, have been straightened.

The Japanese occupied Erdagou on May 5, having advanced forty miles northward from Tunghua since May 1.

The entire Japanese force under Field Marshal Oyama is estimated at 390,000 men, aided by 30,000 Chinese bandits, the latter officered and trained by Japanese, and armed with rifles captured from Kouropatkin during the battle of Mukden.

DETAILS OF JAP ADVANCE.

CADGEYADANA, Manchuria, May 7.—Since April 29 the Japanese have been advancing slowly and intermittently, pushing forward their columns successively from right to left under cover of a screen of cavalry and Chinese bandits. The advance has resulted in straightening the alignment of the opposing armies, Russian detachments which were far advanced on the flanks being forced to retire.

Erdagou, to the eastward, was occupied May 5, but under pressure by the Russians the Japanese later evacuated the place. On the left the Russian cavalry retired behind the Liao river, the Japanese occupying Palaotun, Sanlingan, and Batrya.

The village of Shahedzi, on the railroad north of Changtufu, has been occupied and burned by the Japanese.

There was a sharp brush with Chinese bandits on the extreme Russian right today.

It is reported that the Japanese armies in the center have been reinforced. The force at Field Marshal Oyama's disposal, according to information recently received, is 348 battalions or 390,000 men.

The Japanese are said to have armed 25,000 or 30,000 Chinese bandits with captured Russian rifles. The Chinese population has been drafted by the Japanese for road making and intrenching and roads are being constructed to Sihminpu, Banchensee, and Nanga pass.

REPORTS AT TOKIO.

TOKIO, May 7, 9 a. m.—The following official report has been received from Manchurian army headquarters:

"Our force advanced north from Tunghua, dispersed the enemy's cavalry, and occupied Kouyatai, twenty-eight miles north of Tunghua, last Monday.

"Our force advanced toward Fenchua from Fakoman and dispersed the enemy in the vicinity of Erhsiaotun and Tasiactun, thirty miles northeast of Fakoman, on May 4, and occupied Papaotun (Palitoun) on the evening of May 4."

FLEETS TO JOIN MAY 9.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, May 7.—Assuming that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky meditates a speedy junction of his squadron with Vice Admiral Nebogatoff's division, it is believed here that the meeting of the ships may be expected by Tuesday, May 9, the speed of Nebogatoff's division being only about seven knots an hour. These ships are believed to be in need of coal and stores, and their deficiencies in this respect probably will be supplied by Vice Admiral Rojestvensky at some friendly port after the two admirals effect a juncture.

GIBBONS APPEALS FOR UNITY.

Cardinal Denounces Schism and Says Churches Should Unite Under One Head, the Catholic.

Baltimore, Md., May 7.—[Special.]—Cardinal Gibbons preached a remarkable sermon on church unity in the cathedral this morning. He said heresy and schism are opposed to Christian unity and that unity of government is not less essential to the church than unity of doctrine.

"Our Savior," he said, "never speaks of his churches, but of his church. He does not say: 'Upon this rock I will build my churches,' but 'upon this rock I will build my church.' From these words we must conclude that it never was his intention to establish or sanction various conflicting denominations, but one corporate body, with all the members united under one visible head.

"God could not be the author of various opposing systems of religion. God is essentially one. Where, then, shall we find this essential unity of faith and government? I answer, nowhere save in the Catholic church with her one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one creed, and the same unity that exists in the matters of faith pertains to the church government."

Guarding a Delivery Wagon.

Policemen in light buggies were seen driving about the streets yesterday, sometimes apparently guarding delivery wagons and sometimes merely inspecting conditions in districts where there has been violence recently.

CRIME REIGNS ON WEST SIDE WHILE THE POLICE ARE AWAY.

Four Robberies and Holdups in the Desplaines Street District Are Reported Within Three Hours.

Inadequate police protection on the west side resulted in four robberies being reported within three hours yesterday. Charles J. Grattan, 184 South Morgan street, was seized by two men at Adams and Green streets at 8 p. m. and robbed of $18 and a watch.

Rudolph Lamberdt, 97 South Clinton street, was attacked by four men while leaving his residence and compelled to hand over $5 and a watch. Edward Kohlnesch, Earl Clement, and John Sorabora were arrested and identified by the victim.

At Jefferson and Harrison streets John Johnson, 10 South Clark street, was held up and robbed of a watch and $6 by two men. He was severely beaten with slungshots. Louis Larson was arrested and identified.

Masked holdup men stepped from a doorway at Randolph and Halsted streets at 11 p. m. and confronted William Mychalzenski, 38 Cobienz street. They took $32 and compelled the victim to board a passing car.

While on a street car at Ashland avenue and Eighteenth street pickpockets jostled John Cerveny, 141 West Nineteenth street, and took a wallet containing $18. A passenger attempted to seize them. He was thrown from the car, and before the victim had learned he had been robbed the thieves escaped.

TWO BOYS SERIOUSLY HURT.

One Injured by Fall from a Tree and the Other Accidentally Shot in the Abdomen.

Edward Trepton, 16 years old, 120 Burling street, was probably fatally injured yesterday by a fall when a branch of a tree on which he was sitting broke. His right shoulder was dislocated and two of his ribs broken.

Paul Stearns, 6 years old, 17 Lowell place, was shot in the abdomen yesterday by a revolver which he accidentally knocked from a shelf. He was taken to the county hospital.

YOUNG WOMAN SPEEDS AUTO AND IS CAUGHT BY POLICE.

Miss I. M. Richardson, Chicago, Comes to Grief in Evanston by Going After a Short Distance Record.

The first girl to be arrested for violating the Evanston automobile ordinance was captured yesterday.

Charged with driving her automobile one-eighth of a mile in twenty-seven seconds, Miss I. M. Richardson, 1888 Diversey boulevard, was taken in charge. At first she protested indignantly against the action of the police, but finally went to the station. There she again objected and flatly refused to enter the building. The police were puzzled, and the situation was becoming embarrasing, when G. K. Richardson, the young woman's father, who accompanied her, persuaded her to submit.

Miss Richardson was released on bonds signed by her father, and they continued on their way to Chicago. The arrest was made in Ridge avenue.

Others arrested in Evanston on similar charges are:

Harry Stone, 168 West Twelfth street, Chicago, driver for R. C. Jennings.
W. E. Foster, 236 La Salle avenue, Chicago.
R. F. Morris, 2586 Paulina street, Chicago.
H. H. Hunter, 229 Kedzie avenue, Evanston.
A. L. Aldrich, 218 La Salle avenue, Chicago.

DESPONDENT ARTIST KILLS HIMSELF WITH RAZOR SLASH.

Hopeless Because of His Ill Health and Recent Separation from His Wife.

James K. Hasburg, an artist, 34 years old, committed suicide yesterday by cutting his throat with a razor at the Home for Incurables, Fifty-sixth street and Ellis avenue.

According to John W. Hasburg, president of the Hasburg Chemical company, 244 Lincoln avenue, a brother of the man who killed himself, the artist and his wife separated six months ago, and soon after the separation Hasburg was taken to the Home for Incurables, as he was suffering from an advanced stage of consumption. He became worse and gradually the man grew more and more despondent.

"My brother had been in poor health for some time," said John W. Hasburg yesterday. "I think his suicide was due to despondency over his illness rather than trouble with his wife. His wife lives in Chicago, but I do not know where."

RUSSIA TIRES OF SLAVERY

LIBERAL LEADER DECLARES EMPIRE IS NEAR REVOLUTION.

Aim of Present Political Movement for Freedom Is the Abolition of the Autocratic-Bureaucratic Form of Government and Its Replacement by a Free Constitutional System—All Classes Joining in the Demand for Liberty.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 15.—[Correspondence.]—Russia's only hope is in the abolition of the bureaucracy and the erection of a free constitutional government. Otherwise, the empire is on the eve of a violent and terrible revolution.

So declares a prominent liberal leader, who had a large share in drafting the famous zemstvos memorial. His name cannot be printed—for his own safety's sake—but after the "bloody Sunday" of Jan. 22, when the liberals were talking of a provisional government, his name was on every lip. Should this be a constitutional regime in Russia his name and fame will loom large.

Writing of the present Russian political movement from the standpoint of a radical representative from the interior of Russia, he said:

"The aim of the present movement for freedom in Russia is the abolition of the autocratic-bureaucratic governmental régime and its replacement by a free constitutional system.

"The significance of the open agitation for freedom is enormous. It means the people will no longer hesitate before an open struggle for freedom. All classes of the population have become possessed by the thirst for a new, free life, the working class, the intelligent classes of all professions and ages, the zemstvo, the commercial and industrial classes, and even, to a large extent, the nobility.

Only the Peasantry Sleeps.

"Only the peasantry, perhaps, still sleeps, an unawakened giant, chained with poverty and ignorance. But this giant, too, will soon be aroused. All its life, full of trouble and oppression at every step, and above all its agrarian needs form a too fertile soil for discontent with the existing organization of slavery and for the thirst for a new, better, and freer one.

"The existing organization, founded upon popular ignorance and lawlessness, is fatally more and more deepening the immemorial abyss of social enmity in the country between the poor, starving peasantry and the rich land owning class of the privileged nobility.

"Even the army, that eternal buttress of our absolutism, is receiving on the fields of Manchuria and in the streets of St. Petersburg, Warsaw, Riga, and other cities a political education and is learning to appraise at its true value that order in the name of which it is itself obliged to face the enemy's bullets and fire upon its brothers, fathers, and children.

"How deep and abiding is the movement for freedom may be judged by the determination and the self-sacrifice with which thousands of unarmed proletarians faced bullets in the streets of St. Petersburg and other cities, by the decisive protests against the régime made by hitherto peaceful and timid provincials.

No Return to Slavery.

"Only one end is possible to the fight for freedom which has begun—the attainment of freedom. The return to slavery is impossible. The war in the far east cannot end in victory, and this fact renders the bureaucracy powerless to turn back the wheel of time.

"The whole life of the country is at a standstill. The state is involved in unpayable debts. The bureaucracy is already unable to mend matters by its own strength. It must inevitably turn to the popular will and to public activity. If the bureaucracy should not have sufficient perspicacity to do this and continue to stubbornly endeavor to go back, then a catastrophe to the played out administrative system is inevitable.

"The public forces, brought to the boiling point, are psychologically no longer able to remain in the iron boiler. They will burst it.

Revolution Will Be Terrible.

"This threatens the country with violent and terrible disorder unprecedented in history. The Russian revolution will be proportionately more terrible than other European revolutions, as the despotism of the Russian bureaucracy has been darker and the ignorance of the populace deeper than anywhere else in Europe.

"For this reason the intelligent, better forces of the country ought at the present time to direct all their strength toward the creation of a powerful public opinion, under the pressure of which the government would inevitably have to yield. All the elements for the creation of such a public opinion are present. The question is, will the government recognize this in time? The answer to this question will determine the fate of Russia."

MOB TEARS POLICE TO PIECES.

Workmen in Russian City, Angered by Death of One of Their Number, Take Quick Revenge.

KATHERINBURG, Russia, May 7.—In revenge for the death of a workman who was drowned in attempting to escape from a patrol, a mob of workmen gathered and tore to pieces two police officers.

Railway Employes Organize.

MOSCOW, May 7.—The employes of all the railways of Russia have formed a league for the defense of their interests.

Some Rioting in Warsaw.

WARSAW, May 7.—This city today celebrated the name day of Empress Alexandra Feodrona. The socialist warnings not to display flags was generally disregarded in view of the heavy penalties imposed upon householders who fail to decorate their houses on such occasions. This led to some disturbances, an angry mob tearing down and burning flags at different places. Otherwise the city was quiet.

CLAIMS SURPLUS GOES TO PEOPLE.

Alexander Says Policy Holders Reap All Benefits of Equitable Earnings.

DENIES HE WILL RESIGN.

Hyde's Counsel Calls President's Letter Palpable Effort to Anticipate Serious Charges.

New York, May 7.—James W. Alexander, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, tonight made public a letter written by him to Edward A. Woods, manager at Pittsburg, in which he asserts that the surplus of the company is held for the exclusive benefit of its policy holders and not the holders of the stock. Mr. Alexander also takes occasion in the letter to deny the rumors that he will resign. It was written under date of yesterday in reply to a request from Mr. Woods for a confirmation of certain official statements made by the Equitable regarding "the mutual plan of its business and the exclusive ownership of the policy holders of the surplus."

Mr. Alexander says in part: "I recognize that, for the benefit of present and future policy holders of the society, there should be at this time some clear and unequivocal expression on this subject, and, without reviewing all the society's statements on this subject, I consider that there can be no doubt as to three facts:

"First, that the business of the society has been conducted in accordance with its charter, since the date of its organization, on the mutual plan; second, that the profits of the society have been accumulated for its policy holders; and, third, that the surplus of the society is held for the exclusive benefit of its policy holders.

"I do not recall any serious question having ever arisen on these points until recently, when a claim has been put forward on behalf of the stock which is at variance with the terms of the society's charter, the uniform course of its business, and all its official and unofficial statements and representations. This is not merely my own understanding and opinion, but is confirmed by Mr. Van Cise, who, as you know, has been in the service of the society for nearly forty years, most of the time as its actuary."

Sees No Need of Apprehension.

He then quotes from a letter written by Mr. Van Cise to the society's manager at Albany in response to formal inquiries from the latter on the subject of the surplus. In this, under date of May 5, Mr. Van Cise says:

"As an officer of the Equitable Life Assurance society I fully agree with you as to the truth of the following statements in regard to the Equitable:

"1. That the business has always been, and must always be, conducted on the mutual plan.

"2. That the entire surplus belongs to policy holders exclusively.

"3. That each participating policy will receive its due share of surplus profits, in accordance with the terms of each contract, respectively.

"4. That the agents, in soliciting business on this basis, have acted with due authority; and

"5. That the policy holders have no ground for apprehension or doubt in the premises.

"For about thirty years I had the privilege of being associated as one of the subordinate officers with Henry B. Hyde, the founder and late president of the society, and my recollection is that in his declarations, both verbal and in writing, he always stated that the business of the Equitable was transacted on the mutual plan, and that the stockholders could not receive more than the dividend of $7,000 per annum on their capital stock, which was provided for by the charter.

Hyde Honest, He Says.

"Mr. Hyde always directed me to apportion surplus to policy holders, when entitled by their contracts to such apportionment on the basis of its all belonging to policy holders, and he was very much averse to any reduction of dividends unless such reduction was found to be absolutely necessary in accordance within our experience.

"As actuary and assistant actuary of the society, I have had special charge during more than twenty-five years of the apportionment of surplus to holders of deferred dividend contracts at the end of their dividend periods, and, in making such apportionments, I have always proceeded upon the assumption that the entire surplus of the society belonged to its policy holders."

"These statements," continues Mr. Alexander in his letter "are literally true. They should set at rest all doubts, and quiet an agitation which should never have arisen and is naturally disturbing the society's policy holders and agents.

"No greater emphasis could be given to the fact that the Equitable Life Assurance society is really a mutual life insurance company, in which the interests and rights of the policy holders are recognised as paramount, than the success of the recent effort to confer upon the policy holders the right of electing a majority of the society's directors.

Personal Regime Checked.

"It will follow that the personal proprietary regime within the society must succumb to the checks and restraints necessarily involved in this passage of control to the policy holders, and many of the abuses and irregularities, which are now in course of elimination, cannot thereafter occur. It should be a source of confidence to every one interested in the society that the correction of all conditions hurtful in tendency or effect is being accomplished within the society itself.

"Do not be deceived by rumored suggestions of my resignation as president of the society. They proceed from interested sources and are intended to discredit and defeat the principle of mutualization. Although no one appreciates better than I the sensitive character of a life insurance company's credit and the great importance of its hold upon public confidence, I firmly believe that the fact that the society proposes to take care of itself and to work out its own reforms will afford the best possible guaranty of its inherent strength and the security of its future."

When Mr. Alexander's letter was read over the telephone to Mr. Untermyer, counsel for Vice President Hyde, He said:

"Nobody is likely to be deceived by this palpable attempt to anticipate the serious charges on which the removal of Mr. Alexander is about to be asked for betraying his trust."

REFORM A JONAH FOR LEGISLATION.

How Zeal of Know-It-All Enthusiasts Blocked and Ruined Various Bills.

DENEEN'S IRE IS AROUSED.

Sends a Tart Message to Union League Club Reformers—Hampered by Outsiders.

Civil Service Wins by Miracle.

By industrious work over civil service the reformers delayed and jeopardized the other measures for which the administration was working. Under these circumstances it is admitted to be a miracle that there is any civil service act in existence now.

Gov. Deneen washed his hands of the whole business after the reformers had almost succeeded in breaking up the organization. It is declared on authority that the civil service law would have included the penitentiaries and the grain office at least if the civil service reformers had not interfered.

The moment it became apparent in the legislature, that the comprehensive civil service bill No. 218 was in danger the reformers started out with a club and a horn and the legislative halls resounded. W. G. Moulton, president of the Civil Service Reform association, had indorsed the other civil service bill, No. 121, and it had been the first introduced. For that reason Mr. Moulton occupied an unenviable position when the other members of the organization refused to stand by the statements he had made and went out after No. 218 or nothing.

Deneen tried to handle both the reformers and the legislature for awhile, but without success. Having to choose between one or the other, he passed up the reformers and stuck to the legislature, which had the advantage in being able to pass laws. Civil service was not the only act that the governor wanted passed.

For a man not naturally inclined to impulsive action and not disposed to rend his garments and sit in sackcloth and ashes, after the manner of patriarchs of old, every time the gas bill was too high or something else went wrong, the governor has a temper which is like a buzz saw when it does get started.

Here's a Bit of Secret History.

There was a movement put on foot by the political action committee of the Union League club to hold a session over civil service and to adopt resolutions containing a veiled but effective wallop at Deneen and his methods.

By veiling the whack, it was made none the less effective, and to the governor none the less offensive. To start the movement, Secretary Frederick Greeley sent out notices that the meeting would be held and inclosed copies of the resolution which it was proposed should be adopted.

In this it was recited that both political parties had pledged themselves to the enactment of a comprehensive civil service law, but that the legislature, having before it such a bill, was about to pass a narrow bill applying only to charitable institutions. With "whereases" to this effect the resolutions were as follows:

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Union League club regards with disappointment this evidence of reaction in the state legislature, and earnestly urges the substitution of the comprehensive, and thorough bill for that reported by the committee of the house, to the end that the state of Illinois may have all departments of its government freed from the influences of partisan or factional politics; that the employés whose duties have no political character may hereafter be appointed and promoted solely on the basis of merit and their fitness for the performance of the duties to which they may be assigned, and that the civil service of the state may receive the improvement that has come to the civil service of the nation and of the states of Massachusetts and New York, under less thorough and practical laws than that proposed by the bill above referred to.

RESOLVED, That we respectfully request the members of the legislature to vote for the bill applicable to all state employés, and that we further urge his excellency, Gov. Deneen, to honor his high office by giving his personal and official endorsement to this bill in accordance with the pledge of the convention which nominated him to the governorship.

Deneen Gets His Dander Up.

It was the latter "Resolved" that made Deneen mad. The request that he "honor his high office," that he give his "personal and official indorsement" to the bill, and the veiled demand that he live up to his promises, started the aforementioned temper.

In view of the fact that the governor was endeavoring to work through at least two measures highly distasteful to the average member personally, and that to be successful demanded the highest qualities of tact and party leadership, the suggestion that he lend his personal and official indorsement to this measure, which was one of the two, was gratuitous.

He was sent a copy of the resolutions. His answer was prompt. According to one of the representatives who is conversant with the facts, Deneen told the civil service reformers "to go plum to."

"If any such meeting as is proposed by the Union League club be held," he is reported as saying, "and if any such resolutions as those suggested be adopted, there will not be a bit of civil service legislation become a law in this state for four years. I will veto every measure that comes to me. I am here for four years, and after that the deluge."

Enthusiasts "Back Water."

Such tidings were carried back to the Union League club political action committee and there was a manifest falling off in the eagerness to take long range action on legislation.

E. A. Bancroft, who, with William Kent, Walter Fisher, and others, was the moving civil service reformer, urged that the club still should take some action. By considerable scurrying about thirty members were gathered together and resolutions were drafted. After they had been adopted they were submitted to cooler heads and everything which could be held offensive by the greatest liberality of interpretation was stricken out.

The expurgated and harmless declaration of principles by the club was then handed out for print. The aforementioned "cooler heads" had done their work so well that there was nothing in the resolutions which attracted the slightest bit of attention.

Deneen went unrebuked even by inference.

Western Starr Blazes Forth.

As the bills before the legislature reached their critical stages the reformer lobbies continued to descend on Springfield by night trains and continued to appear in committees and in the governor's office demanding the comprehensive bill.

On one occasion Walter L. Fisher and W. G. Moulton, president of the Civil Service Reform league, were accompanied by Western Starr, who has defended suspended civil service employés in Chicago for many years, and by other civil service reformers. This lobby sought the governor in his office, and Starr began to twist the lion's whiskers at once. He was ready also to step on the lion's tail and pull out his mane by handsful if need be.

The discussion became animated, and finally Mr. Starr danced up and down before Deneen's desk, shaking his fist and shouting. With his knuckles cutting the air in circles under Deneen's nose, he vociferated:

"We won't accept this narrow bill if you pass it. We won't accept house bill 121. We won't accept it."

This was a critical moment in the history of civil service legislation, and Deneen shuddered when he thought of the possibility of both branches of the house passing the bill and of its being signed, only to be rejected by Western Starr and the other reformers. He leaned back in his chair and looked at the energetic Mr. Starr.

"I hope you won't veto it before it is passed," he said.

Thereupon this particular conference broke up suddenly, and Starr went before the civil service committee, where he attacked the governor because once upon a time he had taken him a case while Deneen was state's attorney and it had been sent to a justice of the peace court for a tryout. There it had the bottom knocked out of it, but Starr never forgave Deneen for not indicting the man against whom he brought suit. He used this before the committee as an illustration of Deneen's methods.

Call Truce to Cool Off.

It was about this time that the reform lobby set the republican steering committee by the ears to such an extent that no member of it could mention civil service without foaming at the mouth. As a result an armistice of a week had to be agreed on to allow tempers to cool down and to allow the members of the steering committee to reach a state of mind where they could discuss house bill 121 and 218 without expletives.

By the time this truce was ended and negotiations were begun again another ingredient had appeared in the broth. George E. Cole came to Springfield. Cole was the original "gas reformer." He was the first man to come down from Chicago talking gas legislation. Up to that time Mr. Fisher had been merely a civil service reformer and had not taken up the gas question.

Cole wanted the gas bill passed and he also wanted the anti-policy bill passed. The latter had been prepared by the Citizens' association and both Mr. Cole and Secretary Singleton were active in its behalf. Cole also was interested in the various Chicago charter bills.

By the time he had walked around the state house a few times he discovered that there were too many people wanting too many things in Springfield, and that to realize all the wishes would require a general assembly of archangels.

Therefore Cole commenced to undermine Fisher. The latter by this time was the active remnant of the civil service reform lobby, and, being the most tactful and resourceful of the lot, was having better success alone than he had attended by the rest of the reformers.

Mr. Cole is not above using a few mild expletives to ornament a conversation, and he used a few of his mild ones in describing what he thought of the reformers who had balled up the whole situation by insisting that they be given the earth with a whitewashed fence around it.

Absolution for One Good Vote.

As father confessor of the legislature he promised absolution to every member who passed house bill 121, the narrow bill, provided he voted right on gas, anti-policy, and other good measures. He announced that when the report of the Legislative Voters' league came out no member would be put among the black sheep simply because he voted against the comprehensive civil service measure, house bill 218.

With this encouragement from Cole the representatives began to lend a deaf ear to Fisher. The legislature, in reality, was in a predicament. With either dear charmer away it might have been perfectly happy with the other, but here was Cole saying one thing and Fisher saying another.

Between the two the members inclined to Cole because he offered the easiest proposition. They do say in Springfield, where unkind things get said every once in awhile, that Mr. Cole wanted to spike Mr. Fisher's guns, and that a little professional jealousy among reformers was the cause of the difference of opinion. This is unfair to Cole, who, being a little less visionary and a little more practical than many reformers, saw that the cause of reform couldn't get gas, electric light, charter, increased bonding power, municipal ownership, anti-policy, civil service, primary law, and a hundred other bills through—not through this legislature.

If the legislature let loose of three or four good bills that would be about its limit, and to insist on all was to run the chance of losing all.

Cole did undermine Fisher and civil service went down in a pit, where it was covered over. The house passed the narrow bill and sent it over to the senate.

Now there was a chance to amend the bill in the senate and make it cover the penitentiaries and the grain office, but the reformers either gave up hope when they looked at the senate Gibraltar or else their attacks had no effect.

Absence Would Be Effective.

From the time that the reformers had approached Deneen as if he were preparing to act in bad faith and from the time that they, by their inference, complicated the situation, the governor had washed his hands of the whole matter.

"Deneen told the reformers," said a member of the republican house organization, "that if they would stay away from Springfield and let him alone he would take entire responsibility for civil service and would get a good bill through. He also told them that if they continued to mix in and to insist on bossing everything, setting the legislature by the ears and stirring up trouble, he would wash his hands of the entire matter and would not stand responsible for what was done.

"Deneen was in a position where he had to get a primary law though. He went all over the state telling the people that the legislature would pass a law giving the primaries the benefit of the election machinery, and he had to make good. He once said he would resign if a decent law were not passed. He had threatened the legislature with an extra session. He could not afford to throw away all his power over civil service, when, by getting a good compromise, he could land the other bill, too.

"He was expected also to get legislation through for Chicago, and this was another big contract. Things had to be coaxed through. Bulldozing couldn't be used for every measure that was wanted."

Chicago Not Badly Treated.

Considering the habitual antagonism with which Chicago demands are received by certain elements in the legislature, the city was treated with great consideration. The gas bill applies to Chicago alone. The city's revenue was increased by giving it $1.85 outside of scaling, and the county was aided by another restriction on the scaling of levies.

The failure of charter legislation to enter into finances at all leaves this amendment to the Juul law the only financial relief given the city. It was pushed through early in anticipation of the failure of the revenue provisions in charter legislation. The relief it will give is not vast, but it will help.

The south and west parks were given additional revenue legislation, the west parks being authorized to issue $2,000,000 in substitution of the bonds declared invalid by the Supreme court. The south park commissioners were given authority to raise 1 mill additional taxation, estimated to be equivalent to about $225,000 annually, to maintain the additional acreage acquired, and authority to issue additional bonds.

The Citizens' association was successful in getting its anti-policy bill, by which it is hoped to stamp out this form of gambling in Chicago. The Merchants' club was interested in the anti-loan shark bill, which went through.

The city officially obtained its municipal courts bill, which in two years will result in the abolishing of the justice courts. It also was given the new article to the cities and villages act, minus its most important features, but still containing provisions important to the governmental functions of the city. It also was given relief from personal injury suits by a bill providing that notice of suit for damages must be given the city within six months of the injury alleged.

"Prohibs" Ready for Long Fight.

The anti-saloon people are preparing for a two years' campaign, having lost out completely, and their attack will be directed especially against Speaker Shurtleff, who is alleged to have held back their bill in the last hours of the legislature, when it might have been passed in a modified form.

The local option people are about the only ones who have charges to make against Shurtleff. His dealing with other questions is admitted to have been fair, and he seemed to be endeavoring at all times to handle all legislation justly.

The institution which has the most to complain of the legislature, aside from the gas companies of Chicago, is the board of trade. B. A. Eckhart points out that the board is in worse condition now than it was before, it went into the effort to secure legislation, because by doing so it has advertised its weaknesses. Where one person was aware of the openings by which the board could be reached under the law as it now stands, a hundred know it now.

The plain fact in connection with the failure of the bill legalizing board of trade transactions is that the board would not buy the passage of its bill, and a certain element in the house was able to prevent its passage. There were many honest men honestly opposed to the measure, but the leadership of the opposition was merely serving notice that the "reform methods" by which the board was attempting to get remedial legislation were not to be allowed to establish a precedent.

"No Money" Lobbying a Failure.

The "lily white" lobbying methods were proven a complete failure when used in connection with a bill of this character.

Labor was fairly successful in its effort to secure legislation, having secured, among other acts, the "shot firers," and the safety appliance act for railroads. The "fellow servant" bill was pushed energetically for awhile, and by using it in the labor lobby was able to secure the other bills in compromise from the legislature in exchange for immunity from the "servant" bill.

In the appropriation bills from the legislature there are several heartbreaks. President James of the University of Illinois failed to get his post-graduate school because the senate insisted that an auditorium should be built at the university. A building is something tangible to show the people and a post-graduate school is not. The senate wanted the tangible something. The house appropriation committee held out with President James to the closing hours of the legislature, but Senator Gardner of the senate committee announced his willingness to stay in Springfield until December to carry his point and Trautmann of the house committee was forced to give in.

The state factory inspector fared about the worst of all the applicants for money and the cause for this may be traced to the fact that he has prosecuted glass manufacturers in East St. Louis and Streator. The chairman of the house committee comes from East St. Louis and the chairman of the senate committee from La Salle county, in which Streator is located.

Figures on Appropriations.

The total amount of the appropriation bills is $16,539,924. Of this sum some of the items are as follows:

State offices and next legislature	$1,000,000
Lewis and Clark exposition	25,000
Refitting governor's mansion	12,000
Repairing Grant's home	5,000
Southern Illinois penitentiary	442,500
Vicksburg monument fund	100,000
Educational institutions, ordinary	567,972
Educational institutions, special	266,150
Supreme court building	150,000
Repair statehouse	121,000
Illinois river, for improving navigation	40,000
Internal improvement commission	7,000
Monument at Rock Island	5,000
Jamestown tercentennial	25,000
Portrait of Richard Yates	1,000
State geological survey	25,000
Monument at Hardin	5,000
Good roads commission	25,000
Joliet penitentiary	74,000
Horticultural society	5,000
Agricultural college	145,000
Farmers' institute	20,000
Board of agriculture and county fairs	38,240
Tuberculosis sanitarium	25,000
State visitors of delinquent children	4,500
National guard and naval reserve	325,440
Buildings for board of agriculture and state fair	53,000

In addition to the appropriations listed the legislature gave $20,000 for a monument to Col. Dan McCook's brigade at Kenesaw mountain and a total of $1,362,000 to the University of Illinois.

Among some of the interesting bills killed was the anti-trust measure which Attorney General Stead framed. The insurance feature of this bill was the cause of its death in the senate. Stead lays the blame on the insurance companies and has promised himself to make it interesting for insurance combinations with such laws as he can find at hand.

The bill for a new and free bridge across the Mississippi river at East St. Louis was killed in the senate and there are open rumors of corruption in connection with it.

The practice act revision bill was killed by the opposition of the Supreme court judges.

The list of the dead is a long one, as over 1,000 bills were introduced and less than a quarter came out.

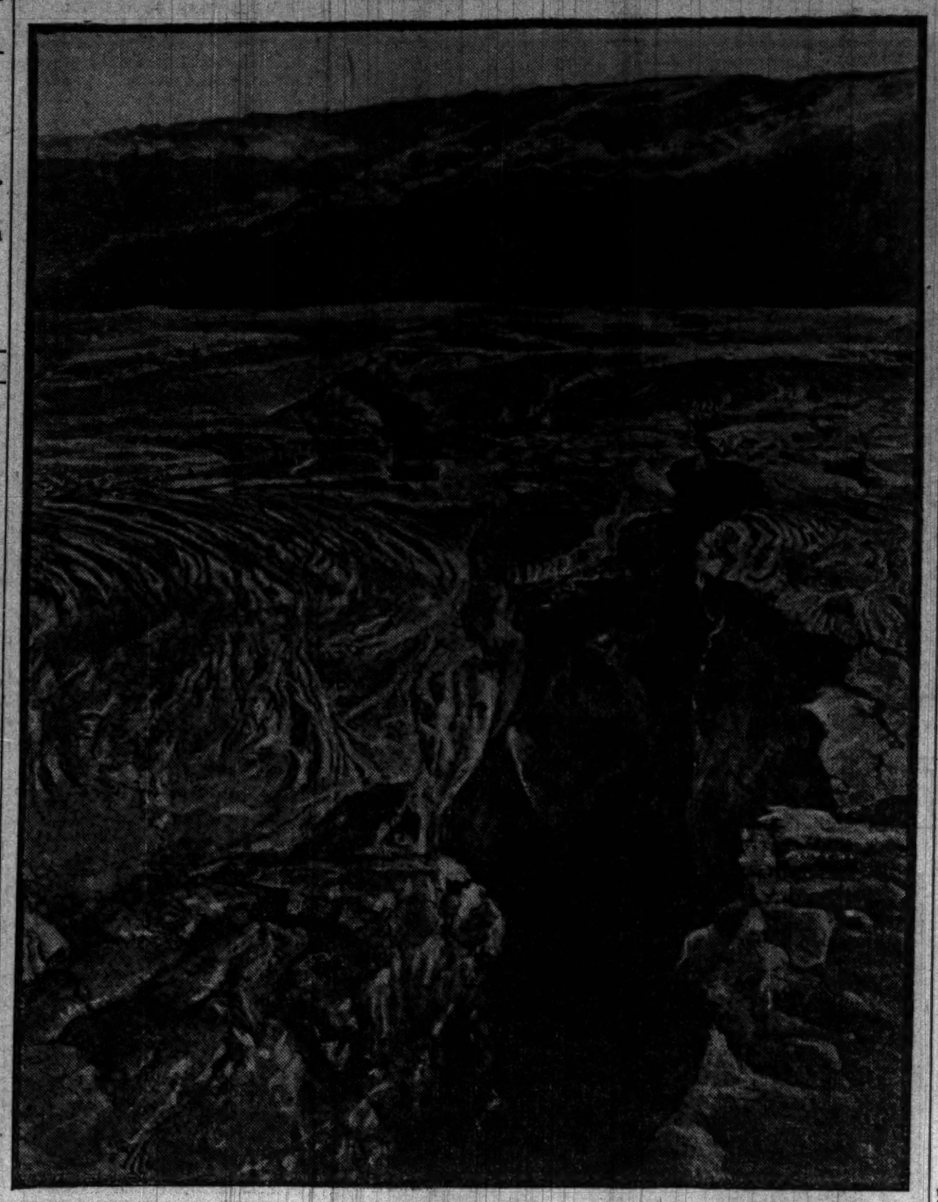

HAIL KANSAS TEMPERANCE DAY.

Churches of State Hold Services in Honor of Twenty-fourth Anniversary of Prohibitory Law.

Topeka, Kas., May 7.—In nearly all the churches in Kansas today special services were held in honor of the twenty-fourth anniversary of the enactment of the prohibitory law. A statement from the state temperance union was read at each of the services and support was pledged to Gov. Hoch in whatever method he may use to secure the enforcement of the law. It is expected that active work soon will be started in the direction of closing the saloons in the Kansas towns where the license system prevails. Gov. Hoch reiterates his announcement that the law will be enforced regardless of public sentiment.

Kilauea, Huge Hawaiian Crater That Threatens an Eruption.

The steady rising of the burning lava in Kilauea causes apprehension of an eruption, which would throw a mass of rock and burning lava over a good part of the island of Hawaii, and perhaps destroy thousands of human lives. The crater is three miles long and nearly a mile wide, the largest in the world. It contains a lake of constantly agitated burning lava, which has a number of times overflowed and poured into the sea, changing the coast line for miles. The picture was taken at one of the higher places, where the lava was cool at the time.

END OF SESSION LONELY.

MANY MEMBERS OF HOUSE ABSENT AT ADJOURNMENT.

Final Sitting Continues Until Daybreak, Democratic Representatives Protesting Against What They Term Illegal Practice—Names of Those Not Present Recorded as Voting in Order to Give Measures Needed Support.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—With about forty members present and voting, and with eighty-two being counted on each roll call, with the hands of the clock pointing to 11:45 and the first light of day getting in the windows, the house of representatives of the Illinois legislature finished up its work this morning, adjourning at 4:50 a. m. on motion of Representative Trautmann. With this act the Forty-fourth assembly was adjourned sine die.

For two hours the senate chamber had been deserted completely. When, to carry out the formalities of the occasion, the house sent its clerk, John Reeve, to notify the senate that "the house was about to adjourn," it was found that the senators had slipped away without flourish of trumpets.

Reeve's report when he came back to the cluster of representatives who were carrying on the work of making laws for the state was:

"I couldn't find the senate, so I threw the notification on the floor."

Action on Chicago Charter.

The measures which the house passed after midnight were unimportant with the exception of the Chicago charter bill for a new article to the cities and villages act. The board of trade bill, the only other important measure considered, was defeated after an exciting session with the lobbyists who crowded the hall.

Speaker Shurtleff insisted that the floor should be cleared before this bill was taken up. He carried his insistence to the point of asserting that the house would adjourn without further consideration of bills unless the hall were left to the members and unless the lobbyists withdrew. Instead of withdrawing, the lobbyists only shifted their positions from one place to another until finally Representative Shanahan organized a posse to chase them out from under the galleries. The hall finally was cleared and the bill considered.

When it came to a roll call it failed to pass, the vote being 73 to 63, it thus lacking four votes of a constitutional majority.

Closing Hours Bring Protests.

With this and the Chicago charter bill out of the way the legislature devoted the closing two hours to passing bills of small importance to the state at large but of interest to individual members.

By constant desertions the quorum was dissipated until by 4 o'clock bills were passed by the courtesy of the reading clerk, who heard votes not voted. The passage of measures without a quorum finally brought forth an energetic opposition from the few democrats remaining, and a group collected around the desk trying to stop further proceedings.

Representative Mitchell became especially energetic in protesting against the "illegal" procedures.

"This is a shame," he yelled to Speaker Shurtleff. "You talk about reform. Here you are passing bills without a quorum. It's a shame. You've no right to do it."

Square Deal Promised.

Mitchell endeavored to call attention to the fact that it was 5 o'clock Sunday morning and that the legislature, by joint resolution, was adjourned at midnight, and therefore could have no official existence. He and the other protesting democrats were unable to stop the program which had been arranged. Shurtleff had told the members of the house that every man should have a fair deal with his bills before the legislature adjourned, and he kept the small group of members, which acted as a quorum, at it until broad day light.

The last measure the house passed was the report of the contingent expense committee. Representative Oglesby of the joint committee on enrolled and engrossed bills was requested to remain in Springfield for six days to see that the bills passed yesterday and this morning are properly prepared for presentation to the governor. It is expected that most of the important measures will be signed by the governor.

ROBBERS TORTURE A WOMAN

Mrs. Rudler of Coulter, Pa., Burned and Thrown from Second Story Window.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 7.—[Special.]—To compel Mrs. Frederick Reidler of Coulter, Pa., to divulge the hiding place of her savings of years, $700, two masked men burned her feet with blazing paper, dragged her about the room by the hair, beat her, and finally, after she had told where the money was hidden, threw her from her second story bedroom window. Mrs. Reidler will not recover. Tonight two men were captured and hurried to the McKeesport lockup to await identification by the woman.

PARTY REVOLTERS OUT FOR RIGHTS.

Democratic Majority Rule League of Illinois Organized in This City.

FORTY AT THE MEETING.

Represents Opposition to Element Which Controlled the Last Convention.

A revolt of down state democrats against the wing of the party which controlled the last state convention, and now dominates the state committee, materialized last night in the organization of the "Democratic Majority Rule League of Illinois."

The meeting, held at the Palmer house, was attended by nearly forty democrats, representative of every congressional district in the state outside of Cook county. All of those present, it was said, supported the presidential candidacy of William R. Hearst last year, but it was denied that the new organization is designed to foster Hearst's aspirations for the future.

Resolutions adopted at the meeting state that "the overwhelming defeat visited on the democratic party at the last general election is largely traceable to the disgraceful and lawless methods which were in control of the party organization at that time and now."

Allege Fraud and Forgery.

Inasmuch as many of the present members of the state committee, according to the resolutions, "are now holding their places through force and fraud and forgery," it is held that suggestions of harmony coming from such persons "are but part of a deliberate attempt to perpetuate the power of those who have brought injury on the party."

The officers elected last night are M. F. Dunlap of Jacksonville, president, and Theodore Nelson of 4559 Forrestville avenue, Chicago, secretary and treasurer. Dunlap was treasurer of the democratic national committee for four years and is the senior member of the banking firm of Dunlap, Russell & Co. of Jacksonville. Nelson for twelve years was secretary of the democratic state committee.

Headquarters to Be Opened.

Within a few days headquarters for the league will be opened in Chicago, in charge of the secretary and an executive committee of fifteen members will be appointed.

Among persons credited with having the organization of the league in charge, are Silas Cooke, mayor of East St. Louis; Congressman Henry T. Rainey, of Carrollton; H. W. Clendenin, publisher of the State Register; and Gen. Alfred Orendorff, of Springfield; and Judge Owen P. Thompson, of Jacksonville, and James O'Shaughnessy, of Chicago.

CHILDREN PARADE WITH BONES.

Manayunk Boys and Girls Looted an Old Time Graveyard and Made Merry.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A score of boys and girls looted several boxes containing the skeletons of twelve bodies buried in the old Dutch Reformed church cemetery, at Grape and Cresson streets, Manayunk, today. Then, mounting the skulls and other grewsome relics on broomsticks and clothes props, the juvenile ghouls paraded through the streets of Manayunk.

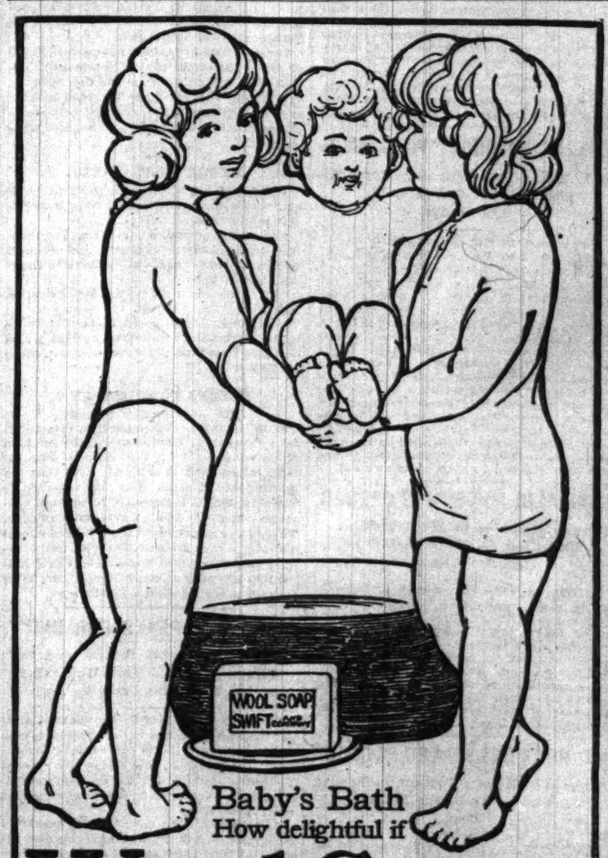

Some time after the theft of the bones was discovered the police were notified. They interrupted the youthful procession and marched them back to the cemetery.

The bones were dug up quite accidentally several days ago, while a gardener was changing the grade of the lawn in front of the church. The old cemetery had been vacated a number of years ago and it was thought at the time that all of the bodies had been removed to Westminster cemetery. The bodies unearthed were buried more than fifty years ago. The children raided the place while the workmen were at lunch.

FOLK WINS AGAINST SALOONS.

Sunday Closing an Established Fact Throughout Missouri—St. Louis City and County Dry.

St. Louis, Mo., May 7.—[Special.]—St. Louis county, as well as the city, was dry today. Not a saloon in the city was opened, and only five or six persons were arrested in the county for violations of the closing law. Gov. Folk has won his first big fight since he took the oath of office. Moreover, it appears that the people like it. Sunday closing is an established fact throughout all Missouri.

LOEB ONLY 'DUDE' AT DINNER PARTY.

President's Hunting Companions Attend Farewell Meal in Mountain Dress.

ROOSEVELT'S OUTING OVER

Seeks Private Car After Quiet Day to Sleep Until Train Starts for the East.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., May 7.—[Special.]—Secretary Loeb was the only dude at the president's dinner party tonight. That at least is the opinion voiced by Courier Elmer Chapman in describing this last meeting of Roosevelt and his hunting companions. Others at the dinner were P. B. Stewart of Colorado Springs, Dr. Alexander Lambert, Guides Jake Borah, John Goff, Brick Wells, Jack Fry, and G. M. Sprague.

The dinner was served in a private dining room of the Hotel Colorado. The guests were dressed much as they were in the mountains. Flannel shirts were the rule, although the guides did discard their chaps and laid away their guns. The president and Mr. Loeb were in their frocks, and Dr. Lambert and Dr. Stewart were in plain business suits, as they have not yet connected with their dress clothes. Some of the stories told at the dinner later went into private circulation, but it was the wish of the president that they be not printed. It can be said, however, that they related entirely to incidents connected with the hunt.

Rides and Studies Birds.

The president was at his best. He was entirely rested and had just come in from two or three hours' drive through the woods, where the president went to study Colorado birds. Mr. Stewart is a naturalist who knows every bird in the mountains and can tell its habits and imitate its calls.

Although the plan of running excursions to this place was discouraged by Secretary Loeb, large numbers of persons came in by every train, and rather than disappoint them Mr. Roosevelt stepped out on the second floor balcony of the hotel after the luncheon and spoke briefly. He said:

"I did not anticipate having the pleasure of meeting you today, and as it is Sunday I am not going to try to make a speech to you. I shall merely say how greatly I am enjoying my visit to this beautiful state. I wish that in the last week up in the mountains there had been a little more weather like this. If there had been I think we would have gone about two bears better. But still, as we got ten, I do not think we have any right to complain. I am sure I need not tell you how much I have enjoyed my holiday here and how deeply I have appreciated the kindness with which I have been treated by the people of your state, the people in your cities, and the ranchmen in the immediate neighborhood of where I was hunting. It is a great pleasure to see the men of Colorado, and an even greater pleasure to see the women, and I do not know but I am even more glad to see the small folks."

Fast Walk to Church.

The president's party was up early today. After breakfast a limited amount of mail was gotten out of the way and then the party started for the Presbyterian church. The president led off at a brisk walk, which brought the party at the little church ten minutes later, all out of breath except Mr. Roosevelt. He seemed to enjoy the walk. Along the street he was cheered and he responded by lifting his hat frequently, patting the children on the head and bowing to their parents.

In front of the church the Sunday school children stood in open formation, and as the party passed through the little folks sang. The church was crowded and hundreds of persons stood outside as near the open windows as possible.

At the close of the service the congregation remained standing until after the presidential party departed. Mr. Roosevelt set another rapid pace to the store of Frank Hayes, the taxidermist, who has been intrusted with the mounting of the bears killed on the hunt. After examining the skins he instructed Mr. Hayes to mount them with closed mouths instead of open jawed. The skulls are to be sent to Washington to be added to the collection of C. Hart Merriam, biologist of the department of agriculture.

Drives in the Afternoon.

The president lingered a long time over his lunch and then went to his rooms. After his address to the excursionists he went for a drive in company with Dr. Lambert and Mr. Stewart, and then returned to the hotel, where he rested until dinner was served.

About 9:30 o'clock he went to the private car Rocket, which will leave Glenwood Springs at 5 a. m. tomorrow. A daylight run will be made to Denver in order to give the party an opportunity to enjoy the scenery.

DR. GLADDEN'S GIFT PROTEST IS MADE BUSINESS ISSUE.

Pastor Says Time Has Come When We Must Distinguish Between Trade and Piracy.

Columbus, O., May 7.—Dr. Washington Gladden, pastor of the First Congregational church, today distributed among the members of his congregation copies of his recent address to the Congregational ministers at Boston protesting against the acceptance of Mr. Rockefeller's gift to the American board of missions, and commented thereon. He said:

"I think you know your minister well enough to know that he does not make rash or reckless statements about such matters. Some of you have said you could not judge in the matter because you had no knowledge of the facts. I think I have given you facts enough to justify a judgment. But there are volumes more.

"If this protest has any significance it is in its determination to put the stamp of approval upon lawful and honorable business, and to put the stamp of disapproval on lawless and dishonorable business. It is a declaration that the time is come when the lines must be drawn by business men themselves between trade and commercial piracy. I think that nobody in this country is so much interested in having this line drawn as the honest business men. It is their battle we are fighting. There is a tendency to lump them all together—to say that they are all alike. If you make the people of this country believe that, your good business and your bad business will go down together in a common condemnation and ruin."

Woman Dies After a Poisoning Scare.

MISS BESSIE MYERS.

ALL PLAY IN THIS SCHOOL

WOMAN STARTS NONDISCIPLINARY CHILDREN'S HOME.

Only Requirements Are That "Student" Must Eat Two Meals Per Day and Bathe Twice in Twenty-four Hours, Working or Not as He Chooses—Leaves Nature Free to Develop Characteristics of Young in Own Way.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—A school without discipline, a home where don'ts are tabooed, is the basic scheme for a new system of reform education for the young which Mrs. Edward Potter has inaugurated at Dyker Heights. The reasons given by Mrs. Potter for the new institution are as follows:

The home is unable to educate.

The street has no educator.

The curriculum of schools prohibits human experiences, excluding true education.

One of the chief features of the experiment is the special diet. This will be of the nature of a "poison squad," under the direction of the federal department of agriculture.

The only requirements on youthful students will be that they eat the food served them and bathe twice a day. If they refuse to comply they will not be punished but will be socially ostracized by classmates and in other ways made to feel the error of their ways.

Will Be Free as Birds.

For the rest, they will be free as birds. They may do just as they please and will not be compelled to do sums, recite history, bother with any text books or problems that do not appeal to them. If, however, algebra appears attractive they may have as much as they like. If the spring sunshine inspires a longing for the swimming pool or the fishing rod they may enjoy these pleasures to their heart's content so long as they are never tardy for meals.

All that is expected of the child who goes to this idealistic school is that he bask in the sunshine and "just grow," like Topsy, meantime developing physically and mentally as naturally as flowers in the spring.

The child will be treated to two meals a day, breakfast at 10 o'clock and supper at 5. If he be pugilistically inclined, the tendency is not to be curbed because this would interfere with the scheme to permit perfect freedom of action, but such a one will receive no meat.

"Does the food a child eats affect its temperament?" asked Mrs. Potter. "Indeed I should think so. I know myself that when I was a child going to school buckwheat cakes and sausage for breakfast always made me ill tempered.

Work or Play at Will.

"I am a disciple of Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Stetson on the question of perfect freedom both in home and in school. The child should never be made to do anything it does not want to do. We shall have no servants in the home. I don't want children to get that idea of menial service. They will help me as they will in keeping the house clean and in doing the cooking and other household work.

"But if a little girl prefers to play with her doll or practice in the gymnasium she will not be compelled to wash dishes, sweep, or sew. To make her work at anything against her will would warp her nature and make her a hypocrite.

"I believe the public school system, with its insistence of cut and dried courses for all children, no two of whom are constituted alike, is responsible for more than half of the misfits of life."

Mrs. Potter has rented a large house at Dyker Heights, where she will carry on the experiments. She has two children of her own, who are to be included in the experimental work. Mrs. Potter also will have in her class about a dozen poor children of the city.

CHICAGO HEALTHY IN APRIL.

Month, According to Department Bulletin, Was One of the Best on Record.

Last month was one of the most healthful Aprils on record, according to the Chicago department bulletin. The good showing was in spite of the excess of mortality among children under 5 years old.

The annual rate, 13.98 for each 1,000 of population, is only 0.13 higher than that of April, 1897—the lowest in the last 63 years.

The ratio of the under-5-years deaths during the month is fully 10 per cent higher than the average—being 31.9 per cent of the total deaths at all ages. This excess is said to be due almost entirely to the epidemic prevalence of measles and whooping cough.

Since the first of the year there have been 117 deaths reported from measles and 160 from whooping cough, while during the first four months of 1904 there were only 7 deaths reported from each of these diseases. Scarlet fever showed a falling off.

During the month 27 deaths reported as caused by cerebro-spinal fever were investigated by department experts. Only four were verified as contagious meningitis, and two of these were ill when they arrived in the city.

QUIETS A POISON SCARE.

Y. W. C. A. RESIDENT DIES AFTER APPENDICITIS OPERATION.

Miss Bessie Myers, Student of Music and Boarder at Home in Michigan Avenue, Becomes Ill on Monday After Eating Lunch—Alarms Other Young Women Until Nature of the Case Is Disclosed and Removal to Hospital Is Ordered.

After an illness of five days, in which she believed herself a victim of ptomaine poisoning, Miss Bessie Laurell Myers, a resident of the Y. W. C. A. home in Michigan avenue, and private secretary to William K. Ziegfeld of the Chicago Musical college, died Saturday night at the Hospital of St. Anthony de Padua, following an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Myers, who came to Chicago from Pittsburg last September, was preparing herself for a musical career, the fortune of her father, who died some time ago, having been lost through unfortunate speculation.

The young woman's mother, Mrs. Emma Myers, whose home is in Pittsburg, lived at the residence of Mrs. Rebecca Ullmann, 3615 Ellis avenue. When Miss Myers became ill last Monday and attributed it to poisoning from the soup consternation seized other young women in the place, who had partaken of the same meal.

Appendicitis Symptoms Develop.

Thursday afternoon symptoms of appendicitis developed, and Dr. Leonard St. John ordered her taken immediately to the hospital. Mrs. Myers, when she realized her daughter was dangerously ill, notified Andrews Allen, a friend. The latter and his wife hurried to the hospital, where they were told Miss Myers had slight chances for recovery. They remained with the mother at the hospital until the young woman died.

Miss Myers was 22 years old. Early in the year she won a scholarship in vocal music. Possessing a rich soprano voice, she was called upon to take part in many of the recitals at the musical college, and became a general favorite.

After being informed by Dr. St. John of the true cause of the young woman's death, the other boarders at the Y. W. C. A. home became satisfied there is no need for the investigation which they at first had demanded.

Matron Tells of the Illness.

Speaking of the illness of Miss Myers, Mrs. E. L. Davidson, matron of the Y. W. C. A. home, said last night:

"Miss Myers was a delicate girl. When she became ill on Monday, she thought her illness was due to soup and plums she had eaten at lunch. None of the other residents, however, was similarly affected, and Dr. Rice, the house physician, at first ascribed the trouble to indigestion."

The funeral will take place from the Allen residence, 5535 Washington avenue, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. The burial will be at Mount Hope.

PHONE DELAY IS NEARLY FATAL.

Watchman Overcome by Smoke While Waiting for Connection with Fire Department.

When fire broke out in a three story building at 108-110-112 West Van Buren street, occupied by the Charles P. Krus Paper Bag company, early this morning, John Ringold, the night watchman, who discovered the flames on the second floor, attempted to notify the fire department by telephone. He was overcome by smoke while waiting for a connection. Simon Lannon, another employé, rushed to Ringold's aid and carried him out of the burning building, where he was soon revived. The loss is estimated at $400.

OBITUARY.

THE REV. CHARLES HENRY TAINTOR, D. D., western secretary of the Congregational Church Building society, died yesterday at the Policlinic hospital in Chicago. He was born in Maine in 1849, was an alumnus of Bates college and Bangor Theological seminary, and served successively as pastor of Weare, Hooksett, and Milford Congregational churches of New Hampshire. He became the western secretary of the building society in 1883. He was married to Miss Augusta Billings in 1879, who survives him. Burial at Clinton, Conn.

THE REV. JOHN A. DIXON, Chicago, 75 years old, and for fifty years a minister in the Methodist church, died yesterday at the family home, 3570 North Fortieth avenue. For the last six years he had done no pastoral work. He is survived by a widow and five children, W. W. Dixon, J. Arthur Dixon, Chicago; Miss Virginia Dixon, Los Angeles, Cal.; Charles W. Dixon, Grand Island, Neb.; and Louis M. Dixon, Eagle, Wis. The funeral will be in Rosehill chapel at 11 o'clock this morning.

SEES ONE DANGER IN CITY CONTROL

Lord Provost of Glasgow Points to Possible Domination by Employes.

which we could not safely go. That is the city employé should not have more consideration than the rate payer who furnishes the money to pay him for his work. The passengers on the tram cars are entitled to as much consideration at least as the motorman and conductors. The city employés should not expect much better treatment nor much better wages than they would receive in similar positions in private life. If you give them the franchise on municipal matters you not only pay them for their work, but you put them in a position where they can combine together and force from the city greater favors than they are entitled to receive.

"A town councilor who does his duty as he sees it should not be subjected to the possibility of defeat because he has failed to satisfy the salaried servants of the municipality. The multiplication of city employés, coupled with the power they possess to dictate to a certain degree the management of their own work, is certainly one of the weak spots in our municipal ownership program."

Servant of City Twenty-four Years.

Sir John has served the people of Glasgow about twenty-four years, four years of the time being as a representative of the suburb of Govan, which is really a part of the city. He has been through all the grades in the town council, which finally elected him to the office of lord provost, in which he had been preceded by his uncle. The lord provost was made a baronet by the king on his recent visit to Glasgow, which is even a greater honor than is usually bestowed, as most of the chief executives of the important cities are content with knighthood. He has, therefore, been in the service of the municipality during all the period while it made the great change from horses to electric power on the tramways, and he is intimately associated as a matter of course with the detailed management of the water, gas, electric, and other departments of the city.

His apprehensions as to the future of municipal ownership led me to suspect that he might be out of harmony with the general principle itself, but I found, on asking him the direct question, after all his experience, he is more than ever convinced that municipal ownership of public utilities in general use is the best thing for any community, provided the service can be honestly administered.

Would Limit Municipal Control.

"I believe entirely in municipal ownership within the proper boundary," said the lord provost, "but there are lines, in my opinion, which cannot safely be passed over. We have a duty to perform in all cases which are distinctly for the common good. Where the interests of the great mass of the people are concerned the municipality should step in to relieve them from monopoly wherever monopoly is possible. A city undertakes the investigation and prevention of contagious diseases not merely from a humanitarian standpoint but because it is to the interest of the entire community to exterminate the disease. Only a few people may be affected by the contagion, but if they were let alone the trouble would spread and the whole people would be threatened.

"Anything, therefore, which concerns a large percentage of the people, even if it does not directly affect them all, is a proper subject of municipal control, provided the absence of that control would result in harm to the community, or in the building up of an oppressive monopoly. In the case of the supply of water, and of the building of tramways, and of the general use of electricity, as well as in the supply of gas, it is evident that these things are made use of in one way or another by practically every one in the city. They are proper objects of municipal ownership, and we have successfully, I think, undertaken their operation."

Does Not Include Telephone.

"Do you then include the telephone as one of the things within the proper scope of municipal ownership?"

"I most certainly do not. I was opposed to the municipalization of the telephone from the outset, but I was beaten in the council and before the commission of parliament, and we now have a corporation telephone. I have endeavored to execute the will of the majority in regard to the telephone system, but I shall none the less go out of office convinced that it is outside of the proper range of municipal activity. There are here in Glasgow and in its natural tributary territory about a million people. Taking both the corporation and the private telephone line together, in the entire district, there are not 20,000 regular users of the telephone."

"This is one of the cases, therefore, where the city has, in my opinion, been induced to extend its operations farther than they should have gone. We have been engaged in a bitter and possibly unseemly fight between the corporation and a private company, and the city has not been specially successful. The license from the government granted to the National company expires in 1911, and that to the city in 1913. If the government assumes the control of the national telephone system upon the expiration of its lease in 1911, I don't know just what will become of the corporation telephone, but a failure in that regard is not in any sense, it should be remembered, a failure as to municipal ownership.

"If Chicago is going into this experiment, and I am not sufficiently informed to say whether your political system will justify it, your people should at least bear in mind the general principle that actual ownership and operation by the municipality is wise and profitable only when it deals with those things which come close to the interests of practically all of the people, and where, in the absence of municipal control, an unjust private monopoly is likely to be created."

SCORES INJURED ON ELECTRIC LINE

Train on Elgin Road Crashes Into a Freight Car on a Siding.

OPEN SWITCH IS CAUSE.

William Murphy, Chicago Ball Player, Probably Fatally Hurt.

Elgin, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—In an accident on the Elgin and Chicago third rail electric line about 8 o'clock this evening, near Wayne, six miles south of Elgin, one man was fatally injured, two were seriously hurt, and a score of passengers were badly bruised and shaken. The victims of the accident were brought to the Sherman hospital at Elgin. The names of the most seriously injured are:

Dennis, William, switchhand, Wheaton; cut and bruised.
Johnson, Andrew, motorman, Wheaton; leg strained and injured about body.
Mahoney, Lawrence, ballplayer, Chicago; cut and bruised.
Murphy, William, ballplayer, Chicago; back wrenched and internal injuries.

Fear for Muryhy's Life.

William Murphy, known to the baseball world in and near Chicago as Stockyards Murphy, and at one time a pitcher in a professional league, is the most seriously injured. Doctors fear late tonight that he may not survive until morning.

The motorman received his injuries in jumping when he saw the collision was unavoidable.

Leaving Elgin at 8 o'clock this evening, the two coaches on the third rail line were speeding along at a rate of forty miles an hour. Near Wayne there is side track leading from the third rail road to the Illinois Central railroad. Several freight cars were on the side tracks and the switch from the main line had not been turned.

Cars Are Telescoped.

The electric cars went through this switch, telescoping one of the freight cars and crashing into another. The entire front end of the Chicago bound car was caved inward and the flying timbers went crashing into the load of passengers.

Manager Faber of the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago Traction company believes the accident to have resulted from negligence of the switchman in failing to throw the lever and leave an open track after the passage of his train.

HURLED OFF CAR AT A CURVE.

Woman's Shoulder Blade Is Fractured and Her Escort's Leg Is Broken by Fall.

When a Lincoln avenue cable car swung around the curve at North Clark and Center streets at 6:30 last evening, Asa Fuller, 32 Lincoln Park boulevard, and Miss Libbie Meyer, 132 North Clark street, lost their footing and both fell to the ground. Fuller's left leg was broken and Miss Meyer's right shoulder blade was fractured. They were taken to the German hospital.

Salvatore Bucalro, 7 years old, a newsboy, who fell under the wheels of a Milwaukee avenue cable car on Saturday while making change for a paper he had sold, died of his injuries yesterday. He lived at 152 North Peoria street.

While hitching on a Halsted street car Edward Lyons, 12 years old, 8142 Emerald avenue, was struck by a car going in the opposite direction and so severely injured that he died four hours later at the Englewood Union hospital.

Patrick Henderson, 34 Sibley street, a watchman at the Halsted street crossing, was struck and severely injured by a train on the Chicago Terminal Transfer railroad. He was taken to the county hospital.

While attempting to alight from an electric car in the afternoon, Michael Melrose, 33 years old, 853 Melrose street, fell and the car wheels cut off three of his fingers.

Charles Bertheimer, 93 Wells street, fell under a Chicago and Northwestern train at Crystal lake last evening and both his legs were cut off. He was brought to Chicago and taken to St. Luke's hospital in a critical condition.

OLD ORGANIST NEAR DEATH.

Hubert Besler, for Twenty Years at Holy Name Cathedral, Critically Ill.

Hubert Besler, for twenty years organist at Holy Name cathedral, is believed to be dying at St. Joseph's hospital. Last night he was reported in a critical condition. Nurses and physicians watched him constantly. Mr. Besler was recovering from an operation, when a change for the worse came. Mr. Besler left the cathedral organ several years ago to take charge of that at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes. Recently he has been the organist at St. John's church.

WOMAN IS ITALIAN GANG BOSS.

Gets More Out of Laborers than Male Predecessor and Is Popular with Her Men.

Paterson, N. J., May 6.—[Special.]—Vittoria Luigi, aged 30, an Italian woman, is in charge of thirty-five Italian laborers who are laying pipes at Butler for the new water works there. Hundreds of persons stop to watch her directing the work. It is said she gets more out of the workmen than any of her male predecessors. Miss Luigi discusses her affairs reluctantly, but says there is nothing strange about her employment. She likes the work and the men would make objections if she were replaced.

CORNELL BOAT GOES OVER.

Eight Students in Craft Sailing in Thirty Mile Breeze Have Narrow Escape from Drowning.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 7.—A sail boat containing eight Cornell students in Cayuga lake, sailing close reefed in a thirty mile wind, capsized in the middle of the lake. For forty-five minutes they clung to the overturned craft awaiting the rescuing party, which took them ashore, nearly exhausted.

DECLINING RURAL POPULATION.

A recent state census indicates that while the town and city population of Iowa is increasing its rural population is decreasing. Grundy is cited as a typical Iowa agricultural county. Grundy Center, its county seat, is growing, but in 1895 the population of the entire county was 14,491; in 1900, 13,759; and in 1905, 13,664. "There are fewer people on the farms of Iowa," the Cedar Rapids Republican believes, "than there were even twenty years ago"; and it is probably right.

There is no special reason why Iowa should be alarmed. What is taking place there has taken place elsewhere—in Illinois, for instance. One cause of the loss of rural population is the increased value of land. Many of the rising generation of farmers, having much muscle and enterprise and little money and no land, go to new states, where land is cheap. Many Iowa landowners are selling out to men from Illinois and other older states. The Illinoisan who sells his land for $125 to $150 an acre takes his money to Iowa where, at $80 to $100 an acre, it will buy more acres than he owned here. The Iowan takes his money to Missouri, where, at $50 to $75 per acre, it will buy more acres than he had in Iowa. This interesting movement of population tends to increase the size of farms and decrease the number of farmers in the states it affects.

Another potent cause of the decrease in rural population in old states is improvements in farm machinery. Think how many men it would take to plant, cultivate, and harvest this year's crop without the drill, the riding plow, the steam plow, the reaper, the mower, and any number of other implements that might be mentioned. Agricultural implements are being improved every year. The more they are improved the less men farm work takes.

Formerly the farmer, no matter how well off he was, stuck to the farm house to the last, even after he had become unfit for hard work. Today the farmer who has acquired a competence often moves into the nearest village or town when he gets along in years and enjoys his ease. He may rent his farm or let one of the boys work it. If he has many sons he may set up one in business in the village. The drift of population from the farms is not exclusively to the large cities. The small places get their share of it. The population of the villages and towns in several Illinois counties has increased, while that of the rural townships has declined.

But the decline in rural population in Iowa and other middle western states will be brief. Soon all the available agricultural land in the country will be taken. Soon the growth of towns and cities will make neighboring farm lands in old states so valuable that, to render its ownership profitable, intensive culture will be necessary. Peas and tomatoes, gooseberries and strawberries, will supplant cattle and corn. Four hundred acre farms, steam plows, and thrashing machines are not adapted to intensive culture. It means small farms and human labor. With intensive culture the agricultural states will get back their lost farmers and farm workers and thousands besides.

GOV. HOCH AFTER SALOONS.

Gov. Hoch of Kansas is a radical, uncompromising prohibitionist. He regards the liquor traffic as the father of all evil, and has scourged it in his newspaper at Marion every week for twenty years. Since his induction to office Mr. Hoch has been wrestling most of the time with a refractory legislature and the oil octopus. At last he has found time to turn his attention to a more congenial field. He is about to take the liquor evil in hand in his official capacity. The prohibition law of Kansas, he says, must and shall be strictly enforced.

The law always is pretty well enforced in the rural districts. In no other state, except, perhaps, Maine, is public sentiment outside cities so adverse to liquor selling and drinking. The drug stores are under as good control as in most high license states, and the "jointist" and "boot legger" have to do business secretly and may be in jail before they have made enough money to pay their fines.

In Kansas, as elsewhere, it is in the cities that enforcement of the liquor laws is most difficult. Kansas City, Kas., Leavenworth, Wichita, Atchison, and Fort Scott usually have open saloons. The proprietors are required to appear in court every month and pay a fine. Otherwise they are not officially molested.

Gov. Hoch has not the means of enforcing the law in cities possessed by his neighbor, Gov. Folk of Missouri, who appoints the metropolitan police boards and through bill and ols the cities' police departments. Vested by Governor of Kansas wishes to secure better enforcement of the liquor law at a place his usual course is to appoint a special state's attorney to collect evidence and conduct prosecutions there. Juries often acquit the lawbreakers regardless of evidence. But Gov. Hoch, besides being an uncompromising prohibitionist, is determined, and despite the obstacles in his way he can be depended on to make Kansas for the next two years a disagreeable place for liquor dealers.

Special efforts are being made in Maine, Missouri, and other states besides Kansas to secure better enforcement of laws regulating or prohibiting the liquor traffic. These efforts are perhaps partly owing to a growing antagonism to this business, but they are mainly due to the demand for a stricter enforcement of all laws which has recently been making itself felt throughout the country.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The Illinois legislature has done fairly well as state legislatures go. If it had been left entirely to its own devices it would not have made so good a record. But for the influence of the governor some meritorious measures would have come to naught. The legislation regarding compulsory primaries and the merit system for employés in the state charitable institutions owes much to him.

Numerous bills relating to Chicago or to Chicago interests were pressed upon the attention of the general assembly. In view of their number it is not to be wondered at that some of them which should have passed failed to do so. But the city has obtained a municipal courts bill. It has been granted the power to regulate the rates of gas and electric light companies. The power cannot be exercised until the people shall have ratified the law, which they assuredly will do. Even then there will be litigation before the people can get cheaper gas, but the action of the legislature, for which the public is largely indebted to the governor, will give it to them finally.

There might have been more legislation under the constitutional amendment if the executive committee of the charter convention had gone out of existence when the amendment was ratified. It attempted without popular authority or approval to draft legislation which fared ill at the hands of the general assembly because it manifestly did not express the ideas of Chicagoans.

Among the measures which got through and which will take effect if ratified by the people is one to extend the term of office of the mayor from two to four years, and to abolish the office of city attorney and make the corporation counsel the chief law officer of the city. During the summer months the people may consider the advisability of accepting the law.

Questions of consolidation of bond issues and of a material increase in the city's revenue will have to go over until 1907. That will give the people and their legitimate representatives time in which to consider these subjects and frame acceptable legislation regarding them.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION.

Attorney General Moody has given the interstate commerce committee of the senate an opinion which is of greater value than the arguments of railroad lawyers and officials to which it has listened so patiently and respectfully. The conclusions of the attorney general are:

First—Congress can fix railroad rates for interstate traffic. The Supreme court has so held.

Second—Congress can confer the rate-making power upon a commission. That point is not open to argument, because the Supreme court decided it.

Third—The power thus conferred by congress must not be unrestricted. A rule of action must be prescribed to the commission. The rates it makes must be required to be just, reasonable, and impartial.

Fourth—A commission acting under a power thus limited in its exercise will not be obliged to prescribe a uniform rate per ton per mile to and from the ports of the different states. The nonobservance of that method will not constitute the giving of a preference to a port or ports which is forbidden by the constitution. This disposes of a constitutional question on which the railroad lawyers have laid much stress.

Fifth—The ratemaking power is a legislative function, consequently congress cannot confer it upon the courts. Nor can congress deprive the courts of the power to investigate rates fixed by it or a commission acting under its authority. Nor can congress take from the courts the power to set aside rates judicially found to be unjust because confiscatory.

The president said in his last message: "I believe that as a fair security to shippers, the interstate commerce commission should be vested with the power, where a given rate has been challenged, and after fair hearing found to be unreasonable, to decide, subject to judicial review, what shall be a reasonable rate to take its place."

It is the opinion of the attorney general that congress has unquestioned power to do all that the president recommended it should do. Why should the railroads resist the enactment of constitutional legislation embodying that recommendation? They would be deprived of no rights. The commission would fix no rate until there had been a thorough investigation. The reasonableness of the rate would be subject to judicial review. If the commission and the courts agreed that it was reasonable the public would be convinced that it was, and that the railroad concerned had no cause for complaint.

INSTRUCTIVE BOSTON EXPERIENCE.

A few years ago Josiah Quincy was elected mayor of Boston. He was anxious to benefit the community and make a name for himself. He had confidence in his administrative ability and thought it would not find sufficient exercise in the comparatively narrow field of action to which his predecessors had confined themselves. He had read of Glasgow and he felt that the municipal activities of Boston were entirely too limited. So he set out to make that city an American Glasgow. He had confidence in the ability of Boston to do at less expense many things that private individuals or corporations had been doing for it.

He noticed that the city paid heavy bills for printing. He could see no reason why it should not have its own printing plant and share the profit which the men who had the contracts had been making. So a municipal printing plant was established and put in charge of a bureau chief. He was instructed to hire the men he needed and do good work economically.

The mayor observed that the municipal ice bills were heavy. It seemed to him that they could be cut down if the city had an ice plant of its own. He estimated that the cost could be so much reduced as to enable Boston to be prodigal in the use of ice in the drinking fountains without increasing expenses.

At first everything went smoothly. The people enjoyed the cool water from the fountains, and said "We have a progressive mayor." But the day of reckoning came. When Mayor Quincy's term expired it was discovered that municipal ice cost about $60 a ton, while the ordinary rate was from $2 to $3. It came out that the city printing was costing about 50 per cent more than it did when the work was let by contract. The plant had been allowed to run down, so that it was almost worthless. Efforts in other directions to substitute municipal for private work were equally unsuccessful. Instead of saving the profit made by the private firm the work cost the city 25 to 50 per cent more than it used to.

Mayor Quincy was a man of ability and integrity, but he was a victim of "too much Glasgow." His intentions were excellent, but he made no allowance for the innate and seemingly ineradicable waste and extravagance of an American municipality. There was no stealing, but there was a total lack of business capacity.

The experiences of Boston with municipal ownership during Mayor Quincy's administration are of more value to American cities than the experiences of Glasgow. They illustrate in dollars and cents the weaknesses and deficiencies of an American municipality when it undertakes to manage business matters. It plunges into municipal operation to save money and comes out with a deficit and a worn out plant.

BOTH of Boston's baseball teams appear to be envious of the celebrity attained by Washington last year.

The Old National Road.

[From the Philadelphia Ledger.]

When the panic of 1837 swept over the country the national road was barely halfway through Illinois. No work was done on it after 1841. Two years before, however, a line of stages and post routes had been started from Cumberland in Maryland to Terre Haute in Indiana, from which latter place there was a triweekly service for passengers and mail to Springfield, Ill. This marked the first overland travel from east to west. Passengers and mail bags were jolted along in cumbersome coaches, each with four strong horses. On account of the high rates travel was confined mainly to merchants and lawyers. The passenger, with an allowance of fifty pounds of baggage, paid at the rate of 10 cents a mile. It is noted that Clay and Lincoln were among the frequent passengers.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1905: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

ONE of the most extraordinary of swindlers, highly connected, the protégé of crowned heads, godson of Queen Elisabeth of Roumania, and who figured for a time in this country about eight or ten years ago under the name of "Prince Lahovary" and of "Count Manolescu," perpetrating innumerable swindles, is on his way once more to America with the object, he declares, of beginning "a new life" in the new world, and his audacity is so sublime and his cleverness so great that the laws prohibiting the admission of exconvicts into the United States are likely to prove a trifling obstacle indeed to his return here.

He has just managed to effect his release from the German lunatic asylum, to which his wife's influential relatives succeeded in effecting his transfer soon after his last conviction for fraud at Berlin, not only with the idea of averting in a measure the disgrace of having a near kinsman "doing time," but likewise in the hope of being able to keep him there for the remainder of his life and beyond the term of two years for which he had been sentenced to jail.

So plausible is he that he found but little difficulty in persuading the Countess Angelica von Konigsbruck, daughter of one of the most influential houses of the German aristocracy, to confer upon him her hand and her fortune at Genoa in 1896, and, having taken the precaution to wed her under his patronymic of Manolescu, it has been impossible to annul the marriage on the ground of fraud. Her only brother, a major of the Garde Reiter regiment, or mounted body guard of the king of Saxony, has been authorized by the latter, as well as by the king of Italy, to assume the Italian title of Prince Rodali, which became extinct at the death of his maternal grandfather, from whom he has inherited extensive estates in Sicily.

It is just as well that it should be borne in mind that this union of the countess to Manolescu has not been dissolved, and that therefore any matrimonial alliance which he may contract in this country will be bigamy, a trifling crime, however, in comparison to the long list of others which have been justly laid to his charge. The warning is the more necessary since if the man was ingenious and fascinating enough to succeed in marrying into one of the wealthiest houses of the German aristocracy, and to flourish for a considerable time at Vienna and at Berlin, sometimes under his own name, sometimes under that of "Prince Lahovary," and sometimes under the two combined, despite his record as a swindler of international fame, he need not despair of making dupes here, where people are so much more ready to take nobiliary titles at their face value owing to the trouble and difficulty involved in proving their authenticity. Moreover, the absence of any trustworthy lists of the aristocratic families of Roumania, of Greece, of the Balkan states, and of Poland renders it exceptionally easy for swindlers to adopt names and titles of these nationalities without much fear of detection.

Manolescu, it is only fair to state, is of gentle birth, and his father, who, like himself, bore the Christian name of George Manolescu, was a colonel in the Roumanian army high in the favor of the king and whose death was brought about by the disgrace of his son, for the latter's criminal record dates back to his sixteenth year, when he was forced to flee from Roumania to escape conviction. Three years later, finding himself at Athens, he fell so seriously ill that he was conveyed to the hospital, where he attracted the attention of Queen Olga, who, finding him destitute, not only interested herself in his case, visiting him almost daily, but likewise furnished him with a sum of several thousand francs on his recovery in order to admit of his returning home. Of course he did not go back to Roumania, but made his way to Paris, where he was soon engaged in new swindles, bringing him into conflict with the police, his first important conviction dating from April, 1890, when he was sentenced by the Paris courts to a term of four years' penal servitude for forgery and fraud.

New York, Monte Carlo, Lucerne, Geneva, Madrid, Calcutta, Ostend, and London have all been in turn the scene of his fraudulent operations, while at San Francisco, finding that he was under the observation of the detective police, he managed to induce them to believe that he was himself one of the principal officers of the secret service of Austria, fraternized with them, and actually induced them to help him to shadow some absolutely innocent foreign tourists staying at the same hotel as himself, whom he declared he had been instructed to watch in behalf of his government. He is a good looking, well educated, and possessed of the most charming manners, while he is also a brilliant conversationalist, making friends as easily with men as with women.

The prince of Wales is taking an active part in the organization of an international conference in London for the purpose of putting the international phase of yacht racing upon a firm and satisfactory basis, and the leading yacht clubs of America and of the various continental countries of Europe will be represented at the convention which is to take place shortly under the presidency of the prince of Wales. One of the objects of the congress is to devise a means for avoiding those complications which invariably arise in connection with international yachting contests on the subject of racing, and especially with regard to the methods of making the initial measurements. These methods vary so much that a yacht measuring larger than an opponent's under the British rule of racing might be entitled to receive a measurement allowance from the same vessel if both were rated under the rules of other countries in which yacht racing is followed as a sport. Thus it is claimed in England that had the Shamrock and the Reliance been measured for the last cup contest under either the British rule of rating or under the rule since adopted by the New York Yacht club the Shamrock would have won handsomely on time allowance.

These differences have not only led to endless discussion on the occasion of each international contest but have even had the effect of discouraging international yachting almost to the point of absolute stagnation. It will be the aim of the congress to effect some practicable and workable basis of agreement, and the negotiations already under way show that but little difficulty will be experienced in bringing the continental countries into line, and that the success of the congress and the future of international yacht racing will largely depend upon the attitude in the matter of American yacht clubs.

Adelina Patti's appointment to the knighthood of the French Legion of Honor has, as I predicted at the time, led to no end of a disturbance among French cantatrices and actresses, especially among the admirers of Sarah Bernhardt, who have repeatedly endeavored to obtain for her the cross of the Legion of Honor, but always without success. And now the question is raised in the chamber of deputies as to whether it has been given to Patti because she is Italian through her parents, Spanish by her birthplace, French through her first marriage to the Marquis de Caux, British by naturalization, French again by her marriage with Nicolini, or Swedish through her third marriage to her present husband, Baron Cederstrom. In fact, the government has brought down a regular hornet's nest about its ears by giving the cross to Patti, and from now on the lives of presidents, of cabinet ministers, and of under secretaries of state, while in office, will be made a burden to them by demands for the appointment to the order of every popular actress or fascinating footlight favorite.

Quite a number of actresses have received the order known as that of "Officer of the Academy," which consists of a couple of small silver palm leaves attached to a bit of violet ribbon. But none, as yet, has received the Legion of Honor. Patti is the first actress to receive it, and the only other women who are members of the order are the two queens of Holland, the queen regent of Spain, the wife of the French explorer, Dr. Dieulafoy, a small number of Sisters of Mercy for bravery in tending the wounded under fire, a couple of distinguished authoresses, and Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. Daniel Manning, the latter two for services in connection with the women's department of the recent international expositions. The three queens have the Grand Cordon, all the other women the Cross of Chevalier, which entitles them to military honors at their funeral, rendered by half a company of infantry—if they die in France.

A LINE-O'-TYPE OR TWO.

HIS SHADDER.

[Copyright: 1905: By Tribune Company.]

Eighty year, I am, an' past—
Nothin' much that I can do
'Cept remember who was who,
What they did, an' when an' how,
An' just talk like I do now
Of the things that use' to be
An' the things I'd hear an' see;
Friends I've had—an' I suppose
Like all men I've had my foes.
Eighty year—an' they go fast.
My shadder.

Ever think o' that? It stays
Right clos't to you all your days;
You may scheme an' tax your wit—
You can't get away from it!
An' I tell you, as for me
There's no better thing to see
Than your shadder, day by day,
Stayin' with you on your way.

Not the shadder that it was—
Shadders change as humans does.
First I mind of it at all
Was one time in airly fall—
Me a younker on the farm
Wilder than a fire alarm!
W'y, I mind the very day:
Sunset red—you know the way—
An' I noticed how it made
My boy shadder seem to wade
In the grass until it got
Clean acrost the pasture lot.

Shadders always shrinks at noon,
But at night— One time the moon
Made my shadder help me out
When my mind was full o' doubt
An' my heart was in a whirl
All because o'—well, a girl!
My shy shadder walked by hers—
Shadders knows what they p'fers!
An' I can't say, but I guess
'Twas her shadder whispered "Yes."

So it's been—an' now I've got
Where I like a sunny spot
To sit in, an' dream, an' see
My old shadder mockin' me!
See it nod an' shake its head
Like it said the things I said,
Like it was made by the glow
Of the sun o' long ago.
Who'd 'a' thought that it would be
All that would be left for me?
My shadder.

DON'TS FOR SPEAKER AND WRITER.

BY EDWARD B. WARMAN, A. M.
[Author of "Practical Orthoepy and Critique," "The Voice; How to Train It; How to Care for It," etc.]

[Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.]

Author's Note—It is one thing to record errors, quite another to avoid them. He who waits for the faultless one to cast the first critical stone waits in vain; therefore, as one of the many working for the betterment of the English language, I shall be pleased to receive kindly criticism, if, perchance, I, too, have erred.

Don't say "was" for "is."

Example: "The greatest of all paintings was that by Raphael," should be, "The greatest of all paintings is that by Raphael."

Note—What is true at all times should be expressed by using the verb in the present tense.

Example: "What did you say his name was?" should be "What did you say his name is?"

* * *

Don't say "was" for "have been."

Example: "I was never in Alaska," should be "I never have been in Alaska."

Note—See "saw" for "have seen."

* * *

Don't say "was" for "were."

Example: "Was there any prisoners?" should be "Were there any prisoners?"

* * *

Don't say "wearies" for "weary" or "aweary."

Example: "He wearies of life" should be "He is weary of life," or "He is aweary of life."

* * *

Don't say "we both" for "we."

Example: "The young man called and we both took a walk," should be "The young man called and we took a walk."

* * *

Don't say "wedding trousseau" for "trousseau."

Note—A trousseau is a "bride's outfit," hence the word wedding is superfluous.

* * *

Don't say "we" for "us."

Example: "Let we girls go with you?" should be "Let us girls go with you."

* * *

Don't say "went" for "have gone."

Example: "I never went to China," should be "I never have gone to China."

* * *

Don't say "were" for "was."

Example: "A large gang of men were at work," "A large crowd of spectators were present," "A bevy of girls were in attendance," should be "A large gang of men was at work," "A large crowd of spectators was present," "A bevy of girls was in attendance."

Note—The best authorities use the single verb with collective nouns.

The Writer, Boston, Mass.—To my ear the former seems more euphonious.

* * *

Don't say "what" for "that."

Example: "I cannot believe but what he did it," should be "I cannot believe but that he did it."

* * *

Don't say "where at" for "where."

Example: "Where is he at?" should be "Where is he?"

* * *

Don't say "where to" for "where."

Example: "Where has he gone to?" should be "Where has he gone?"

* * *

Don't say "who" for "that."

Example: "This is the man who saved my life," should be "This is the man that saved my life."

Note—The use of that or who depends upon the construction of the sentence. "If it is a restrictive clause, that should be the relative; if coordinate, who or which.

"'That' is the proper restrictive, explicative, limitive, or defining relative."—The Verbalist.

* * *

Don't say "who" for "whom."

Example: "Who do you know?" "Who did she marry?" "Who are you looking for?" "Who are you talking to?" should be "Whom do you know?" "Whom do you see?" "Whom did she marry?" "Whom are you looking for?" "Whom are you talking to?"

Note—The last two are according to many grammarians, but I prefer them thus:

"For whom are you looking?"

"To whom are you talking."

* * *

Don't say "whom" for "who."

Example: "Searching for his daughter whom he thought might have been saved." "To marry the woman whom the lawyers endeavored to prove was his first wife," "Whom Christian Scientists claim has shown," etc., should be "Searching for his daughter who he thought might have been saved." "To marry the woman who the lawyers endeavored to prove was his first wife," "Who Christian Scientists claim has shown," etc.

CONSUMMATION OF TARIFF REFORM IMPROBABLE BY PIECEMEAL PLAN.

Relation of Reciprocity Treaties to Agitation Considered—Career of Henry Guy Carleton in World of Literature Is Remarkable.

BY RICHARD WEIGHTMAN.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—On the perfectly safe assumption that congress will not change its attitude toward the reciprocity treaties because of Germany's scarcely veiled threats of retaliation it is easy to take an unclouded view of the prospects of tariff reform.

Our lawmakers understand pretty well that neither Germany nor any other foreign nation trades with this country on sentimental grounds, and they feel quite sure that so long as we offer the best market for products which the outside world needs and must obtain somewhere we shall hold our present position in the field of international commerce.

The question of tariff reform, therefore, is purely domestic—a question for us to decide in our own interests and without the smallest reference to the scowls and importunities of foreigners. Here, then, we are confronted with a perplexing situation, for while almost every one feels that amendments are desirable, no one seems willing to open the door for the controversy and the agitation which inevitably would attend the proposed legislation.

Producers Averse to Change.

This manufacturer would like to have a lower duty on imported hides, another interest clamors for free cotton ties. There is hardly a schedule which somebody wouldn't like to have changed. Yet it may be said without much danger of going astray that American producers, considered in combination, are averse to an inauguration of tariff reform. No one knows where it will strike or where it will stop when once set in motion. Each one is willing to profit so far as he is personally concerned, but none can be sure that it will not be his neighbor who profits at his expense.

It is this uncertainty that furnishes the cohesion for the protectionist body. Animated by a thousand different interests if not always antagonistic, at least not necessarily identical, they are yet held together in one homogeneous mass by the sense of a common peril. One and all anxious for a more favorable adjustment of the schedule respectively affecting them, they one and all fear to liberate the mysterious and immeasurable force.

Draper's Definition Candid.

Perhaps the most candid and intelligent definition of the protectionist attitude I have yet heard was given me by Gen. W. F. Draper of Hopedale, Mass., not long ago. Gen. Draper is a wealthy manufacturer of cotton machinery. It may be that the tariff benefits him, but I hardly think so since the raw material which he uses in his works would come to him cheaper under a free trade dispensation.

It is quite imaginable, however, that his customers would suffer if protection were withdrawn, though I really think that his attitude is purely patriotic and unselfish. At all events his argument is that the tariff reformers propose to obliterate an institution under which the country has prospered wonderfully without offering in exchange for the existing dispensation any explicit, duly formulated, and intelligible substitute. Approached by them with more or less pertinent criticisms of the present tariff, he always asks what they have to offer in exchange for it, and so far he has had no satisfactory reply. He and his coadjutors of the Home Market club of Boston do not contend that the tariff is everything it should be. What they demand is that it shall be retained until there is a better one ready to put in its place.

Gen. Draper Observant.

Gen. Draper is not only a prominent manufacturer, he has filled important positions in public life. He has served in congress, and for several years was United States ambassador in Italy. Moreover, he is a leisurely and observant traveler, widely acquainted among the ruling classes in foreign lands. His opportunities for acquiring authentic information have been exceptional, and it is obvious to the most casual acquaintance that he has made the most of them.

Regarding him, therefore, as a representative of the protectionist sentiment and attitude, one easily reaches the conclusion that, whereas the tariff some day may be readjusted as a whole, the consummation is not likely to be reached by installments, through the piecemeal process of reciprocity treaties.

View of Henry Guy Carleton.

Henry Guy Carleton, who had a stroke of apoplexy at Jacksonville, Fla., last Tuesday, must be well enough known and remembered in Chicago to justify a brief reference to his remarkable career. For a few years he was engaged in journalism there, going afterwards to New York, which ever since has been his permanent place of residence, but no city in which Carleton has camped for so much as twelve months is likely to forget him altogether, for in the whole course of my experience I have encountered no such astounding, vivid, and erratic person.

I met him first in 1877, when, after resigning his commission in the army, he wandered into New Orleans and got a job on the Times. He had had no training whatever in newspaper work, but he quickly took a place in the front rank of paragraphists, feuilletonists, critics, and essayists, with whom New Orleans was by no means poorly supplied at that time. When the great yellow fever epidemic of 1878 broke out he stuck to his post, was the only nonimmune on the staff who didn't succumb to the disease, and daily regaled the city, including the convalescents, with literature of a brilliancy and audacity not often seen in journalism either then or since.

Chicago Career Picturesque.

The proprietor, hiding in the safe refuge of central Iowa, used to discharge him about twice a month by telegraph because of some peculiarly spicy paragraph, but they couldn't do without him long and he held on until the end. His career in Chicago was brief but picturesque. Thence he went to New York, was in the group that founded Life, to which he contributed the ever famous annals of the Thompson street poker club, wrote for the Times and the World, and at last broke into the drama with "Victor Durand," which netted him a good deal of money. He was the author also of "The Lion's Mouth," "The Gilded Fool," which Nat Goodwin produced, "The Butterflies," in which John Drew starred for quite a while, and a dozen other comedies and melodramas, all good for revenue and reputation. He dabbled in science, too.

Prof. Doremus told me in New York that Carleton knew more about chemistry than he did. Nicola Tesla treated him as an equal in matters electrical. Besides, he had the most astonishing influence over animals I ever saw displayed by any human being. The wildest alley cat would answer his call, pariah dogs stopped at his summons and became almost offensive in their overtures of affection.

Mystery Yet Phenomenon.

Withal, he was a mystery to everybody. He had not a really intimate bosom friend that I ever heard of. Men admired his extraordinary gifts, wondered over him, envied him, and enjoyed him, but no one knew him or could count on him two days at a stretch. Henry Irving read some of his blank verse and sent him a check for $2,500 as a retainer in case he wrote another classic drama.

When Grant died Carleton composed eight lines of poetry, of which Tennyson himself might have been proud, and the New York Times printed them in the center of its first page with a display border. He was a phenomenon. He always reminded me of Margrave in Bulwer's "Strange Story."

I have heard others say that he was a reincarnation of Balsamo or a realization of the long looked for Prester John. This is no fairy tale. It is a perfectly accurate impressionistic sketch of Henry Guy Carleton.

Asking Advice.

[From the Arizona Republican.]

The sheriff of Santa Cruz county, Ariz., has received the following letter from one of his constituents:

"Mr. Charles Fowler.—Dear Sir: I thought I would write you a few lines to ask you a few words, and I don't want to do anything until I hear from you. My stepfather is chussing (probably chasing or cussing) my mother all the time, and she don't want him around here any more and she wants him to leave but he won't go. He is just chussing her all the time and once he was going to hit her with a rock but I made him lay it down. She is washing all the time and trying to do right with him and I am going to stop this. I am asking you what I will do and be sure and tell me what if I would shut (shoot) him. I think I would be in the right because I don't care for him and if I do kill him I will show you that I was right. Well, I will close for this time. Be sure and write and tell me what to do. So good-by, Yours truly,

BOYS WANDER IN WOODS; ONE DIES.

Lost Child's Body Found Floating in River—Companion Sleeps Under Bowlder.

SCORE INJURED IN WRECK.

Elevated Train Stopped by Open Draw Displays No Signals—Another Crashes Into Rear.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, May 7.

Frank Levine and Samuel Marks, 3 and 4 years old respectively, ran away from their homes in Port Chester yesterday to gather wild flowers and hunt squirrels in the woods. Today the body of Levine was found floating in Byram river three miles from Port Chester, while the Marks boy was found exhausted, lying under a big bowlder.

Babies Wander from Home One Is Found Dead.

For hours the police had been searching for the missing lads, while their parents and relatives were scouring the neighborhood, as it was first feared the little fellows had been kidnaped. When the Marks boy was found he was lying beneath a large bowlder with his sweater pulled over his eyes to keep away mosquitoes hovering about his head.

When asked where Levine was he said he did not know, as they had been lost in the woods and had separated. For twelve hours they had wandered about alone.

"I'se got awfully tired walking," said Samuel. "So I'se had to lie right down and sleep. I'se didn't know what became of Frankie, and I felt awfully lonesome and was afraid the bogy man would carry me off."

The body of the Levine boy was found lying face downward in only a foot of water.

In a collision on the Third avenue elevated road at the One Hundred and Thirty-third street station this afternoon a score or more of persons were injured. The two trains, bound downtown, met on a curve a little south of the station. Beyond is Harlem river. This section of the structure is over the freightyards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Here it is high, and nervous passengers always shiver when looking out of the car windows.

Score Injured in Elevated Wreck; No Signals Given.

A seven car train pulled into the station, and after taking a few passengers started on its way south. After rounding the curve the motorman saw that the drawbridge over Harlem river was open. He stopped his train and waited for the draw to close.

According to the elevated employés, there is no signal nor is there any provision made for one to show that the train has been stopped. The motorman of the following train had no means of knowing that the other had been stalled. He didn't find it out until he had turned the curve and was within thirty feet of the last car. Both trains were filled with passengers.

"I personally will attend to the cases of the Tammany senators who voted against 75 cent gas." Such was the announcement which Thomas F. Smith of Tammany hall, received today from leader Murphy over the telephone from a point in the west.

The men thus marked for vengeance are Samuel J. Foley, John A. Hawkins, John C. Fitzgerald, Bernard F. Martin, and Daniel J. Riordan. These are the men who helped defeat the bill. Secretary Smith said tonight that Mr. Murphy had told him over the telephone that he (Murphy) had had absolutely nothing to do with controlling the votes of Tammany senators who opposed cheaper gas.

Mayor McClellan has been angry at Tammany senators who opposed cheap gas in Manhattan, and he sent at least one vigorous protest to Albany against any desertion by Tammany of the cause of the people against the lighting monopoly.

The Baroness Caroline von Roques, mother of Mrs. Florence Maybrick, arrived from Europe Saturday and left today for Washington to give her testimony in her suit against D. W. Booker Washington this afternoon addressed a massmeeting of negroes who want to lift a $10,000 debt from the colored branch of the Y. M. C. A. Of this sum J. P. Morgan has contributed $500. Mr. Washington told of the hopeful conditions confronting the negro race in New York. "I have always been proud of my race, and I am prouder of it this afternoon than ever before," he said. "No temptation, were it physically possible, could make me become a Japanese, Chinaman, Englishman, or anything else but an American negro.

There was a fall in her temperature from 103 to 100, but with this exception there was no change in her condition. Mrs. Booth is suffering from grip and tonsilitis. She has had to cancel several engagements in other cities.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS

OTHELLO.

A Tragedy in Five Acts.
BY WILLIAM SHAKSPEARE.

Presented at Hyde & Behman's Theater, Chicago, by Robert Mantell and His Company, May 7, 1905. The Cast:

Othello	Robert B. Mantell
Iago	Robert T. Haines
Cassio	Harry Leighton
Brabantio	Dan Gilfether
Duke of Venice	Frederick Paulding
Montano	W. H. Montgomery
Roderigo	Ben S. Mears
Desdemona	Marie Booth Russell
Emilia	Lillian Carroll Kingsbury

It has been several years since Shakspeare's "Othello" was presented last in Chicago. The Verdi operatic version of it has been given by both the Metropolitan and the Savage organizations, but the tragedy itself has remained for a decade or more neglected save for a single production offered by one of the local stock companies. The fact serves to show how few are the players devoting themselves to the Shakspearean drama. There was a time when no season passed without bringing not only one, but several presentations of "Hamlet," "Othello," "Richard III.," and "Julius Cæsar," but that time was in the "palmy days," and the "palmy days" are not of the present, at least so far as the classic drama is concerned.

Last evening at Hyde & Behman's Mr. Mantell inaugurated the third week of his interesting and instructive engagement by presenting a carefully prepared and generally adequate production of "Othello." The audience was of only moderate size, but it was responsive, and received the work of the star and his associates with liberal expressions of approval. In Othello Mr. Mantell finds a rôle which seemingly is not quite so congenial to him as is Richelieu. He plays it well—exceedingly well—but there is a suggestion of more labor and more "acting" than was discovered in his portrayal of the cardinal.

Othello requires, of course, a broader and more dramatic handling, and this more impassioned style may be in part responsible for the impression received. The actor in shaping his impersonation has not failed to recognize the fact that the Moor was first and foremost a soldier—one "rude . . . in speech and little blest with the soft phrase of peace." His Moor is vigorous, quick in action and utterance, and aggressive when in anywise provoked.

Even the tenderness shown toward Desdemona has in it a bigness and an impetuosity which tell of the warrior. And when anger causes him to throttle Iago or to strike Desdemona with the scroll there is an elemental strength in the attack which speaks of the hot blooded southerner in whom the barbarian is only slightly concealed. The one wholly gentle moment in the portrayal comes with the utterance of the cry in the fourth act act, "O, Desdemona! Away! away! away!" Here the heart broken husband and lover speaks, and the intense pathos Mr. Mantell put into the single line last evening held his auditors absolutely still.

The scene with Iago in Act III., in which the jealousy of Othello is first aroused, was handled with admirable skill, the mental processes of the tortured man being made clear to the onlooker and yet so quietly suggested that the histrionic means employed at no time obtruded. The accusation of Desdemona in the fourth act was in the highest degree impassioned, and yet ranting was successfully avoided. It was as a whole an impersonation finely balanced, admirably proportioned, virile, and intense, with a fundamental element of toughness, yet free from all suggestion of commonness or coarseness. This Moor was a soldier and an impetuous son of the south, but he was a nobleman by nature.

The Iago of Mr. Haines proved a portrayal of many excellencies. It was not the most subtle impersonation possible, but the frankly villainous soliloquies with which the part is so liberally supplied were read with a cynically contemplative air which saved them from the melodramatic effect which lies close at hand, and the insinuating speeches of Othello were delivered with a simulated sincerity which made the terrible influence they exerted seem plausible.

One of the best moments in Mr. Haines' performance was the manner in which the poem descriptive of a deserving woman—"She that was ever fair and never proud"—was spoken. It seemed an extemporization, and yet its every point was made distinct. The least satisfactory achievement of the actor was in the speech after Othello has throttled Iago. It was delivered solely to make the auditor laugh. There was more of seriousness in Iago's mind at that moment.

Miss Russell made a handsome Desdemona, and her affectations seemed a little less annoying than they had in the roles in which she had been seen earlier in the engagement.

FRENCH NOTABLE SEES FIRE DRILL

President of Steamship Line Pleased with Performance of Campion's Men.

GREETED BY THE MAYOR.

Dinner in Honor of M. Jules Charles-Roux Given at the Auditorium Annex.

As a fitting close to a day of honors paid by Chicagoans, including the chief executive of the city, to M. Jules Charles-Roux, president of the French Line Steamship company, Mayor Dunne ordered for him last evening a special fire drill under the personal direction of Chief Campion.

At 7 o'clock the party, including M. Charles-Roux, Gaston de Pellerin de Latouche, administrator délégué of the steamship line, M. W. Kosminski, the Chicago representative; Henri Merou, the French consul, and other French-Americans and friends, left the Auditorium Annex and walked to Wabash avenue and Congress street, where, under the direction of Chief Campion, "M. le President" pulled the box sending in the alarm.

Quick Response by Firemen.

Before they had covered the length of the block to the Auditorium corner, where the drill was to be given, companies 1 and 9 had answered the call and were busy with their mock maneuvers. The exact time consumed in responding to the alarm was one minute and forty-three seconds, and the wonderment expressed by the Frenchmen increased as they watched the speed with which the ladders were put in place against an imaginary building and streams of water directed upon supposititious flames.

Frightened faces peered out of the hotel windows and several guests hurried from the dining room, but their fears were relieved when they saw the cause of the alarm was only a fictitious conflagration in Lake Front park. After the display M. Charles-Roux congratulated Chief Campion upon the discipline of his companies and remarked in French that, although he was supposed to be acquainted with the business upon the large bodies of water, he would be at a loss how to handle the liquid in "tubes."

After the dinner in the Annex the party of fourteen went to a theater. During the day M. Charles-Roux and his friends were the guests of M. W. Kosminski at his residence, 1412 Judson avenue, Evanston. At a large dinner early in the afternoon Mayor Dunne welcomed the foreigner to the city. Toasts were given by John Sebastian, La Verne W. Noyes, M. Henri Merou, George A. Charleton, Ferdinand W. Peck, F. C. Donald, F. C. Babcock, and others. In his speech to the many compliments paid to him M. Charles-Roux invited those seated at the table to be present upon the first trip of the new steamship, La Provence, which was recently launched.

Member of Legion of Honor.

M. Charles-Roux is considered one of the first maritime authorities of the world. He has represented Marseilles in the French chamber of deputies for nine years, and includes among his many titles the following list of eminent positions: President of the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique, vice president of the Suez canal commission, president of the Maritime League of France, member of all the high councils of French departments, officer of the Legion of Honor, and recipient of thirty different decorations. He is here at present to study the workings of American steamship lines, and will sail from New York for Paris on May 11. Before leaving Chicago this evening he will visit the stockyards, the board of trade, and the public buildings of the city.

ST. GEORGE'S DAY CELEBRATED.

Open Air Wedding in South Chicago Witnessed by More than 1,000 Hungarians and Austrians.

St. George's day was celebrated in South Chicago yesterday by more than 1,000 Hungarians and Austrians, who closed the day's merrymaking by witnessing an open air wedding of a Hungarian lass, who arrived in South Chicago on Saturday. The bride and groom were Antoinette Korwich and John Bulich, who were sweethearts in the old country. Some of the merrymakers began shooting late in the evening, and three of them were arrested for shooting inside the city limits.

English Arts and Crafts Furniture in Fumed Oak

Some years ago a little band of workers came into prominence in England by advocating a style of furniture that was in direct opposition to that offered for sale by the various shops. That offered in the shops was of two kinds: One an absolute copy of, or designs based upon, historic models; the other "a lot for the money kind," its style being a matter of little importance. The new furniture produced under the direction of this band of workers was simple, refined and often beautiful. It was a style that steadily increased in favor in the eyes of purchasers of the more intelligent class, until it became "quite the fashion" in England.

The American manufacturers took up this line of work, and it is now offered in the various stores under the name of "Mission" and "Arts and Crafts" furniture, some of which has merit and much of which has not.

After careful investigation we believe that we have a line of Arts and Crafts Furniture that has superior merit. It is designed by a noted English designer, lately with Warings of London, and is made in this country. It has the line of refinement of the furniture shown in the best English shops, and the fumed color of the oak is the same as the English. The copper handles, hinges and ornaments are hand-wrought.

We have an entire room, designed by this English designer, and fitted up with this furniture, to give an idea how it appears when properly assembled. We extend a cordial invitation to visitors to examine this furniture, whether wishing to purchase or not, that our practical and experienced salesmen may explain its many points of superior merit.

The assortment is large and prices moderate for articles of such high merit, as the following partial price list will indicate:

Features not usually seen in Shirtwaist Suit styles prevail throughout our entire displays—in fact, it is their decided difference which wins for them the immediate approval of every visitor.

Two of the best values offered this season are shown in the illustrations.

Hand Embroidered Linen Shirtwaist Suits of sheer French linen; the waists are prettily embroidered in chrysanthemum pattern with tucks over the shoulders to form fullness, skirts are side plaited, $10.00.

In fancy figured Silks and Checks, a very effective new style has just been received; waists are made with small vests of imitation Irish lace, very full box plaited skirt, black and white checks, navy, brown, green and jasper, $25.00.

Wash Net Costumes with shirred blouse and detachable guimpe, skirt made with flounce to the knee, $25.00.

Wash Net Costumes trimmed with narrow lace insertion and tucks and shirring, short sleeves and round length skirt, $20.00.

An elaborate model in Wash Net Costumes, trimmed with lace medallions and fine tucks on both waists and skirts, short sleeves, $37.50.

Our Great Spring Reduction Sale of Women's Tailored Suits

Begins this morning, and includes our entire remaining lines of early spring models.

Some of the lines are complete in sizes, others are made up of great numbers of broken lots and odd lines. Practically all of the models introduced in our early spring displays are represented—Three-quarter coats, loose box coats, and Eton and blouse styles in plain cheviots, broadcloths and Panamas, and checked worsteds and Panamas.

The reductions we have made should effect an immediate thorough clearance at each price.

$15.00 $18.50 $22.50 $30.00

Sheer Dress Goods, Special at $1.75.

Drap du Jour—a very beautiful filmy texture for afternoon and evening gowns in plain shades of ciel blue, onion brown, reseda green, silver gray and royal blue—47 inches wide; a very fortunate purchase brings the price to about half the regular value, yard, $1.75. Second Floor South Room.

White Waists—New Models for the May Sale.

The beautiful models in English allover eyelet embroidery and the sheer fluffy Lingerie Blouses are largely responsible for the remarkable success of this sale. Every style shown is exclusive—selected for its surpassing merit and confined to our displays. The special May sale prices on these waists range from $7.25 to $9.75. Fourth Floor Middle Room.

Four of the best values offered in this sale will be placed on sale this morning.

White Lawn Waists, front trimmed with rows of English needlework and German Valenciennes lace insertion, as illustrated, at $3.95.

Millinery Specials in Ready-to-Trim Hats Roses and Rose Foliage.

Unusually low prices and the most varied selections we have ever offered in Spring Millinery combine in making this section unequaled in its attractiveness to intending purchasers. Every little conceit in trimmings and all the season's smartest shapes are represented. Fourth Floor South Room.

Ready-to-Trim Hats made of silk braid and chiffon, lines made to sell at a considerably higher price—a variety of shapes in black, brown, red and navy, special, $2.75.

Untrimmed Block Shapes, made of the finest quality of hemp braid, in black, brown, navy, burnt straw, $2.75.

SELEE'S TEAM SCORES SHUTOUT.

Briggs Holds the Missourians at Bay in Game on the West Side Field.

JACK TAYLOR A VICTIM.

Famous Pitcher Contributes to the Locals' Success by His Misplays.

Selee's Zephyrs spent a pleasant afternoon with Jack Taylor yesterday and cleaned up the fourth straight victory over the St. Louis cardinals, the score being 3 to 0. It was not so much what the west side team did to the cardinal pitcher, as what Taylor did to himself. If he had not issued a pass in the first inning the first run scored by Selee's men would not have counted; and if he had not messed up things in awful shape in the seventh inning, making a wild pitch which permitted another west sider to score, the game would have been fairly close. Dave Brain was responsible for the other run scored by Chicago, his fumble of an easy grounder in the sixth inning enabling Barry to register at the plate when he should have been a "dead one" by yards.

Between 11,000 and 12,000 people saw the contest, but outside of the merry jests hurled at Taylor by the bleacherites, there was not enough interest in the game to cause any kind of "noise." The game was easy for Selee's men, with "Buttons" Briggs pitching in great form. Briggs had the cardinals tamed and for eight innings not one of the visitors could get past second base. Only two of them got that far, and they had to steal to do it. But in the ninth, one cardinal reached third base. He died there. For eight innings the number of hits off each twirler was three, but before the visitors finished they counted two more.

Get a Good Lead.

The Zephyrs got busy in the scoring line right at the start. Casey began the good work by waiting for a pass, and a neat sacrifice by Schulte landed him on second. Barry was easy on his grounder to Beckley, and Casey moved up another notch. Then Maloney put a little one half way between the plate and the slab. Both Taylor and Grady went after it, but neither could pick up the ball until after Maloney had crossed first and Casey had scored.

For the next five innings it was three down in a row, but in the sixth, after Casey was a goner, Schulte drove the ball almost to the bleacher fence in left field and pulled up at third. Barry then sent a grounder down to Brain, who fumbled it, and Schulte counted. Maloney, who followed, being an easy out.

All That Are Needed.

The final run came in the next round. Slagle singled to left and went on to second because Shannon tried to play hide and seek with the ball. Tinker died on a grounder to Brain, and Hofman put a little bounder to Taylor. Jack threw to the plate to nail Slagle, but the Rabbit gave the cardinals a merry chase up and down the base line until Hofman had reached third base, from where he scored on Taylor's wild pitch. Enough was plenty, so the Zephyrs stopped then. Score:

Notes of the Zephyrs' Game.

Taylor's wild pitch resembled the one he made in the opening game of the series, which he lost. It was so wide Grady could not have reached it with a fishing pole.

The only catch which brought cheers from the crowd was made by Dunleavy in right field. Tinker hit it out in the second inning, but the Cardinal, after a sprint, pulled the sphere down.

Briggs certainly was right yesterday. His curves were breaking over the plate in fine shape. He had Beckley foozled on two shoulder strikes in the ninth inning, when a hit would have saved a whitewash.

Tinker's double play was pretty. With Smoot at first in the fourth, Brain smashed a liner straight into Joe's hands, and he ran over and touched Smoot, who was coming down from first like a fire engine.

Shannon misjudged that fly which counted as a triple for Schulte. He was playing in for the ball, and when Schulte hit he started off to one side away from the ball, instead of straight back. If he had gone back he probably could have got it.

The Zephyrs left last night for the first invasion of the season of the east. Wicker and Kling were the only players who did not go. Kling, who is at his home in Kansas City, will join the team in Boston on Thursday or Friday. Capt. Chance went with the players, but it is not likely he will be able to get into the game in the east.

Barrow Gets Off Easily.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 7.—President O'Brien of the American association has suspended Manager Barrow of the Indianapolis team for two days for engaging in a fistic encounter with Umpire Hart on April 28, when the game with Kansas City was called at the end of the sixth inning on account of darkness. First Baseman Dickey of Indianapolis and Center Fielder Jones of Minneapolis were fined $10 each for rowdyism in a game at Indianapolis on May 1.

WHITE SOX LOSE TO CLEVELAND.

Lajoie's Sluggers, Aided by the Poor Playing of Locals, Register a Shutout, 2 to 0.

TWO HITS OFF RHOADES.

Comiskey's Players Have a Hard Time Connecting with Ball—Holmes Is Benched.

Cleveland administered its fourth straight defeat and third shutout in four games to the White Stockings yesterday. The score was 2 to 0, and the immense Sunday crowd filed slowly and dejectedly out of the lot, thoroughly convinced that Manager Jones and his men are down and out for the present in the grueling American league race.

Two singles, made by Owen and McFarland, were the sum total of the White Sox stick work against "Dusty" Rhoades, but it was not inability to hit so much as their poor judgment in picking out balls to hit at that made the Sox look so bad. And the failure to bat has affected their fielding so much that they put up a ragged exhibition yesterday—for them.

Frank Owen pitched the best game he has shown since he was injured last fall, holding the sluggers in his hand at all times. With the pitchers shifted and Owen backed up by Cleveland's fielding Owen would have won his game by a wide margin.

Two Runs Are Gifts.

The two runs scored were gifts by the left fielders. After Holmes had muffed two flies, one of which he saved by forcing a runner at second on it, and the other of which let in Cleveland's first run, Manager Jones benched "Ducky." Green was sent to right and Callahan switched around to left, where his misjudgment of Bemis' liner in the ninth let in Cleveland's second tally. With the usual support accorded their pitchers by the Sox the two teams might have struggled along to nightfall without a run.

The first gift run was scored in the third after two were out. Jackson bumped a safety into right and Bay lifted a fly to short left, which Holmes muffed. Flick then hit a Texas leaguer over third base, scoring Jackson. Owen wisely passed Lajoie, filling the sacks, and forced Bradley to hit to Tannehill, ending the bout.

Turner opened the ninth with a clean single and was sacrificed ahead. Bemis ripped a liner into left. Callahan started in, then turned and gave chase too late, Bemis getting a double and Turner scoring.

Sox Lose Good Chances.

The Sox had several good chances to tie up or win out. Rhoades was pretty generous, passing the first batter up twice. But the best chance the locals had was in the fifth. With Davis out Lajoie kindly missed Donohue's roller and McFarland sent "Jiggs" around to third with a long single to left. Then the Sox showed how badly they are in the rut. Rhoades didn't want to let Tannehill hit the ball and gave him three wide ones in succession. Instead of waiting, Tannehill swung at the fourth ball, which was high, and popped out to Bradley. Dundon struck out, the third strike being a lunge at a curve ball which went several inches above his head. That was a sample of how the White Sox did not play baseball. Score:

Notes of the White Sox Game.

Nothing more here until Friday.

Carr and Bemis between them had twenty-two putouts, leaving only five for all the other seven players.

President Comiskey is considering putting all his batteries into the game, as they are the only Sox who are hitting at all.

From a White Sox's standpoint it is a poor schedule which keeps two teams playing together for seven consecutive games.

Tannehill played Bay for a bunt in the first inning and Bay fooled him by hitting a bounder, which Lee muffed in his surprise.

The White Sox and Clevelanders left at 8:30 last night for Cleveland, where they have two more games to play today and tomorrow.

There was a "high sky," which might have bothered the visitors as well as the Sox if Jones' men had been able to hit the ball in the air.

A wag in the bleachers had a bugle and used a high note to express glee and a low one to express disgust. He blew the low note until it was hearse.

Holmes saved his muff in the first inning by forcing Bay at second on it. The catch looked so certain that Bay had started back to first and could not get to second ahead of "Ducky's" throw.

The kite advertisement nuisance ought to be suppressed when the printed streamers are allowed to float over the playing field, as they were yesterday, so low that a fly ball might have been interfered with. That none of the flies hit the "ads" was not the fault of the kite flyers.

The Sox did not get a ball past the infield until the fifth inning. Then it was due to Lajoie's kindness that Donohue's roller went through. Aside from that the Sox hit just four balls past the infield in nine innings. Two of them were hits and two were easy flies. Donohue hit the ball hardest of all in the second, but it went straight at Carr, who caught it.

AGILE SURE TO BE DERBY FAVORITE.

Opinion at Louisville Is He Will Be at Odds On for Kentucky Event.

EASTERNERS AFTER DADE

Western Starter Likely to Be Engaged to Help Cassady Wield Flag.

Louisville, Ky., May 7.—[Special.]—Agile, Capt. Brown's candidate for the Kentucky Derby next Wednesday, will be an odds on choice for the classic, and past performances warrant him being the public favorite. With the Tennessee Derby and the Phœnix Hotel stakes to his credit, he stands out over his field.

Private timers say Agile ran the last mile of the Phœnix Hotel handicap in better than 1:39. Agile is a grand colt, being the only one of the prominent candidates for the Derby which won stake events as a 2 year old.

Ram's Horn, Capt. J. T. Williams' entry for the Kentucky prize, will be second choice in the betting, and a grand looking individual is the winner of the Montgomery handicap, in which he defeated some of the best handicap horses in the west, among the number being Tokalon, the speed marvel of the western turf. Ram's Horn is a large bay of plenty of bone and muscle and partial to a fast track.

Ram's Horn will be in receipt of five pounds from the favorite and Dr. Leggo. The latter, the winner of the Ascot and Oakland Derbies, is a small horse, but is all horse. Trainers who have seen the son of Puryear D.—Sevens express themselves in enthusiastic terms of this colt. Trainer McCafferty thinks Dr. Leggo will give a good account of himself in the Derby, as his past performances have been excellent both as a 2 year old and as a 3 year old, having defeated the best horses of all ages on the Pacific coast this winter. Dr. Leggo will go the distance and will run almost every quarter alike.

Ivan the Terrible, the entry of W. W. Darden, is the winner of the Cumberland Derby and holds a record for a three-quarter dash, beating Gold Enamel at Chicago. Mr. Darden thinks the son of Pirate of Penzance—Kate Pelletier will be so far in front of his competitors that they will be unable to overtake him.

GOSSIP OF THE EASTERN TURF.

Jockey Club Stewards to Secure Starter to Divide Work with Cassidy—Dade May Be Man.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Rumor has been current among the turfmen for several days that the jockey club stewards are on the lookout for another starter to divide up the work on the local tracks with Mars Cassidy. The report has it that the western starter, A. R. Dade, who recently signed to handle the barrier for the Crescent City Jockey club of New Orleans instead of C. J. Fitzgerald, who has resigned, has a chance for the position, although Dade's present engagements with the Western Jockey club have tied up his services until the middle of June.

Jake Holtman and Richard Dwyer, the crack starters, who are under contract to the American Turf association, are not at liberty, as they have signed with the Corrigan outfit for the entire season. Horsemen who have seen Dade at work declare he is the equal of Holtman or Dwyer in that he has splendid control over the jockey and possesses a wonderfully quick eye for perfect alignments. While it is not known whether the jockey club stewards have made direct overtures to Dade, it is said that if his services can be secured he is certain to be the selection to fill Mr. Fitzgerald's place on the metropolitan circuit.

Considerable fault has been found with Cassidy's starting, although he has had many obstacles to contend with in the shape of green horses and disobedient jockeys. The limit was reached last week, when he fined Burns the nominal sum of $200 for misconduct at the post. The fact that Cassidy has not been allowed to use the "walk up and flying start" is ascribed as the reason for some poor sendoffs, although many other starts have been without a flaw.

The Jockey club stewards, however, insist that a standing flatfooted break is the fairest method for getting fields away and they have no idea of making a change. It is said Mr. Fitzgerald's starting under the present system was eminently satisfactory, while all of the western starters are using this kind of break with excellent results.

The classic Withers stakes for 3 year olds at one mile will be run at Belmont Park next Saturday. Looking over the list of eligibles, a number of horsemen expressed the opinion today that James R. Keene's Sysonsby, in view of his performance in the Metropolitan handicap, when he was undoubtedly short, would be returned winner. Sysonsby ran a dead with Race King, although the Keene colt had not been to the post before this season. That the Metropolitan was a source of much benefit to the Melton colt there can be no doubt, so Trainer Rowe will keep him going all week with the idea of winning the Withers from a good field.

There are three other eligibles from the Keene stable, Vontromp, Wild Mint, and Regal, but Sysonsby will be the selection. To meet him August Belmont's Blandy, by Hastings—Belinda, which won the Belmont Park Inaugural, will be sent to the post in fine fettle, while S. S. Brown's Glen Echo also may go if he comes east in time. John E. Madden may be represented by Hot Shot or Sigilight, although neither was of much account as a 2 year old. Sydney Paget's Woodsall and Cairngorm are both slated to start, together with R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Sparkling Star, which ran Roseben, winner of the Toboggan handicap on Saturday, to a neck finish.

SPORTING COMMENT.

The sooner the citizens of Auburn Park stop the abuse which the Leland Giants baseball team is making of their toleration of Sunday baseball by playing so-called "double headers" the better it will be for their own Sunday quiet and for the good of baseball as well. There is little excuse for "double headers" in baseball at any time. Among amateur or semi-professional teams they are wholly inexcusable. No postponed games make them necessary to complete a schedule. The attempt to foist such attractions here in Chicago by the semi-professional managers is a cheap-john, catchpenny idea that is a disgrace to sport. All baseball on Sunday is opposed by many worthy people, but their ideas are not shared by a majority. If the toleration of it, however, is abused as the Leland Giants are abusing it the Sunday observers will be justified in stepping in and stopping the nuisance. There is no excuse for "double headers" among the amateurs and semi-professionals.

The row on the eastern racetracks over the admission of nonmembers of the "Mets" to the main betting ring is an ugly one, and would do serious damage to the sport if given a great deal of airing. Like many racetrack troubles, it seems to hinge on an abuse, or alleged abuse, of power. The "Mets" are in many ways an excellent organization, but at times they appear to have been a little bit too clanish and too much disposed to bar applicants entitled to admission.

HYDE PARK BLUES WIN GAME.

Defeat the Calumet Team in Association Football Contest by a Score of Five to Two.

The Hyde Park blues defeated Calumet, 5 to 2, in a fast association football game on the Sixty-first street grounds yesterday. The Calumets, strengthened by J. Bowman of the Metropolitans at right back; Dixon of the Wanderers at inside right wing; and A. S. Hallcross of the Thistles at outside left wing, put up the strongest game the team has played during the season, and for the first half held the blues almost even.

Hyde Park Blues [5].		Calumet [2].

GUNTHERS WIN AT LOUISVILLE

National Bowling Champions Capture Three Game Match, Beating Foresters by Only Twelve Pins.

Louisville, Ky., May 7.—[Special.]—Before the largest crowd that ever saw a tenpin series in this city, the Gunthers of Chicago, the national champions, defeated the Foresters at Hager's alleys this afternoon by twelve pins. The first game, which was gamely contested by the Gunthers, who had an uphill game to play, resulted in favor of the home five with a total of 974, against the Gunthers 896, taking a lead of 78 pins. The second game went to Kiens's men, in which they made up 28 pins. With a lead of 50 pins held by the Foresters, the final game was hard fought. Throughout the home team was favored with lucky breaks, while the visitors, on what seemed perfect hits, failed to get the mark deserved. However, with steady plugging they won the game by 62 pins and a lead of 12. McCampbell of the Foresters was the only player to reach a 200 average, netting 211 1-3. Scores:

Gunthers ......896 932 926—2,754

Haines Knocks Out Johnson.

Peter Haines knocked out Fred Johnson in the second round of a fight on South Halsted street early yesterday morning. There was plenty doing while the fight lasted and in the first round there were several knockdowns. When they came up for the second round both were determined to win. Haines swung a right to the jaw and Johnson was counted out.

Maroon Baseball This Week.

The University of Chicago baseball team will play Michian at Marshall field this afternoon. This is the first game under the new arrangement of the maroon authorities, which provides for entrance by invitation. On Thursday Purdue will play on Marshall field, and on Saturday Chicago will play Illinois at Champaign. The track team will go to Madison on Saturday for a dual meet with the Wisconsin athletes.

EAST WILL MEET WEST ON TRACK.

Plans for Annual Intersectional Collegiate Contests Are Maturing.

LIKELY TO OCCUR IN JULY.

Dual Meets to Be Held Alternate Years in the East and in the West.

New Haven, Conn., May 7.—[Special.]—A permanent arrangement has been made whereby the east and west hereafter will meet annually in track athletics, the only branch of college sport in which plans are being made for them to come together.

The point winners at the eastern intercollegiates will be matched with those from the western intercollegiate meet at a dual clash which is to be held alternately in the east and on western soil. The arrangement lacks many details of being perfect, but it is now known it is too late for it to be put into effect this year. It will be tried next spring, and it is assured that the first of the meets will be in the east, the Harvard stadium being chosen as the most appropriate place for the innovation, which will settle the American intersectional track athletic championship.

When the meet is held in the east, eastern officials will have charge and when in the west the list will be made up of western track athletic authorities. It is probable the first meet in the west will be in Chicago in 1907. The date of these annual meets will be just after the eastern and western intercollegiates, just before July 1, it is expected.

JEFFRIES VICTIM OF MALARIA.

Champion Begins Week's Theater Engagement Here, After Which He Will "Duck" the Limelight.

James J. Jeffries, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, arrived in Chicago yesterday and confirmed the report of his retirement from the prize ring. Jim is as big and husky as ever, but is far from being in good health. He has been knocked out by malaria and is suffering from a severe case of muscular rheumatism in his hands.

Despite these drawbacks the big fellow went through his "Davy" Crockett stunt last night and boxed three lively rounds with Joe Kennedy at a west side theater. He said he suffered more in this boxing bout than in any championship fight he ever took part in, as his hands, badly swollen, were painful to the touch.

"You see," he said, "I have never known a day's sickness and this malaria makes life miserable. I am tired of the theatrical game and have informed the managemennt that I would duck out of the limelight at the end of the week."

"How about the fighting game?" was asked.

"That's a dead one as far as I am concerned," he replied. "I have gone through the crop of heavyweights, and I am sure the public will not stand for my going through them again. I thought Marvin Hart would show up well enough to warrant his giving me an argument, but reports tell me he will not do. California is the only state where a championship battle can be pulled off, and the sporting public will not patronize what appears to be a one sided battle. My fight with Jack Munroe convinced me that nothing but the real goods will pay. The receipts of that fight footed up $21,000, of which I received nearly half, but it did not pay me, as after I paid my training expenses I had only $1,000 left.

"There is nothing in fighting for me, simply because there is no one for me to fight. If I was financially down and out I might talk along different lines, but I have enough laid aside to keep me comfortably the rest of my days, so I am not worried."

Jeff will consult a local physician while here, and, if improved in health after his week's engagement, will go to Los Angeles, his home, and from there to his former training quarters at Harbin Springs.

MANY PAY HONOR TO GERMAN POET.

Great Crowd Attends Schiller Memorial Services in the Auditorium.

SPEECH BY PROF. THOMAS.

Tells of Struggle and Victory of the Writer—Musical Program Given.

The second entertainment in commemoration of the centenary of Friederich von Schiller's death was given at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the American Institute of Germanics and the Schwabenverein of Chicago. It consisted of an elaborate musical program with speeches eulogistic of the German poet's life and works.

The German people of Chicago took advantage of the pleasant Sunday and an audience gathered that filled the great theater. Among those who attended were Gen. Albert von Pfister, representing the king of Würtemberg, and Frau von Pfister. Other boxes were occupied by members of German educational and social societies of the city.

The principal speech was delivered by Prof. Calvin Thomas of Columbia university, New York. Preceding him Otto C. Schneider, president of the committee of arrangements, made a brief introductory speech in German, in which he dwelt on the difficulty with which Schiller had to contend in trying to make himself heard as a poet.

Universities Are Represented.

Grouped around the speakers' platform sat professors from Chicago, Northwestern, Illinois, and other universities, attired in caps and gowns. The rest of the stage was occupied by the united German singing societies and the Metropolitan orchestra, under the direction of Gustav Ehrhorn and Carl Bunge, respectively.

The program began with Wagner's "Tannhäuser" march by the Metropolitan orchestra, with organ accompaniment by William Middelschulte. This was followed by the reading, by Miss Maud Winnifred Rogers, of a prize prologue on the life and work of Schiller, written by Arthur Altschul of San Francisco.

Address by Prof. Thomas.

Prof. Thomas then was introduced by Mr. Schneider. Prof. Thomas' subject was "Schiller: The Apostle of Freedom, Reason, and Humanity," indicating by the title the three phases of the poet's life touched upon.

"A hundred years ago this month the little German city of Weimar was saddened by the tidings that the poet Schiller had passed away," said Prof. Thomas. "His untimely end meant much to his sorrowing family and to a few personal friends, but beyond that few were aware that one of the true immortals had died.

"Schiller's life was not an eventful one. He never had been in a foreign country. Even his own Wallenstein he had never beheld with his bodily eyes. He took no part in the stirring events of his time. His biography is the history of his works as a poet. But the lesson of his life is the lesson of courage and truth.

Idealist and Rhetorician.

"Adverse criticism of Schiller has revolved about two points: That he was an idealist and a rhetorician and that he saw life not as it is but colored by his idealism. For this we love him. Without idealism literature would become insipid and trivial, and the world would soon forget it. Without realism it produces no illusion and so fails to touch the imagination.

"Schiller has expressed himself in language of such quality as has endeared him to the German heart and to the people for all time. His strongest claim to immortality is that his name is linked to that of Goethe's as an epoch in German culture. We honor him as the apostle of freedom. The spirit of liberty breathes through all his works. This was not, however, the kind of freedom represented by tyrannous labor unions, which attempt to abridge the right of freemen to work.

"The high intellectual seriousness of Schiller has a lesson for us at the present time. It is the lesson of patient faith in the human intellect; of solid assurance that knowledge is better than ignorance, truth better than error; and that the best way to find truth is to reason calmly in the light of all the facts that can be discovered."

Mrs. Theodore Brentano Sings.

Following the speech, which occupied more than an hour, Mrs. Theodore Brentano sang "Ave Maria," with violin, harp, and organ accompaniment. She was compelled to give an encore.

Other parts of the musical program consisted of Schubert's "Liebe" and Weber's "Rasch Tritt der Tod den Menschen an," given by the united singers' chorus of 500 voices. Mendelssohn's "Festgesang an die Künstler" also was received warmly.

The Metropolitan orchestra closed the entertainment with "Eine feste Burg ist unser Gott," the great Lutheran hymn. The celebration will be continued this afternoon at Fullerton hall, Art institute, commencing at 3 o'clock. The speakers will be Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Prof. W. H. Carruth, University of Kansas; Prof. J. S. Nollen, University of Indiana; Prof. C. J. Little, Northwestern university; Prof. C. von Klenze, University of Chicago.

SCHILLER HONORED IN BERLIN.

Centenary of Poet's Death Celebrated at University—Memorial Address at Birthplace.

BERLIN, May 7.—The centenary of Schiller's death was celebrated at the university here last night, the students performing "The Robber" and holding a grand kommers. The king and queen of Würtemberg attended the opening of an exhibition of relics at Schiller's birthplace, Marbach, where the poet's great-grandson, Count Giechen-Russwurm, delivered a memorial address.

Festivities in Austria.

VIENNA, May 7.—Festivities incident to the centenary of the poet Schiller's death are in progress here and elsewhere throughout Austria. This morning several thousand school children marched to the Schiller monument in Vienna, sang, and listened to addresses and recitations. The observances will be spread over several days. Tomorrow observances will be held in the Vienna city hall.

PARK OUTING OF A DAY.

MAMMA AND PAPA KRETSCHMAR GO WITH THEIR CHILDREN.

Trouble Begins at the Car When a Stranger Tries to Edge in Ahead of the Mother—It Continues About the Seal Tank, Where the Twins Cannot See—Is Renewed in the Animal House, at the Lawn Luncheon, and on the Way Home.

With the generalship that characterized all her maneuvers, Mrs. Kretschmar apportioned Aggie's next-to-best shoes to May. Aggie resented this distribution, but was consoled by being allowed to wear May's hair ribbon, at which May put in a tearful protest.

Then the twins were washed and laid away "for safe keeping." Mrs. Kretschmar herself put on the white dress she had worn at the last May festival. Papa Kretschmar, in his black suit and white necktie, was ready early in the day. Charlie, the oldest, was arrayed in his new store clothes with the long trousers, while Guy, 8 years old, shone in the glory of a sailor suit with knickerbockers.

Mrs. Kretschmar next laid out the plan of campaign. She was to take command of the twins in the gocart that folded up. Papa Kretschmar would take Aggie and May by either hand. Charlie would look after Guy, and Annie would bring up the rear with the lunch basket.

They were going to spend the day in Lincoln park.

Trouble Begins at Car.

After waiting for an open car they found it crowded to the running board.

"Here, I'm ahead of you," said Mrs. Kretschmar, as a stranger tried to board the train in front of her. Her husband took the twins under his arms, surrendering the little girls to mamma.

"Look out, you are carrying them upside down already," screamed the frightened mother.

"Do I have to pay for Charlie? Why, he's only 9 years old," she said, as the conductor waited for the fares.

"That boy?" said the conductor in a tone that silenced further argument.

Meanwhile Kretschmar had been struggling with the gocart. It would not shut up. Kretschmar swore, and one of the twins began to cry.

"It's this way," argued Mr. K. at the park entrance.

"No, it's that way," objected Mrs. K.

"Don't I know? Wasn't I here last year?" That settled it, and in marching order the brigade filed through the park.

New Demands Are Made.

"Papa, Aggie is talking to you," said Guy.

"What do you want, child?"

"Wah, wah, wah, wah."

"What, you want some already?"

And so the family stopped at the pavilion and candied popcorn was procured.

"I want to see the sea lions," cried May.

"Why don't you look at them, then?" asked Guy.

"The people are all in the way, and I can't see."

Papa had lifted up the twins, who blinked at the strange creatures unappreciatively.

"Where's Guy?" asked somebody.

After the rest of the family had been rounded up and told "never to move," Guy, his fat, red face sticky with candy, was found in the animal house, bellowing.

"A automobile nearly runned me over," sobbed the boy.

"Well, if you let it do that again I'll send you home."

Mamma Settles an Argument.

"Them's toucans," Mrs. K. observed, pointing to a cage of birds.

"No, mamma, them's love birds. It says so," objected Annie.

"Now, don't contradict mamma. Mamma knows best."

"But, mamma——"

"Them's toucans now. That settles it."

"Look, Aggie. There's the orang outang," said Guy. "It looks like you."

Aggie let out a dismal howl.

"Now, if you say like that again I'll spank you," came in warning from the mother of the flock.

"Where's all them people goin' to, ma?" asked May.

"To the high bridge."

"What's the high bridge, ma? Ma, what's——"

Confusion Rules the Family.

Here Annie got tired of carrying the lunch basket, and proposed the swings. Guy stubbed his toe against a stake, and rubbed his fat face in the dust. Aggie and May got sick in the swing, and wanted to jump out before the time was up. Guy turned around until he grew dizzy, and then cried.

"Let's run away and leave May here," suggested Charlie.

"No, let's go by the high bridge and eat," said Mrs. K.

"But I want to go by the animal house," said Aggie.

"Ma, can't we go by a boat?" asked Annie.

Finally it was time to eat. A green spot was selected underneath a tree. The rye bread tasted of bananas, and the schnitzelwurst had telescoped the cake.

"Put back that sandwich if you can't eat it," cautioned Mrs. Kretschmar. "It'll help out on tomorrow's lunch, and tomorrow's wash day, too."

Drag Wearily Homeward.

Aggie and May dragged heavily on papa's arms as they walked to the street car. "I wish I didn't be here," Aggie sobbed.

"Look at the summer suits they have on already today," said Mrs. Kretschmar. "I'd like to get one of them ready-made ones what you can iron."

On the way home they stood up in the car. Papa hung to the strap, and May and Agnes hung to him. Annie still carried the lunch basket. Somebody stumbled over the go-cart and got mad. On the North avenue line Mr. Kretschmar discovered he had lost his transfers.

"I told you you'd lose 'em," was his only consolation from the wife.

But the conductor was good natured and a young man had given Mrs. K. his seat. "It's a foine family ye have there," he said.

Mrs. K. blushed until her face was as red as the cherries in her hat.

"I think so myself," she answered—for the twins had been good, anyway.

Kills His Father-in-Law.

Terrell, I. T., May 7.—In a street duel this morning between Joe Matthews, a farmer, and Bruce Roberts, Matthews was instantly killed. Matthews had objected to the attention of Roberts to his daughter. Last night he learned they were married, and, meeting them on the public road, fired at Roberts.

Circus Train Goes Into Ditch.

Kempton, Ind., May 7.—A heavy pole, suspended beneath one of the cars, becoming loose and catching in a switch frog, wrecked the Lake Erie and Western special freight train carrying Gollmer Bros.' circus today. Eight laborers, three elephants, and five camels were injured. Four cars rolled down an embankment.

"GRIP" NEEDED TO PREACH WELL

Dr. Stephens Gives Advice to Chicago Theological Graduating Class.

EACH MUST KNOW "SELF."

"Make Connections with the Unseen" Injunction for the Young Pastors.

"Young men, if you would preach the gospel with power, get a grip on God. Make connections with the unseen. Build your religious convictions upon the intentions of God."

This advice was given to the graduating class of the Chicago Theological seminary by Dr. D. S. Stephens, who preached the baccalaureate sermon last night in the Union Park Congregational church.

"We are assured," the speaker continued, "that this imparted spirit, this communicated disposition, gives to human nature a foundation for a knowledge of God identical with that which it has for a knowledge of self. There is nothing a man knows with more certainty than he knows his own spirit, his own purpose, and this is the ground work of all certainty in knowledge."

Plans for Commencement Week.

The examinations at the seminary will begin this morning and will continue until Wednesday. The board of directors will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the seminary parlors. There are two professorships vacant and these will be filled at this meeting, it was said to be probable graduating students will be appointed.

An elaborate program has been arranged for the commencement concert tomorrow night in Fisk chapel, and the graduating exercises of the senior class will be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Union Park church. Dr. Gunsaulus will deliver the address.

President's Reception on Wednesday.

The president's reception will be held in Fisk hall Wednesday afternoon and he will receive from 5 to 6 o'clock. The alumni supper will be given Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock in the First Congregational church, Washington boulevard and Ann street.

CALL FOR UNIVERSAL PEACE.

New Thought Federation Members Celebrate the First Anniversary of The Hague Tribunal.

A note of international peace was sounded last night by half a dozen speakers at the union meeting of the Chicago New Thought federation on the first anniversary of The Hague tribunal. Dr. F. Emory Lyon spoke on Milton's theme that peace, as well as war, has victories. Mrs. E. A. W. Hoswell advocated substituting pictures of peaceful scenes in homes and schoolrooms for pictures portraying war. Mrs. Carolina B. Wolfe and other speakers talked on the same subject.

"President Roosevelt's idea that the more ships we have the less are the possibilities of war is wrong," said the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones. "It is an insult to humanity and to religion.

"The only thing that will stop war is an increased confidence in justice. Education, not along the lines of mathematics, but of poetry and art, will teach our children to be humane. Patriotism is the virtue of narrow minds. He loves no country who loves only one."

SAYS CREED UNITY IS USELESS.

Could Not Make Christian Life Uniform, Declares the Rev. William E. Barton.

"Unity versus Uniformity" was the subject to Dr. William E. Barton's sermon in the First Congregational church, Oak Park, yesterday.

"Got hates uniformity, but loves unity," he said. "He makes no two apple blossoms alike, yet the underlying structural ideal is so true that should a freak of nature or device of man make the blossoms blue instead of pink they would be recognizable in certain permanent details as belonging to the one great family.

"The attempt to make Christian life uniform either by means of creed or ritual is doomed to fail; but the unity of the spirit is characteristic of all true life that belongs to God."

WOULD ENFORCE SUNDAY LAW.

Meetings to Be Held to Compel Saloons to Close on the First Day of Week.

Beginning next Sunday afternoon, a series of meetings in the interest of Sunday closing of saloons will be held at various Englewood churches under the auspices of the Englewood Law and Order league. The Rev. Charles Henry Mead of New York will address the meetings. The campaign will be based on the state law, which provides:

"Whoever keeps open any tippling house or place where liquor is sold on Sunday shall be fined not less than $200."

The first meeting will be held at the Stewart Baptist church, Stewart avenue and Sixty-second place, at 3:30 next Sunday afternoon. At each meeting there will be taken a ballot of those present to ascertain their views on Sunday closing.

BIG SPECULATORS AT FAULT.

Set Bad Example in Gambling to the Young Man, Says Dr. Pinch.

The Rev. Pearse Pinch said yesterday in the Forrestville Congregational church that when young men venture into wheat speculation and ruin the interests of others they have a bad example in men of high position in the business world. Those who can lose millions without ruin have no right, he said, to turn the world's commerce into a huge process of gambling. The example is vicious and demoralizing.

President Assures Comanche Chief.

Lawton, Ok. T., May 7.—In a speech to Comanche Indians and white people, Quanah Parker, Comanche chief, has stated that President Roosevelt assured him that the Kiowa-Comanche Indian pasture lands of Oklahoma would remain the property of the Indians for all time. Chief Parker asked that the lands be allotted and the president is said to have stated he would take the matter up.

IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

DUTCH LUNCHEON FOLLOWS OPENING ONWENTSIA HUNT.

Engagement Announced of Miss Elisabeth Morse to Dr. Richard M. Genius—Aloha Club to Give an East Indian Entertainment Thursday Evening—Wedding of Miss Irma Smith to Mr. Walter Zimmer to Take Place on June 1.

After the hunt at Onwentsia on Saturday, in which, after all, no women participated on account of the rain, the first Dutch lunch of the season was given at the club. Some of those present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cade, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbanks, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pope, Mrs. Newell, Miss Cobb, Mr. Frank Jones, and Mr. A. L. Baker.

Mr. Charles H. Morse, 4804 Greenwood avenue, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Morse, to Dr. Richard M. Genius. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. William D. Marsh, 3604 Grand boulevard, will entertain at a musical this afternoon, the program to be given by Miss Fannie Marks, violinist, and Mr. Gustav Hohnquist, baritone, with Mr. De Coster, organist of Plymouth church, at the piano.

The Aloha club will give an East Indian entertainment on Thursday evening in the Perkins studios, rooms 61-65 Auditorium building, when Miss Colman will lecture on "Hindoo Life and Music," and Miss Lola Love will sing some Hindoo airs.

Mrs. Joseph P. Ross, Miss Bessie Gates Ross, and Mr. William H. Ross of the Raymond, 234 Lincoln Park boulevard, who will sail on Thursday for Europe, will be gone until November, spending the summer at Carlsbad and the autumn in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Pratt, 4122 Grand boulevard, have opened their summer home, Virginia Lodge, at Highland Park.

Miss Marion Smith, 429 North State street, is visiting friends in Pittsburg.

Mrs. B. N. Schwartz of New York is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Meyer, 4020 Washington avenue.

The Marquette club, Dearborn avenue and Maple street, announces a May party to take place Thursday evening.

The wedding of Miss Irma Ruth Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Smith, 1028 Sheridan road, to Mr. Walter Franklin Zimmer will take place on June 1 at the family residence. Miss Smith will have a number of affairs given for her before her marriage, among the first to be a luncheon and miscellaneous shower on Friday at the home of her sister, Mrs. George Ion Dieterich, 659 Pine Grove avenue.

The marriage of Miss Constance Locke Valiel, formerly of Chicago, to Mr. Charles Frederic Sibley of St. Paul, eldest son of the late Gen. H. H. Sibley, first governor of Minnesota, took place on Saturday in Minneapolis. The Rev. S. B. Purves, rector of Holy Trinity church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives only.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Theodora Sturkow of Chicago to Mr. Benjamin Hudson Ryder, which took place on April 26 in St. George's church, St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Ryder, who is a niece of Mrs. George Walton Flersheim of St. Louis, is a Chicago girl, and well known socially.

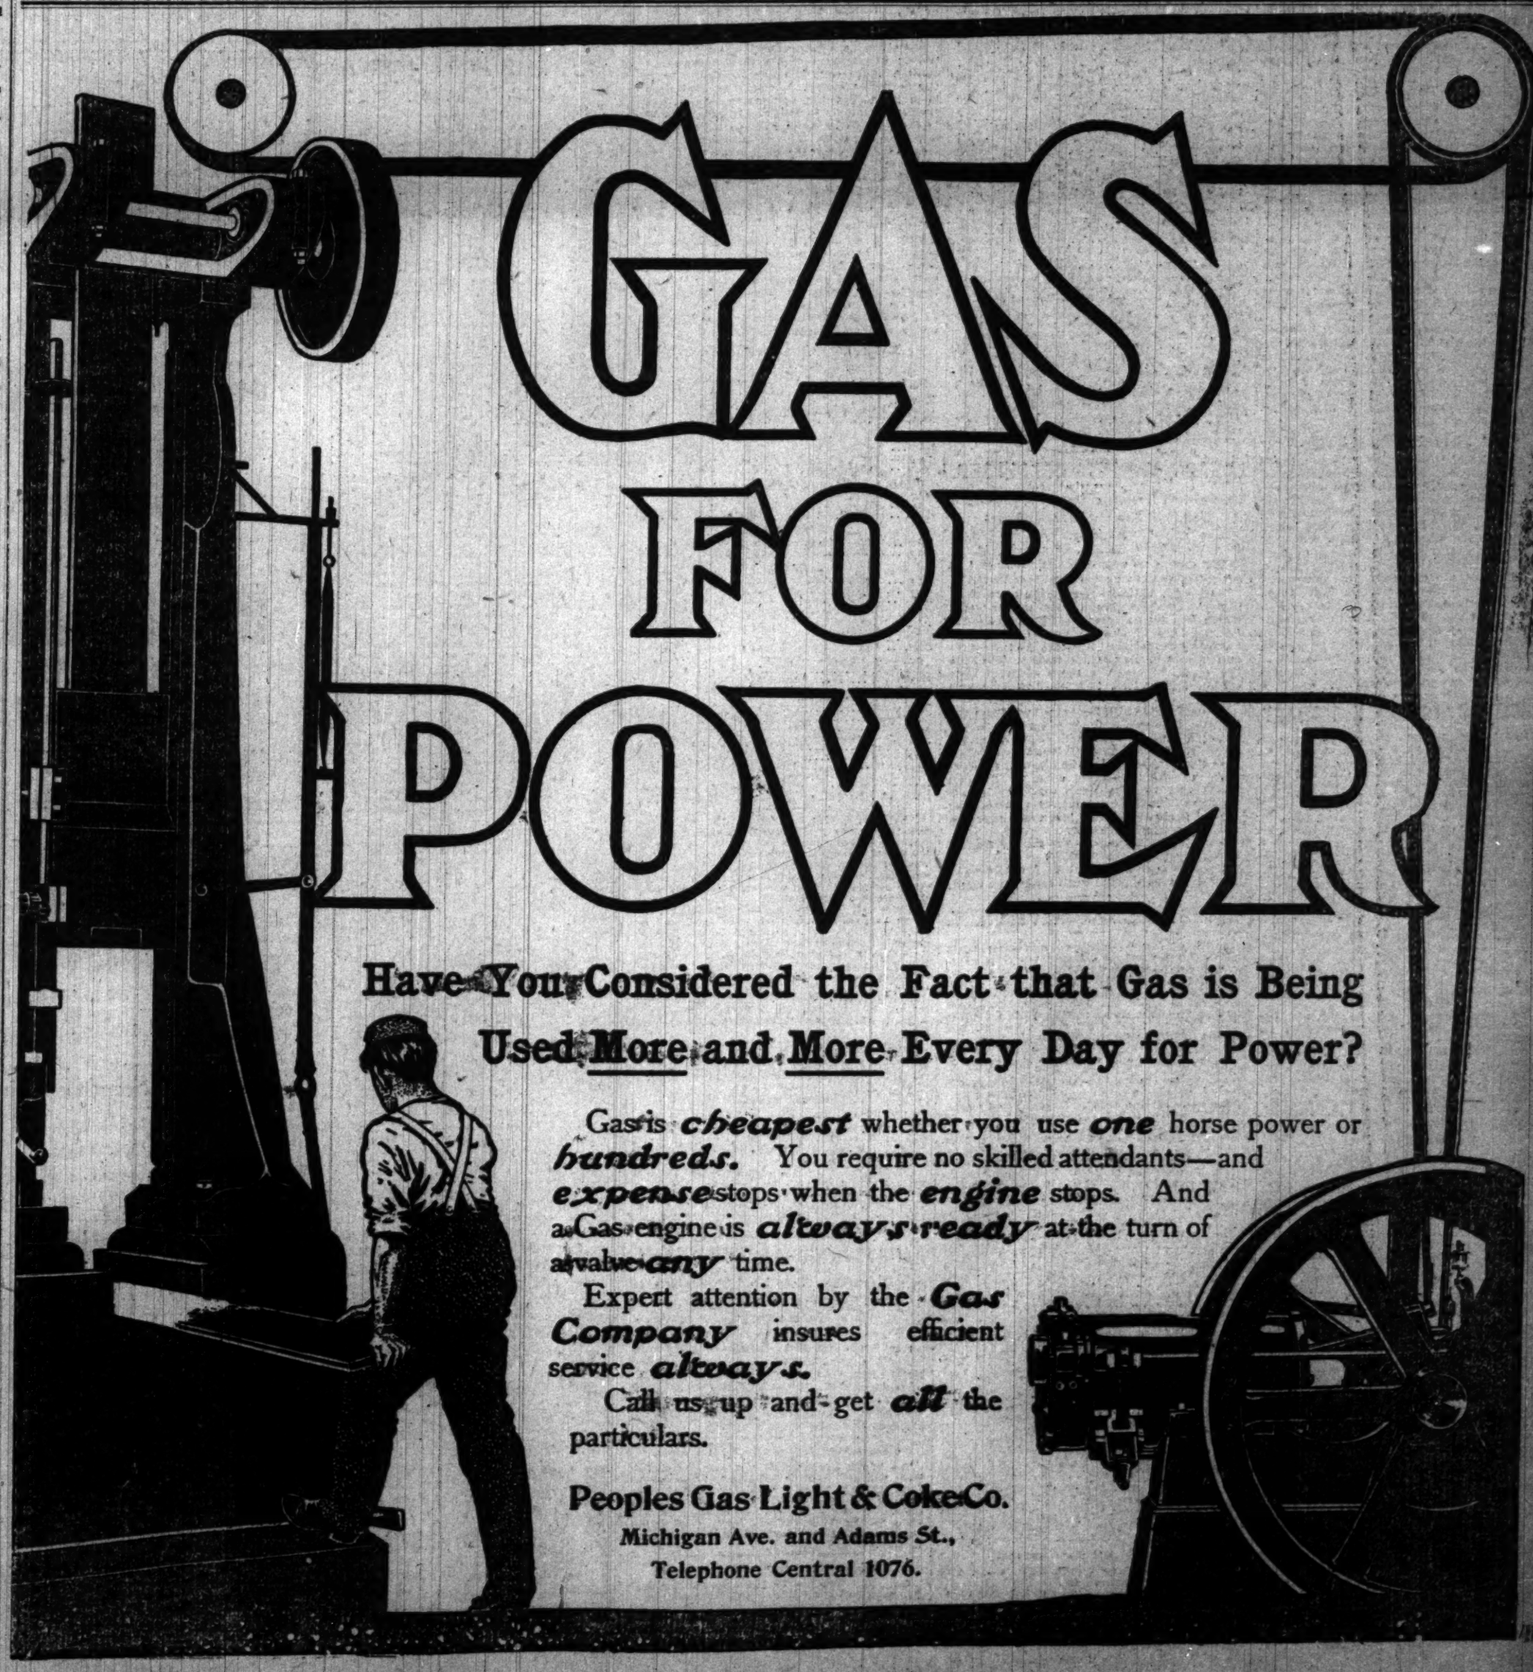

The Oak Park club will give a May party tomorrow as the closing event of the season.

PLEASES BULL AND BEAR.

COURSE OF MARKET JUSTIFIES ALL PREDICTIONS.

If Heavy Liquidation Is Over Technical Position Must Be Better, but No One Knows How Much More Long Stock May Come Out—Some Disturbing Factors in Future—Prices of Local Bank Shares Hold Well—Trade Feels Strike.

The course of the market in the week just closed was such as to confirm any predictions. Up and down 4 and 5 points, it pleased both bulls and bears and demonstrated at the same time that it was a bull market on short covering and a bear market on liquidation.

The observer may interest himself in endeavoring to guess whether the heavy liquidation be over. If it be, then the risk of a 4 point drop has been greatly lessened. The outsider can readily urge that stocks have dropped 20 points and there ought to be a rally from low prices.

On the other hand, none of the disturbing factors has been removed. The Equitable trouble is still on, the western railroad situation has not been clarified, Thomas W. Lawson is still alive and able to make predictions about the conduct of trust companies and insurance companies and later find them verified. The period of summer dullness is approaching, and the autumn will bring forth congress and railroad rate agitation. The saving grace in the situation is the case of money and industrial conditions.

Speculation from day to day will be largely governed by the strength of pools in various issues. They have carried shares down at a loss, not having been able materially to enlist public buying. The pools do not include the substantial market makers, and prices have not yet fallen to a level where the really big people get into stocks and then make a market on which to unload.

Bank Statement.

The bank statement Saturday was favorable to continued easy money. The excess reserve showed an increase of over $2,000,000. There was a decrease in deposits, but it was small, and cash showed a fair gain. The excess now stands at $18,729,425, as against $22,724,200 last year. The figures follow:

Reserve, increase	$2,064,175
Loans, decrease	5,780,200

Money Rates.

The local money market closed the week unchanged, with rates ruling from 4 to 4½ per cent. Some loans were shaded under the minimum and others made above the maximum named. The strike may have made the market a trifle duller, but it has not influenced clearings, the latter for the week being $225,102,188, or but $100,000 below the record.

Local Bank Stock Market.

The local bank stock market has been rather quiet, with prices showing a tendency to decline. First National sold at 400, Central Trust at 178, American Trust and Savings at 277. The banks as a whole are making fair profits, but the money market is not active and the rates are but little better than profitable. Bank stock prices, however, hold well, viewed from the investment standpoint. Local institutions have for a number of years been in high favor with persons of large means.

Strike Felt in Trade.

Trade conditions were mixed during the week, some lines affected materially by the strike, while business in others moved on uninterrupted. The dry goods houses affected did a restricted business and the embargo was felt to a small extent in the retail trade because of trouble in delivering goods to the homes of purchasers. The coal market felt the strike also, about counteracting the slight improvement in trade the week before, but deliveries were being made under difficulties. Produce lines suffered a little, as shipping business with outside points was out of the question the greater part of the week, and express runs of perishable produce were not handled except in isolated cases and had to be deflected to other markets.

In other lines activity was about the same as in recent weeks. Building operations were showing growth and structural material and lumber continued to rule strong. Paints, oils, hardware, and groceries moved well, the first two doing particularly well in sympathy with increased building and spring repairs on old structures.

Steel Market in Good Shape.

The steel and iron market was in a satisfactory condition. The temporary breathing spell of last week partially gave way to renewed buying, particularly of finished steel products. In specifications the situation in steel was better than at any time since February. An encouraging sign was that implement people were beginning to purchase material for the year beginning in July. The jobbing trade has profited to some extent by this urgent demand for material. There has been brisk buying of light rails, the tonnage bought being so considerable that mills find themselves sold beyond their producing capacity. Old material continued to decline, losses being in some grades $2.00 to $3.00 a ton. Pig iron held steady, despite rumors of weakness in southern iron.

STOCKS ARE DULL AND WEAK.

Recent Buying Due to Profit Taking by Shorts and Prices Slip Back from Exhaustion.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, May 6.—[Special.]—Today's dull and sagging stock market was in accordance with general expectation and was corroborative of the view that yesterday's buying largely represented profit taking by the shorts. With this demand satisfied prices slipped back more from the exhaustion of the demand than from any removal of active pressure to sell. The supposition is general that a period of quiet speculation is before the market in the absence of important new developments, with the possibility of some further speculative liquidation yet to be concluded.

So many illusions have been dissipated and corresponding losses and disappointments suffered by those who accepted unwarranted rumors in good faith that an early renewal of speculative confidence is not counted upon. What adds to this probability is the approach of the season of uncertainty and vicissitudes for the country's crops and the normal unsettling effect of this period upon business in general.

Union Pacific and St. Paul continued their leadership of the market on the reaction as on the recovery. There was some temporary show of strength in other quarters, but it was not sustained. Unofficial reports, which were denied, that Lake Shore had acquired some blocks of Erie gave a firm tone to those stocks. Yesterday's jump in People's Gas was found this morning to have been due to a false report as to the proposed gas legislation and that stock dropped back.

The advance in Northern Pacific was detrimental to the market rather than helpful. The bank statement conformed so closely to the forecasts that its publication called for no readjustments of market accounts.

Sterling exchange advanced a few points and there is discussion amongst foreign bankers of the possibility of an outgo of gold to France. But the price of gold in London was lower and sterling exchange advanced at Paris, thus indicating a relaxation of the demand for gold by Paris upon London. The market closed weak and dull.

Total sales of bonds, par value, $1,025,000.

LONDON MARKETS DEPRESSED.

Uneasiness Growing Out of Prospective Far East Sea Fight Still Shows Plainly.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1905: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, May 6.—Depression characterized the markets generally during the week, which was by no means bettered by the reflection here of the resentment aroused in Germany by Admiral Fitzgerald's indiscreet expressions in the German review. Towards the close, however, a more cheerful tone set in, due entirely to a rally in American stocks.

While London still keeps its eyes upon the bulletin boards awaiting news of a battle between Rojestvensky and Togo before activity, there is a noticeable tendency through long delay to minimize the effect of the outcome of the impending conflict. Foreign bonds now show a fairly distinct firmness on three issues. Russian railroad bonds are quoted higher than last week and Japanese bonds are much stronger.

The expected ease in the money market has not yet manifested itself.

Cheaper money is still held out, though now it is not expected until after next week.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, May 6.—Supplies of money were fairly plentiful today and the demand was lighter. Discounts were firm. On the stock exchange the tone was more cheerful, due partly to the recovery of Americans, but trading was inactive. Consols drooped on week end realizations. Americans opened firm in response to New York, reacted to below parity, became generally neglected, and closed quietly steady. Continentals were supported. Japanese were a shade easier. Imperial Japanese government 6s of 1904 were quoted at 101⅞.

PARIS, May 6.—Prices on the bourse were stronger throughout. Russian imperial 4s 88 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 510. Three per cent rentes, 99f 30c for the account. Exchange on London, 25f 16c for checks.

BERLIN, May 6.—On the boerse today domestic shares opened higher in consequence of the receipt of telegrams from Paris saying Foreign Minister Delcasse had resigned. Iron shares went up 2 per cent. Business fell off toward the close.

TREND OF WHEAT VALUES.

MILLING DEMAND ON THE BREAK STARTS RECOVERY.

Continued Fine Promise for Growing Crop on Increased Area Creates a Bearish Sentiment, However, on the Deferred Deliveries—May Price Is Higher than a Week Ago, but the Trade Nearly All Out of It—Interesting Situation in Corn.

A natural rebound from the extreme depression in wheat values caused by the severe liquidation of the May deal caused a fair rally last week from the low prices of the break. The chief cause for the improved tone was the better demand for cash wheat from millers, who had begun to buy before the low point had been reached and kept on buying, having been unable for months to grind choice wheat, because they could not sell at a profit the flour made from it.

A headlong break of over 25c enabled them to sit up and take notice. The fact that barely a quarter of the local contract stocks of 2,000,000 bu was delivered out on May contracts, together with reports from Minneapolis that all of the contract stocks there had passed into the hands of one miller, and a sharp upturn in prices in that market, all contributed to the recovery here.

The flour demand had improved a little on the extreme break, but the advance in cash prices here was great enough to compel millers to increase prices of flour, and the demand fell off again. There had been an upturn, however, of 7¼c in the price of May wheat, from 86¼c to 93⅝c, and the market held fairly well within 2c of top figures. There was evidently still some May liquidation to be done, although trade in the pit was extremely light, the house which handled the bulk of the May deal for Gates being a fair seller of May through the week, and also selling to eastern millers a good deal of the No. 2 hard winter wheat taken in on May deliveries.

Deferred futures naturally sympathized with the strength in May, July gaining 2⅝c from bottom figures and September 1⅝c. All the September advance was lost, however, the market closing ⅜c lower, and there seemed little disposition to buy the July, although its premium over September widened 1¼c, sentiment generally being bearish on the continued fine crop prospect.

Progress of May Corn Deal.

There has been an interesting speculative situation in corn for the reason that the May longs in that market have not been forced to follow the example set by the owners of high priced holdings of May wheat. They took in about 1,400,000 bu of contract corn during the week on May deliveries, arranged to ship some of it east, and have compelled scattered May shorts to liquidate on an advancing market, the May price going from a discount of ⅜c under July at one time in the previous week to 1⅝c over, and scoring a net gain of 2⅝c. Receipts have continued so light that the bulls have had no trouble so far this month in maintaining their stand pat position.

There was a little increased selling from Illinois on the first day that May corn closed over 48c, but it was on a small scale and dropped off the next day, when bids went out slightly lower. There is practically no corn at country stations, and while farmers in this state are reported to have liberal stocks back, it is uncertain how soon they will be inclined to take time off from their spring planting to market their corn. It may be a question of prices, and the bulls seem to be keeping the market in check in hopes of preventing a rush of cash corn toward this market.

The situation seems strong but may change within twenty-four hours if farmers start selling. More corn is being consigned from the country already. Not only have receipts been light, but the proportion of contract grade is small. The next run of receipts will be fresh shelled corn and the condition is expected to be better. There has been a fair domestic demand, but the price has shut off export business and Argentina is beginning to ship freely, making European buyers more indifferent to prices here.

Oats Prices Advance.

Considerable improvement in the eastern shipping demand for oats, some of it for export account, developed during the week, and the taking in of May hedges in this market, both for local and northwestern account, together with covering by speculative shorts, made a strong market, forcing an advance of 1⅝c in May, which went from a discount of ⅛c under July to a premium of 1c over it.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Lessened demand for dry good from nearly all sources, but with a continuance of independent attitude on the part of the manufacturers and their representatives. The week of special sales is over, and sufficient merchandise has been marketed in this way to make the general effect most successful. Advices from all sections are encouraging.

Metals—All the metal markets were quiet, with prices nominally unchanged. Tin is quoted at $29.75@30.00 for spot. Lake and electrolytic copper at $15.00@15.25, and casting at $14.75@15.00. Spot lead is held at $4.50@4.60; spelter is easy at $5.65@5.75; iron easy, although demand seems to be showing some improvement at the recent decline.

Butter—Strong. Receipts, 3,950. State dairy, common to extra, 21@26c. In Philadelphia—Firm. Extra western creamery, 28c; extra nearby prints, 30c.

Eggs—Steady, unchanged. Receipts, 16,466. In Philadelphia—Strong. Nearby fresh, 17½c at mark; western fresh, 18@18½c at mark.

BARS JAPS FROM WHITE SCHOOL.

San Francisco Board of Education to Establish Separate Institutions for Mongols.

San Francisco, Cal., May 7.—The board of education has adopted resolutions declaring itself opposed to the promiscuous association of white and Mongolian pupils in the schools, and declaring its policy to favor in future the establishment of separate schools for Chinese and Japanese children.

Camp Meeting at Lake Geneva.

The Young Men's Christian association of Oak Park will hold a camp meeting at Lake Geneva from June 26 to July 5. The program for the nine days will include bible study, walks through the woods, rowing on the lake, fishing trips, and visits to the Yerkes observatory. The annual election of the club will be held on the last Tuesday in May.

Alleged Embezzler Reprieved.

Guthrie, Okla., May 7.—Judge Bayard T. Hainer has sustained the demurrer to the federal indictment charging Thomas A. Neal, clerk of the court of the First judicial district, with embezzlement in accepting interest on public moneys in his possession.

DR. DOWIE SAYS WORLD'S LAW IS ALL TO COME FROM ZION.

Classes the W. C. T. U., Dancing, Y. M. C. A., Theaters, and Gambling as Problems and Offers His Own Solution.

John Alexander Dowie declared yesterday to his followers in Zion that "the day is fast approaching when there will be but one law in the world and that will come from Zion."

"This is no guess work nor idle dream, but it is true prophecy, and I say it for the truth," he said.

Dr. Dowie's topic was, "Zion's Solution of the Great Social Problems of the Day." He classed the following as "problems:"

Gambling,	Drink,
Tobacco,	Y. M. C. A.,
W. C. T. U.,	Theaters,
Dancing,	Women's clubs.

"There is not a greater religious failure in the world today than the Woman's Christian Temperance union," he declared. "It is a curse to the country, for it accomplishes nothing and it breaks up homes. I am for the temperance cause, but I don't think it should be managed by 'old maids.' The Young Men's Christian association also is a curse. It drags young men down, because it gets them out together at night in the great cities, and they cannot help getting into mischief without the restraining influence of sister and mother.

"Our solution of the problem is to give the people plenty of good, pure music and innocent amusements of other kinds without using the theater and the dance.

"Zion's solution for the great matrimonial problem which the country faces is a husband at the head of the house in fact as well as in name. The husband should rule, and if the wife will not be ruled by him he should take her and send her away from his house, for she has then broken her marriage vow to love, honor, and obey."

TURNER OUT BEFORE FAILURE.

He Denies Responsibility in Connection with the Pan-American Losses.

Henry L. Turner entered an indignant denial yesterday to the charges of depositors in the defunct Pan-American bank that he had knowledge of the insolvent condition of the institution before its failure on Jan. 24 last. His statement was called forth by the action of a meeting of depositors Saturday night which delegated a committee to call upon State's Attorney Healy and try to secure the indictment of Mr. Turner among others for violation of the banking law.

Mr. Turner was the founder of the banking company which for twenty-five years bore his name. He sold it to W. H. Hunt of New York, and nine months later the institution, which was operating then under the name of the Pan-American, was wrecked.

"I have never wronged a man in my life," said Mr. Turner, "and I am no more responsible for the failure of the Pan-American than the depositors themselves. I sold out my interest in the bank a year ago last month. Hunt gave me in payment a check on New York, where he said he had $25,000 on deposit. The bank was solvent at that time. All my depositors knew of the transfer and either approved or withdrew their accounts.

"I remained with the bank until July, when I gave my oral resignation to Mr. Hunt. In September I handed in a written resignation, and from that time till the failure had no connection whatever with the institution. It was solvent when I resigned. What happened between September and January I do not know. The charge that I had knowledge of deposits being received by the bank while insolvent is false, as well as the charge that I embezzled $20,000, or any other amount."

ADDENDA.

THE contracts of the EQUITABLE, MUTUAL LIFE, and NEW YORK LIFE all stipulated for total forfeiture of profits, should the insured DIE within ten years or FAIL TO PAY 10 premiums.

The Connecticut Mutual policy was an ANNUAL DIVIDEND contract; and the accumulation of its dividends, with compound interest, was SUBJECT TO CALL and therefore NON-FORFEITABLE.

POLITICS MARS RATE HEARINGS.

Senate Committee Apparently Makes the Question One of Parties.

MAY BE TWO REPORTS.

Members Oppose Giving Interstate Commission Power to Fix Tariffs.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—The railroad rate investigation which is being made by the senate committee on interstate commerce has degenerated into a party controversy. The clamor of constituents forced Senator Carmack of Tennessee to attend the hearings when they first were begun, but he seems to have lost interest. Republican members believe he is hanging back because the program of the democratic party will call for radical railroad rate legislation instead of a compromise scheme which the republicans are endeavoring to formulate.

Newlands of Nevada remains the only democrat who takes part in the hearings, and he is backing an impossible scheme for the national incorporation, regulation, and taxation of railroads which has no chance of passage and which the railroads are not vigorously opposing for that reason.

That there will be two measures recommended by the committee there can be no doubt. The country will be lucky if it does not have more forced upon it. Such men as Cullom and Dolliver, who honestly are working to devise a plan of preventing the public and the shippers from paying unjust and unreasonable rates, are handicappel by Elkins, who is the well known champion of the railroads and who, it is said, is likely to be supported by Foraker.

No Agreements with Roads.

It is not true according to members of the committee that they have agreed with the administration of the railroads as to the provisions and measures which they will report. The general outlines of the measure which received the most favor were given in THE TRIBUNE a week ago, and they have been modified to some extent by the opinion rendered by the attorney general holding that the courts could not possess a rate making power, either by way of original or appellate jurisdiction.

It was suggested that the commission should inform the offending railroad what it considered a fair rate, and if that railroad accepted, it should go into effect at once. But if the railroad declined to assent, then the commission should carry the matter into the courts and prosecute the case until a judicial determination should be obtained. But the attorney general declared that courts can not make rates on appeal so the members of the committee are thinking how to get around this obstacle.

Against Commission Making Rates.

It is the unanimous sentiment that the interstate commerce commission shall not be given rate making power. But still it is proposed the commission shall have authority to make investigations and treat with the railroads as to what is a reasonable rate. At the same time it is regarded necessary that there should be something like a court to which the railroads may appeal, and a decision which shall be final so far as the law itself is concerned.

Members of the committee believe there will be no violation of the constitution if a second commission be organized, the duty of which shall consist of the hearing of appeals of railroads from the rate fixed as reasonable by the interstate commerce commission. It is doubtful if Senator Elkins will agree to anything of the kind, because the railroads don't want the government to fix rates; but the president's support will be enlisted in behalf of the people against the railroads as soon as he returns to Washington.

Gov. Cummins to Be Heard.

A welcome break in the fusillade of railroad attorneys will occur the middle of the week when Gov. Cummins of Iowa will appear before the committee. Gov. Cummins is not tied up with railroad interests and favors straightforward settlement of the railroad rate question. Railroads have had it all their own way as a result of the sedulous care of Elkins, and the campaign has accomplished wonders, to hear their attorneys talk.

If the committee had called experts to its assistance it would have been able to obtain information of great value by cross examination. As it was, the lack of technical knowledge prevented the committee questioning the statements made and which have gone out of the country with all the strength of truth. As a matter of fact some agents have unbosomed themselves in a way that aroused indignation among the men who know and they will be answered emphatically when the committee gets down to witnesses not in the pay of the railroads.

SENATOR COCKRELL ARRIVES FOR PRIVATE CAR INQUIRY.

Understands Icing Charges Are High and Believes They Will Be Reduced if Commission So Recommends.

Senator Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri was the first of the interstate commerce commission to arrive in Chicago yesterday for the private car line investigation which will begin today in the federal building. He arrived in the afternoon at the Palmer house and later he had a short talk with Attorney Marchand of the commission. Commissioners Fifer, Prouty, and Clemens will be here today. President Knapp of the commission is not expected to be present.

"I don't know much about this private car line case," said the senator, as he fumbled with the lock of a new suit case that he didn't understand. "I gather that the car lines have been charging several times as much for icing cars as the freight amounts to. I have heard of one case where icing charges from Michigan to New York amount to $55 on the car. Now, that won't do. It will put the fruit men out of business.

Should Encourage Shippers.

"The car lines," continued the senator, brushing off the dust of travel, "ought to encourage new industries. The shipment of fruit only recently has amounted to much. From southeastern Missouri last year were shipped 1,300 carloads of watermelons, and the district formerly was a swamp.

"On the whole, the railroads are fairly reasonable, when the commission calls their attention to excessive charges. It would surprise the public to see how many times in the last eighteen years the railroads have cut down their rates because the commission recommended it. I have an idea that will be the outcome of the present private car line case.

"The car lines come under the jurisdiction of interstate commerce and it does not make any difference whether they are leased or not, the government commission has the right of supervision over the rates."

Expects a Week's Session.

The senator said he thought the inquiry would last about a week.

The same came direct from Washington, where he and other commissioners were hearing evidence relative to differentials in freight rates between Boston and New York.

"Boston," said he, "has an idea that New York is favored in the matter of rates. There is no difference in the rate. New York gets the business because it is a better shipping point."

WOMEN PREPARING TO BUILD.

Organizations Will Meet This Week to Consider the New Clubhouse Project.

The plan of five of the largest women's clubs in the city to combine in a movement to erect a costly clubhouse in the downtown district, as outlined in THE TRIBUNE last week, took definite shape yesterday when a meeting was called at which steps will be taken to finance the project. At this meeting will be representatives of all the clubs which now sustain meeting rooms in the downtown district and also members of many of the outlying clubs.

The clubhouse, according to the tentative plans, is to cost $200,000, and is to be erected in the vicinity of Congress street and Wabash avenue. The organization of a stock company with a capital of $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each, fully paid up and nonassessable, is planned. In addition it is proposed to issue $100,000 of 5 per cent first mortgage gold bonds of $100 each, payable in forty years, interest payable semi-annually, with provision that $2,500 shall be redeemed each year.

The tentative plans call for the erection of a seven story fireproof structure, containing music halls, auditorium, meeting rooms, and club quarters, with stores on the ground floor. To the fund $18,500 has already been subscribed by individuals and one organization has offered to lease an entire floor and subscribe $2,000 to the fund.

ARRIVES HOME WITH MEASLES.

Young Aldis, Who Contracted Malady on Ocean Liner, Now at the Family Residence.

After a trip from Washington during which her son, who had contracted measles on the ocean steamship, was quarantined in a Pullman stateroom, Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis and family arrived in Lake Forest yesterday.

The Aldis lad is not seriously ill, but it was decided to take him direct to the country house of the family, where he would have the benefit of pure air during the period of convalescence.

"On the steamer coming over several of the children had slight cases of measles," said Mrs. Aldis yesterday, "but we felt our boy had escaped infection until we reached Washington. There unmistakable symptoms of the disease developed and he was quarantined in the stateroom. I cannot speak too highly of the courtesy shown us by the Pennsylvania railroad officials."

Girls' Glee Club Entertainment.

The Girls' Glee club of the Oak Park High school will give an entertainment Friday evening at the Warrington opera house for the benefit of the organ fund of the new high school building. The first part of the program will consist of vocal selections, and the second will be a production of the opera, "The Sleeping Queen."

TRACTION RULING IS DUE.

JUDGE GROSSCUP WILL DECIDE ADAMS STREET CASE TODAY.

Opinion Will Determine Rights of Chicago Passenger Company—If Franchises Are Held to Have Expired City Plans to Begin Municipal Line Over Thoroughfares They Cover—History of the Road, Its Ordinances, and Claims of Its Attorneys.

Judge Grosscup is to deliver this morning a decision which means a great deal to the present city administration in its plan for municipal ownership. It is as to whether the franchises of the Chicago Passenger company—the Adams street line part of it—expired on April 21, 1904, or are continued until March 28, 1907.

For it is the intention of the city administration, if these franchises are found to have expired, to use the streets in question as the start for a city line of railways. Already, on a motion made during the Harrison administration, bids have been advertised for the building of a street car system in these streets and such others as are needed to make a complete west side system. Mueller law certificates to be used in payment for the work.

Streets Which Are at Issue.

The streets involved in the decision to be given today are: Adams, from Clark to Desplaines; Desplaines, from Adams to Harrison; Harrison, from Desplaines to Western avenue; Western avenue, from Harrison to Twelfth; and Twelfth street, from Western avenue to the city limits. If Judge Grosscup holds the City Passenger company, or rather its tenant, the Union Traction company, has no more rights in these streets, the company will be ordered to vacate, and the city will proceed to start its own municipal line.

It has been figured out that, with these streets as a starter, it would be possible to enter the west side, and, with connecting lines there, using streets not now occupied or others in which Judge Grosscup already has decided the franchises have expired, to build up a street car system in which nothing would have to be paid for unexpired franchises, and which still would shut in the Union Traction company in that part of the city. This is the idea of the city administration.

The law points which Judge Grosscup will have to decide are comparatively few. He strongly intimated when the matter came before him last October his mind was pretty well made up about them. The history of the Chicago Passenger road is:

April 21, 1884, it procured a franchise for the streets named from the city council, the franchise to run for twenty years. It afterward got the franchise for the other lines of its system, the most important of which were the right to use Washington street from Michigan avenue to Desplaines and Desplaines south to Adams, as well as Harrison, from State street to Desplaines. This gave the company the right to use both the Washington and Harrison street bridges, but it is admitted on all sides these later franchises do not expire till next year.

Issue Is a Later Franchise.

The ordinance for the Adams street line, however, was attacked by then Attorney General Hunt on the ground that the necessary property consents had not been procured. The company acknowledged this corn and in March, 1887, went before the council and asked for another franchise for the streets named. It is on this ordinance the entire dispute hinges.

The company in its bill calls the first ordinance "a pretended ordinance," on the ground it was not legally granted and asserts the one of March 28, 1887, was the only real one ever granted for the streets in dispute.

In reply the city sets up that the petition of the company to the city council asking for the 1887 ordinance sets forth in express terms that it was the wish of the petitioners to have it simply ratify the legal mistakes made in the former ordinance, and after setting forth the illegality of the first measure asks the council to pass an ordinance "confirming in all respects" the former ordinance.
